MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

VETO OF SENATE BILL NO. 487.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, April 20, 1917.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: I return herewith without my approval Senate Bill No. 487, entitled "An Act making an appropriation to reimburse the Township of New Garden in the County of Chester for the cost of repairing a certain section of State-aid highway and regulating the payments herein provided for."

This bill is designed to make an appropriation of $7,668.93 to the Township of New Garden, County of Chester, as reimbursement for expenditures made by said township upon a State-aid highway. The sponsors of this bill have entirely misunderstood the provisions of Sec. 23 of the Act of May 1, 1905 (P. L. 318) as amended by the Act of June 8, 1907 (P. L. 505). These acts do not obligate the State to pay three-fourths of the cost of maintenance and repair of State-aid roads, but that there shall be apportioned to the township in interest "its proportion of the total amount available for the maintenance of improved highways," not in any case exceeding three-fourths of the amount "which, in the judgment and experience of the State Highway Commissioner, the annual cost of maintaining improved highways, * * * should be, nor more than three-fourths of the sworn average annual cost, as set forth in the petition of the supervisors * * * of said township."

In 1911 the supervisors of this township expended $10,225.00 in rebuilding a road. This sum is not the average annual cost of repairs, as they did not for some years prior thereto expend any sum whatever upon this road.

The amount apportioned by the State Highway Department to the New Garden Township for that year amounted to $133.49. If the Sproul Act had not been passed this Township would have received $133.49 and not $7,668.93 as asked for in this bill. Had the township authorities in compliance with law filed the necessary request the township would have received $133.49. It now asks for a gratuity of $7,500 or more because it did not do what others did do.

Furthermore the act of June 14, 1911 (P. L. 915) set aside the sum of $17,000 to meet the conditions created by the passage of the Sproul Act and that fund is still available to pay New Garden Township just exactly what it was by law entitled to receive if the Sproul Act had not been passed. The only action necessary is to have the authorities of the township do now what they might have done at any time since June 14, 1911, namely apply to the State Highway Department for its equitable share of the fund created by law to meet just such cases.

For these reasons this Bill is not approved.

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass, the objections of the Governor to the contrary notwithstanding?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. EYRE. Mr. President, I move that the question, together with the further consideration of the bill, be postponed for the present.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, filed with the Chief Clerk during the interim, which was read as follows:

VETO OF SENATE BILL NO. 212.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, April 20, 1917.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: I return herewith, without my approval Senate Bill No. 212, entitled "An Act making a fixed charge for county purposes on lands purchased by the State for State forests and providing for the distribution of the same to the counties wherein State forests are located."

This bill imposes a tax for county purposes of one cent per acre on all forest lands owned by the Commonwealth. The amount of the tax is rather small, too small to be of any substantial service to the several counties in interest. The total tax upon the resources of the Commonwealth would be approximately $12,000.00. The principle involved is open to grave question. The Commonwealth should not pay taxes on its own property to its various municipal subdivisions for purposes such as by law a county must support.

State lands are a State asset. They benefit all the people. They are an investment made now for the enrichment of our citizency hereafter. The Commonwealth should be encouraged and aided in this laudable service, not hampered by taxation to the point of discouragement or discontinuance. This principle once established the amount may be increased to the point of menacing an altruistic service.

For these reasons this bill is not approved.

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass, the objections of the Governor to the contrary notwithstanding?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. President, I move that the ques also section 1, lines 10 and 11, page 1, by striking out the be postponed for the present.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, filed with the Chief Clerk during the interim, which was read as follows:

VETO OF SENATE BILL NO. 33.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, April 20, 1917.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: I return herewith, without my approval Senate Bill No. 33, entitled "An Act to amend article six of the act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and eleven (Pamphlet Laws three hundred and nine) entitled 'An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith' by adding thereto sections six hundred and thirty-five to six hundred and forty both inclusive.'"

The purpose of this bill is to authorize and in a prescribed way compel school boards in second and third class school districts to lay a special tax for the purpose of maintaining evening schools, vocation schools, reading rooms, library stations, debating clubs, gymnasiums, public play grounds, public baths, and similar accommodations for children and adults.

Section 501 of the School Code (P. L. 1911 p. 329) now gives authority to all school boards in all school districts in every class to maintain all the educational functions and departments enumerated in this bill. The code includes many more and gives the general warrant to all school districts to establish all these activities "together with such other schools or educational departments as they, in their wisdom, may see proper to establish." There is, therefore, no extension of function provided in this bill. It however does make provision to compel school boards in second and third class districts to do what by law they now may do.

The method of compulsion is expensive and impractical. It provides that ten per centum of the qualified electors may order an election to compel the school board to provide all these activities. The election so ordered cannot be held for the establishment of any one or more of these functions, but of all or none. If a majority of the electors approve then the school board "shall undertake and organize this work." Thus ten per centum of the electors may compel a school district to establish these expensive agencies, paying large sums of money for equipment and maintenance and at the next election upon the initiative of another ten per centum the whole matter may be stopped. The expense to the district of such elections is necessarily important. The continued agitation for or against these agencies would work harm and not good to the schools.

Under the school code it was wisely provided that the school directors should have the power and the responsibility of opening and conducting such activities and agencies. An elective school board reflects public opinion and the schools are what the people make them. A school board opposed to such agencies in whole or in part would not sympathetically and cordially conduct them when mandamused so to do.

The wider use of the school plant is most commendable. The purpose of this bill is already met by sufficient enactments and it only remains for public sentiment to express itself in the selection of school directors to ensure the steady, healthful and rational expansion of school activities.

For these reasons this bill is not approved.

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume the consideration of Senate Bill No. 325, bill on third reading postponed for the present, entitled

An Act providing for the sale distribution and use for the promotion of biological science and for the discovery of new methods of treatment in medicine and surgery of unclaimed animals in the public pounds and providing penalties for neglect or refusal to comply with the provisions of this act.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I believe every member of this Senate is deeply sensible to the advantages that would accrue to medical science and humanity by the passage of this bill. I desire to say at this time that I believe the members of the various humane societies are actuated in their fight against this bill by high motives, that of the prevention of cruelty and suffering to animals. I believe also that the advocates of this bill are actuated in their desire for the passage of this bill by even higher motives, that of the conservation of human life and prevention of disease. Every important advance that has been made in the realm of medicine and surgery within the past one hundred years has been made through the use of vivisection. We have the discovery of sulphuric ether, diphtheretic antitoxin, the antitoxins of typhoid fever, cerebral spinal meningitis, and many others. As you all know, prior to the discovery of sulphuric ether when it became necessary to perform a major operation on a patient he was strapped to the chair and the surgeon was compelled to listen to his groans and agony until the operation was completed by which time the patient was so exhausted by pain and shock that many of them never rallied, but as soon as this potent agency was discovered the mortality rate fell fifty per cent. and the pain and shock subsided. Diphtheretic antitoxin, which was brought about absolutely and wholly by the use of animal experimentation, has saved millions of lives. In proof of my assertion I will read an article from the late William M. Pepper's work. He says: "By recent experiments with inoculation of attenuated cultures of diphtheretic virus Behring, Kitasato and Fraenkel have succeeded in rendering certain aminals immune to diphtheria. With guinea-pigs and rabbits Behring has been able to regulate the dosage with almost mathematical accuracy, so as to produce the disease with varying grades of intensity—with paralysis or without, with constitutional symptoms or with only slight local infiltration. What is still more important, he has been able to cure already infected guinea-pigs by inoculation with the blood of animals rendered immune by previous inoculation. This occurs even with the inoculation made at some distance from the local lesion."

We have to-day going up and down the country thousands of hopeless and helpless and unsightly cripples. The various scientific societies throughout the world are experimenting upon rats and mice, guinea-pigs and dogs in an effort to overcome that most fearful of all diseases poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis and that will be brought about just as surely as the cure of diphtheria was brought about. The medical profession has ever stood for the most humane methods in animal experimentation, and they have not practiced on animals wantonly, but from the most altruistic motives, ever offering their own lives upon the altar of science that others might benefit. I have but to remind you of the noble work of the Yellow Fever Commission in Cuba, under the direction of Major Walter Reed, Surgeon U. S. Army (1851-1902), who, after years of preparation in experimental work under the truly famous Welch at Hopkins, headed that noble band consisting of, besides himself, James Carroll, Artistide Agramonte and Jesse W. Lazaer. The cause of Yellow Fever was unknown and therefore the manner in which it spread was a mystery, and practically nothing could be done to stay its progress when once its dread presence was established in a community. Charles Finlay of Havana had indeed insisted it was due to a living micro-organism, but had not been able to prove his contention. Sanarelli of Brazil had discovered the bacillus icteroides in the bodies of those having died of the fever, but it could not in other ways be connected with the causation of Yellow Fever Reed, however, started in with those methods that he had learned as the result of being trained in the laboratory of animal experimentation.—vivisection, if you will, but this time human being, in the persons of his colleagues, gladly offering themselves that others might live. So, James Carroll, enthusiastically offered himself to the bite of mosquito which had been allowed to bite a virulent case of yellow fever, as dangerous as the dagger of an assassin—but recovered, but his friend Lazear while engaged in the experiments was accidently bitten and died, a martyr to duty and science. I might state that in passing that during the work of the commission twenty-two cases of yellow fever were produced experimentally, fourteen by infected mosquito bites, six by injection of infected blood and two by the injection of filtered blood, this proving the existence of filterable virus. Seven enlisted men voluntarily exposed themselves by sleeping on the bedding upon which yellow fever patients had died, but were screened from mosquitoes and not any of the seven men contracted the disease, thus proving in the strictest logical way that the mosquito was the carrier of the contagion and which fact when positively known armed the Sanitarians with that great weapon Truth in their fight against the disease, and enabled Major Gorgas, by screening against the mosquito and destroying their breeding places, to rid Havana, which for years had been a hot bed of yellow fever, in three months, and later to make the "white man's grave", Panama, the healthiest place in existence.

What I have cited above is just one instance to illustrate. I would like just to recall by name these other martyrs to Medical Science.

Daniel A. Carrien (Verrugus, Peruvian warts).

A. Yersin and Hermann Franz Muller (Bubonic plague).

Tite Carbone (Malta fever).

Allan Mac Fadyen (Typhoid and Malta fever).

A. Everett Dutton (African relapsing fever).

Howard Taylor Ricketts (Tabardille).

Thomas B. McClintock (Rocky Mountain fever).

All of whom lost their lives investigating the diseases with which their names were associated.

Operations, such as the various operations for obstruction of the bowel, gunshot wounds of the intestines, removal of various organs, such as the gall bladder, kidney, the restoring of function by suturing nerves, blood vessels, the transplantation of bone and other tissues, the possibility of the latter having been proven upon the animal, has since restored a great number of cripples to the ranks of the alert and active.

It can be said that without animal experimentation our knowlegde of the action of drugs upon the circulatory organs and the brain and the various organs and the functions of the body would be very meagre and empirical. In surgery the knowledge of the function of the various organs is of the greatest importance. We can gain a knowledge of the structure or the anatomy of dissecting dead bodies, but of the function we have to observe the result of experimentation on the living, and as God has given to us the animal to feed upon, he also intended us to use them for a much nobler purpose than to satisfy our appetites for flesh. I mean that instead of devouring their flesh, as we do in common with the tiger and the vulture, we devote them to the Altar of Science where we by recording our observations and applying our brains to reasoning and deduction on what we observe, we gradually blaze the way through the jungle of ignorance out of the valley of darkness to the beautiful light of scientific truth.

Now gentlemen of the Senate, if you believe that the members of the profession are advocating this bill with an unholy desire to see suffering in the human animal; if you believe that the medical profession has gained nothing by this experimentation, it is your duty to vote against the bill, but if you believe that the profession has been actuated by high and noble motives, if you will take the word of that grand old patriarch, that magnificent figure in the American Medical Science, Dr. W. W. Keen, and Dr. James B. Deaver equally as high, if you will take their words, I believe it is your duty to vote for the bill.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. President, as the Senator from Clearfield has said, the whole hope in the modern battle against disease, the whole expectation of victory is based upon experimentation upon living animals. This contest in the State of Pennsylvania and the country throughout North America is carrying on against tuberculosis which has resulted in lowering the death rate by forty to fifty per cent. was based upon a discovery due to vivisection. A former Director of Public Health of Philadelphia said the other day, with no thought whatever of this bill in his mind, that in the War of 1898 where there was one death due to gunshot wounds there were twelve due to disease, and now with a greater war going on where there is one to disease there are twelve to gunshot wounds. The ratio has been directly reversed and that change has been due to vivisection—part of course on account of improved sanitary methods, but mainly to the experiments that have been made in the laboratory that have enabled the surgeon to conquer infection and lockjaw and typhoid fever. Now the objection to this bill is that it is based on cruelty to animals, but there is an answer to that objection in saying that in all departments of human activity man is just as cruel to the animal kingdom as he is in this department of vivisection. Man is the lord of animal nature and he holds sway in a ruthless reign. He takes from the hen her eggs, from the bee his honey, from the sheep its wool, he converts other beasts into beasts of burden and so customary is it to us, so blinded are we by habit that we do not recognize that the service rendered us by the horse and the camel is artificial service and one not natural at all. We castrate the chicken for flavor and the horse for docility, the ox for weight, we exercise all sorts of cruelty upon the animals below us. I should like to speak to the sportsmen in this body in behalf of this bill. Surely they logically should come to the support of this bill. Many of the reasons urged in behalf of the sportman's right to shoot the lower animal are urged in behalf of vivisection. Sportmanship produces health and increases the food supply. Who of us has not shot at that song bird of Greene County, whose cheery "Bob White" was so eloquently upheld the other day by the Senator from that county. Alas, we all have gone astray in the matter of this cruelty. I too plead guilty. I too in a modest way am a fisherman, but the mere fact that we obey the injunction of Isaac Walton and when we put the worm on the hook and handle it as though we loved it is no atonement to the worm. The Senator from York should recognize in these present perilous times there is at least necessity for cultivating good markmanship and the sportsman should have the proper target. We can say when it comes to the food question with greater truth that there is justification for man's cruelty to the animal kingdom. We disregard the voice of the vegetarian and we slaughter fowl and swine and sheep and cattle.

search land and sea and heaven for the choice creation of the animal kingdom to bring them into the shambles that prelude our market houses and dinner tables. All these operations require cruelty in a greater or lesser degree, some of them considerable cruelty. The ladies in the main are antagonists of this bill and perhaps it is not fair to charge them with these cruelties, they may be ignorant of them, but it is well to remember that on account of the fair sex the most refined cruelty is perpetrated on the animal kingdom. Take to fur bearing animal, the otter, the mink and the bear. They undergo long nights of torture, with their limbs caught in the cruel teeth of the steel trap, in conscious agony and thirst they wait for the hunter to come and dispatch them, all simply that man's mate may have a fur boa around her neck, not necessarily in December, when it is needed, but in July and August in obedience to the midsummer mandate of fashion. It is not enough, however, to say, it is not enough for the vivisectionists to say to the hunter or to the butcher, "You are another." That is not the full answer. The full answer is this, that to vivisect while it is under the influence of chloroform and kill it at the end of the operation before it regains consciousness is not cruelty. And that is the type of the experiments in vivisection. Wherever there is any cutting the animal is anaesthematized. The Encyclopedia Britannica says in the official report of 1909 of operations of vivisection performed throughout the United Kingdom but 2.6 per cent. of the animals that were cut were allowed to recover consciousness. That is the true type of the vivisectionist. No humane man, no man worthy of the name would want to advocate the barbarous use of the power of vivisection. They grant that the power it liable to abuse as well as any other, but nobody judges a practice or a profession or a system by the exceptional behavior of one or two men in it who abuse their place and position. The kindest men in the world are doctors and surgeons. The heroes that the Senator from Clearfield spoke about who gave up their lives for humanity, investigators in this matter, experimented by the aid of vivisection and they are the type of men who desire this bill to be made a law. The vivisectionists make one mistake, they do not sufficiently and thoroughly inform the public of their aims and purposes and the rules that govern the conduct of their operations. Their printed declarations, their spoken language, both say that they take care never to inflict pain beyond what is necessary for the experiment. They never make experiments unnecessarily on animals. Their experiments are conducted in a college or a laboratory and it is true they are not performed by any immature or undisciplined student without the direction of a competent instructor.

Every care is taken of the animal that is sacrificed in behalf of his own kind and in behalf of mankind. Now if those rules were known much of the sympathy that the anti-vivisectionists receive, much of the present prejudice against vivisection would banish. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is a magnificent society. It does a splendid work, but in this particular involved in this bill its work is not constructive; it is merely repressive. Under the ordinance of City Council in Philadelphia, I don't know how it may be in York or Allegheny, but in Philadelphia the Mayor by ordinance is authorized to make a contract with this society to kill so many dogs. That society every year sends three thousand dogs to the death pen. That can go on for ten years, sending annually three thousand dogs to the death chamber and not prolong for one minute the life of a valuable dog and not lessen by one throb the pain of a valuable dog. They have no remedy whatever for the ailments of a dog except death. Why not let the University of Pennsylvania and the vivisectionists have say five hundred of these dogs and use them for the benefit of dog kind and animal kind as well as mankind. On the desks of the Senators to-day was a postal card showing how some blind beggar had his pet dog stolen. If we want to stop such conditions we should pass this bill, then the vivisectionists have a recognied source in which to get their dogs thirty days after they are held in the pound. If this bill is not passed then this blind beggar is liable to have his dog stolen, because dogs are now bought, vivisection practiced and dogs are obtained from promiscuous persons and irresponsible persons. We received a postal card on which was a glowing tribute to the fidelity of the dog. No one recognizes that more than I. There is no antagonism created between man and dog by this bill. A man's cause is the dog's cause. The diseases of the lower animals are in many respects like our diseases. They are healed by our remedies. Anthrax, cattle fever, hog cholera, and numerous other diseases of the lower animals have been better understood and better controlled by virtue of vivisection; and then there is the benefit to mankind, even if the trained knife of the surgeon is not used, because by virtue of the knowledge gained of the diseases of the animal the surgeon is able to conserve the food supply and commercial supplies of mankind. Pasteur's operation on the entrails of the silk worm saved the silk culture and silk industry to France. This Senate last week passed a bill on third reading extending to the poor of townships the benefit of the Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia, a treatment discovered by virtue of vivisection. How can we logically do otherwise than now pass this bill which aids the vivisectionist, we having recognied the value of his work. The discovery of the cure for cattle fever by lessening the death rate decreased the price of leather and of every article into the manufacture of which leather enters. Those of us who happened to be so fortunate as to be present at the hearing of the Committee on Health and Sanitation heard Dr. Keene tell how they discovered a cure by vivisection for hog cholera, saving the people of this country seventy million dollars annually, a gain to the breakfast table that lessened the high cost of living. Those of you who are good enough to vote for this bill will vote for men and methods that will decrease the suffering of our four-footed friends, men and methods that will increase our material comfort, our food supply, men and methods that have driven the terrors that formerly invested diphtheria, hydrophobia and typhoid fever into dumb forgetfulness, men and methods that are carrying on an organied movement for the health of all men and for the whole animal kingdom.

Mr. WASBERS. Mr. President, relative to this bill, the vivisection bill, I attended one of these meetings, where I absorbed both sides of the question. At the present time there are quite a number of people, especially ladies, interested in these humane societies. Their real objection is the fact that their life's work will be destroyed were this bill to become a law. Therefore, I hope the members of the Senate will use their discretion in voting for the bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILL OVER IN ORDER.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I ask that Senate Bill No. 716, on third reading, entitled

An Act prohibiting holders of brewer's licenses from having offices or agents soliciting business in counties unless by authority of an agency license and providing for the revocation of certain licenses.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON SECOND READING.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate resume the consideration of Senate Bill No. 864, on second reading, postponed for the present, entitled the safety of its people and the protection of their property and to aid the Government of the United States in protecting and defending said Government and the people thereof and their property and making an appropriation.

An Act creating a Commission of Public Safety and Defense to prepare for the defense of the Commonwealth

Mr. SPROUL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 864, entitled

An Act creating a Commission of Public Safety and Defense to prepare for the defense of the Commonwealth the safety of its people and the protection of their property and to aid the Government of the United States in protecting and defending said Government and the people thereof and their property and making an appropriation.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the first section?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I move to amend section 1, line 8, by striking out all the words after the word "Board" down to and including the word "Pittsburgh", page 2, line 1; also in line 7, by inserting after the word "Governor" the word "and".

Mr. SPROUL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, for the information of the Senate, I would like to explain that this is the appropriation bill covering the two million dollars for the emergency fund for the assistance of the war funds for public defense. This bill was introduced in the Senate about a month ago, referred to the Committee on Appropriations, which committee was to meet on the following morning, and when the bill was read in committee, with about forty of the Senators present, it was my privilege and pleasure to recommend, in addition to the Governor, the State Treasurer and the Auditor General to be a board of three to carry on the business of the commission and expend this money as best they saw fit. It was argued that a part of the Commission ought to be made up of members of the Senate and House and some of us thought that the members of the Senate and the members of the House were not elected to administer, but to legislate, and then we got from that and took the matter up with the Governor, and he at first had some objection to the Auditor General being on the board for the reason, and only reason, that he would have to audit his own expenditures. Since that time it was thought that we would have a commission composed of the three names just mentioned, and three citizens of the State, making in all six, including the Lieutenant-Governor, making seven; and then to-day it was thought that we would just have the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor and the Military Board, and with those amendments, that is exactly how the bill stands, the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor and the Military Board. It was thought, above all things, that we did not want to see the State of Pennsylvania to be the last state to offer its services to the United States Government, and for that reason we have come to feel here in the Senate that we need quick and immediate action. Our side wanted to see the matter closed up whereby we could send word to the head of the nation that Pennsylvania, this great big state, is not the last state to offer its services and follow behind the small states in this Union that are getting behind the President rapidly, one State after another. There is no question in my mind, and I guess not in the minds of any other person in this Senate, but what either side could have held this thing up indefinitely. The Governor told a dozen of us Senators, when we called on him in reference to another matter, that if the bill did not come to him properly he would immediately veto the bill and send it back. A lot of Senators thought that would not be advancing the proposition and in the final analysis of the whole proposition we thought this was the best way out of it and everybody was satisfied. Now you have a board of five and every one of them elective officers, every one of them here on the hill easy to call together in an emergency, and it seems to me after all that was the best thing that could have been done. So far as our friends in the Senate are concerned, I have talked to each and every one of them and they are all perfectly satisfied that it is the right action and the quick action, and that the thing ought not to be dallied with any longer, so that there can be, as I have said before, word sent to the President of the United States that Pennsylvania stands ready to expend two million of dollars in any emergency that might arise, and I hope this is satisfactory to the rest of the members.

Mr. CROW. Mr. President, just a word. I heartily agree with everything that has been said by the Senator from Philadelphia, and by way of explanation: a week ago a new bill on this subject was introduced in the Senate carrying with it the names of W. W. Atterbury, E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, and Andrew Mellon of Pittsburgh. In the dropping of those names no international slight is given. At the time those names were included, it was the thought of those under whose advice the proposition was made that they would give strength and wisdom and business experience to the Commission. Since that time, however, the suggestion has been made that the constitutionality of the act would be questioned if it were to be passed, that it is a question whether or not the legislature has the right to delegate its authority. Not desiring to further delay this project, or in any way involve the constitutionality of the act, their names have been dropped. We heartily concur in what has been said by the Senator from Philadelphia. The Commission, as it will stand after this bill is passed, will be the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Adjutant General, the State Treasurer, and the Auditor General.

Mr. SPROUL. Mr. President I am very happy indeed to acquiesce in the suggestion that has been made, which I think is an entirely proper one, and it will be a very encouraging thing indeed to see united action in the Senate upon a proposition which has now resolved itself into such a sensible and practical state. I am very happy indeed to go along with the proposition in that shape.

Mr. EYRE. Mr. President, it is with great pleasure that I agree with the views of the distinguished Senator from the first district of Philadelphia. It had occurred to me from the very start that we should have a commission in which the entire legislative body, as well as the entire State of Pennsylvania could have confidence, and in this solution it seems to me that we are acting sanely and sensible for the best interests of the entire people of this Commonwealth, and showing that we are inspired by patriotic motives, one side equally with the other, in trying to bring about the results that may redown to the credit and glory of this Commonwealth.

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, It has been suggested that I should say a word. I desire to quote one line of a very familiar hymn: "Blest be the tie that binds."

Mr. WASBERS. Mr. President, it also gives me great pleasure to see this solution brought about in such an amicable way. I was very solicitous to see this matter disposed of because it was an emergency proposition, and I again say I am pleased to hear the result.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I do not want to detain the Senate, which has been here long enough doing little or nothing, but I neglected to say when I was on my feet before that it was my purpose, if there had not been a satisfactory arrangement concerning this bill, to raise a point of order and ask you to decide the same as you decided almost two months ago, that outsiders could not spend the State's money legally. It is also my purpose to call your attention to the fact that we have been here four months and have done nothing, and it is about time we were getting down to doing a little business for some of us are busy, at least the rest of the men are busy, so that they can go home and attend to their work.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, on the question of us being here four months and doing nothing, I do not know wheer the Senator gets his information from—

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I get it from the calendar.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, if he attends the meetings of the committees and sees the absolute unlimited, unbridled, and unrestrained system of spending the State's money, and will view the final deliveration and considerations of the subcommittee on appropriations, he will discover that in those four months, there will have been more money saved to the Commonwealth than there has been in the last ten years, or twenty years, of the sessions of the Legislature, or any other session.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, just one word, in answer to the Senator from Philadelphia. We will find out how much was saved when the subcommittee on appropriations, which has really been only working one week are through with their labor.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, that is what I have said.

The PRESIDENT. This discussion is not germane to the proposition under consideration. With the many expressions of satisfaction made here to-night about this proposed legislation, the Chair suggests it as being a real love feast, particularly when the gentlemen on the extreme right join with the gentlemen on the left.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The second and third sections of the bill were read as follows and agreed to:

Section 2 The Commission shall take all necessary means to prepare for the defense of the Commonwealth and to provide for the safety of its people and the protection of their property and shall aid the Government of the United States in protecting and defending said Government and the people thereof and their property

The Commission is authorized to employ such stenographical and clerical help as may be deemed necessary and to fix the compensation of such help

Section 3 For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act the sum of two million dollars ($2,000,000) is hereby specifically appropriated for the use of the Commission The amount herein appropriated shall be paid from time to time on warrant of the Auditor General on the State Treasurer in the usual manner upon the filing of itemized vouchers by the Commission signed by the secretary thereof

The title of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

An Act creating a Commission of Public Safety and Defense to prepare for the defense of the Commonwealth the safety of its people and the protection of their property and to aid the Government of the United States in protecting and defending said Government and the people thereof and their property and making an appropriation

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 751, on third reading postponed for the present, entitled

An Act relating to motion-picture films reels or stereopticon views or slides providing a system of examination approval and regulation thereof and of the banners posters and other like advertising matter used in connection therewith creating in the Auditor General's Department a Commissioner of Amusements and providing penalties for the violations of this act.

Mr. DAIX. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 751, entitled

An Act relating to motion-picture films reels or stereopticon views or slides providing a system of examination approval and regulation thereof and of the banners posters and other like advertising matter used in connection therewith creating in the Auditor General's Department a Commissioner of Amusements and providing penalties for the violations of this act.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, in answer to the interrogatory of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Vare, I desire to read the following explanation of this bill:

Relative to Bill No. 751 regulating the exhibition of motion pictures, I beg to advise you that this is a substitution of the bill for consorship which produces the same results and safeguards the morals, but prohibits the exhibition of salacious films and at the same time eliminates the many annoying, inconvenient and in some instances drastic portions of censorship.

The argument of the motion picture manufacturers is that in view of the present progress of the industry in which at least ninety per cent. of the pictures are undoubtedly clean and wholesome and equal to if not superior to stage productions, they ought to be placed in the same class as the stage productions and not classed as criminals to the extent that all their pictures must be submitted for review before exhibition; but rather that they should be allowed under a system of regulation to exhibit their pictures until it was ascertained that they were immoral and unfit to be seen by the people of this State; and that when such a picture is found to be immoral and unfit that the commissioner would prevent its exhibition. In other words, they claim that the average American citizen should not be restricted in his choice of amusement and that no person should have the right to say that he shall not look at a certain picture any more than they would have the right to say that he shall not read a certain newspaper, magazine, book, or see a play on the stage; but that he should have the same privilege as a business man would have to the extent that he would presume to be innocent until found guilty; whereas the present censorship law classes him as a criminal and charges him guilty before any exhibition takes place.

There is a great deal to be said on both sides of this question, but my experience shows that considerable harm is done to the industry which is the fifth largest in the country by numerous eliminations and cutouts which ought not to be made due to a mistaken point of view or the fact that those in charge are looking for a particular objectionable part which may not be discerned by the average person, while the film manufacturers of course would much prefer to have a repeal bill as they claim the law itself is objectionable. They admit that it is probably too much to expect at this time, but that a substitute bill along these lines would dispel the many just objections to censorship.

If this bill becomes a law, it will enable film companies who now produce moral and fit films to exhibit the same upon certificate of approval after prior application, upon which the commissioner passes upon the film in script or scenario form, subject to the certificate being revoked in the event that the film is inconsistent with the description or scenario as submitted.

The number of employees, etc., are reduced and there will be considerable saving to the State in this respect.

You will find that the amount appropriated by the Legislature in 1915 to carry on the present Board of Censors for salaries was $84,920, which was approved to the extent of $80,920, and later a deficiency bill of $1,500.

There is now recommended for their use from June 1, 1917 to 1919, $94,920, an increase of $12,920.

The amount necessary to carry on the new Bureau will be $76,920 for the two years, a saving of $18,000, in addition to a saving of the cost of approval seals of $15,000.

This bill eleminates the display of the approval seal which is now attached to each film which costs the State four cents a foot of which four feet it supplied for each film. This in itself is a saving of about $8,000 a year to the State, and for two years averaging $15,000, a total saving of at least $33,000, in addition to which the large amount of cost for expressage will be saved to the film companies as the films are shipped to the rooms of the Board for inspection.

As a matter of fact this Bureau is properly attached to the Auditor General's Department, as that department now licenses theatrical buildings and amusements of all kinds (see Act of May 20, 1913, Pamphlet Laws No. 229), which fees are collected by the city or county treasurer for the use of the Commonwealth under the supervision of the Auditor General through the mercantile appraisers, etc.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I had no interest either for or against this bill when I asked the Senator from Schuylkill to explain it except I would like to know whether if we vote for this bill he will stand for his picture on these screens when they are having a recess.

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, it depends upon what office I am a candidate for.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading.

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, lest the Senate should misapprehend the purpose of this bill and unconsciously work an injustice upon the officer, the bill purposes to favor I wish to explain to the Senate that it is a companion bill to a bill passed by the Senate last week increasing the salary of the Register of Wills of Philadelphia from ten thousand to fifteen thousand dollars, five thousand dollars being for the handling of the State funds or taxes exclusively, and so stated in the bill, that this bill is purposed for the same thing, to increase the salary of the Treasurer of Philadelphia by five thousand dollars for handling the State funds and turning them over to the State, which I think will avoid all question as to its constitutionality and give the officers pay for handling State funds, which I believe they are entitled to, and I ask every Senator to vote for the bill.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I move that the question, together with the further consideration of the bill, be postponed for the present.

Mr. SEMMENS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. P. W. SNYDER. Mr. President, I object to having this bill postponed.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, the reason I made this motion is that I desire to offer amendments which I am not prepared to offer at this time, and I would like to get this amendment in shape to offer it on second reading as soon as I can prepare it. I have a letter in compliance with which I would like to prepare an amendment and to have it postponed.

Mr. P. W. SNYDER. Mr. President, I have no objection in having it go over until to-morrow. I think the amendment can then be prepared. I have some amendments my self. I know there is a great deal of misunderstanding about this bill. The parties who are opposed to this bill have become dissatisfied with it on account of recent amendments that have been made. I don't see why it should be postponed.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator's opportunity to offer amendments will not be prejudiced any more by the bill being on the postponed calendar than if it went over in its regular order. His opportunity will come when bills are on second reading to move to reconsider the bill at that time if he desires to offer an amendment.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Almighty God, with reverence we bow before Thee. We are keenly conscious of the responsibilities of these passing days. We thank Thee, O. God, that we do know when great disorder prevails in the midst of the nations of the earth, that still the Lord God giveth and reigneth. We would not walk in the light of our own wisdom; we would lean upon the arm of the Almighty. Therefore, be our Counsellor, our Guide, our Keeper and be Thou a special wisdom unto our President and all them that be in authority that we may prove a valued friend unto all humanity. In this day may every citizen of this great land be a patriot, willing to render every service and to make every needed sacrifice that our flag may be respected and the principles of Democracy may be conserved and propagated. May Thy blessing rest upon this honorable body here assembled; may the Speaker and every individual member in it possess a high sence of duty to the State; by their deliberations may they minister to the welfare of this great Commonwealth and the entire nation. These things we ask for Thy name's sake and in the name of Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Whereas, Food experts, economists, government and State officials view with alarm the approaching shortage of foodstuffs in the Nation, and

Whereas, The granaries of the world are empty and America is now called upon to supply food to our allies in the present great war, and

Whereas, The shortage of wheat has caused it to advance in price to $2.40 per bushel, and

Whereas, In this nation each year 600 million bushels of grain are diverted from legitimate channels, that of making foodstuffs to feed the people, to that of distilling liquors, and

Whereas, France, England, Russia, Germany and other nations, in the progress of the war during the past two years, have found it necessary to divert this great waste of their grains in order to feed their people, now

Therefore, Be it resolved that, in the interest of efficiency in the army and navy and for the sake of conserving the food supply by stopping the unnecessary waste of grain which goes to distilling liquors, which grain would feed one-twelfth of the people in the United States for a year, we respectfully petition the President of the United States and Congress to prohibit, during the war, the use of all grains for the manufacturing of intoxicating liquors.

SENATE MESSAGE.

AMENDED SENATE BILL CONCURRED IN.

The Clerk of the Senate, being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate Bill No. 201

An Act authorizing cities boroughs and towns to lease water supply works and systems providing for the operation thereof and the establishment of rates.

BILL ON THIRD READING (SPECIAL ORDER).

The SPEAKER. The hour of 9.30 P. M. having arrived, the House will proceed to the consideration of House Bill No. 485, File Folio 1885, the special order set for this hour.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 485, entitled

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section four Article six of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to the removal of appointed officers.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I have been asked to make some explanation with reference to the bill now before the House. This is a joint resolution proposing an amendment to Article VI. of the State Constitution, relative to the appoinment and removal of state officers. The resolution amends Artivle VI. by inserting an enabling clause, delegating to the State Legislature the right to make whatever laws in their judgment may be fitting, to cover the cases of removal from office. you will find by reading the bill that the only changes from the constitutional section which is to be amended lies in these words "for just cause" and "subject to such restrictions as to the method of removal as the Legislature may prescribe." Now I want to say in the first place that no argument can be made against this resolution, upon the proposition heretofore made that this has anything whatever to do with factional politics in Philadelphia or in the State of Pennsylvania. It arises, however, out of a very sad condition of affairs existing not very long ago, when the Governor removed from office a number of men in every respect qualified to fill the positions which they then occupied, without assigning any reason for so doing, but simply in aid of a campaign which was pending at the time. You will recall the discharge of Banking Commissioner Mr. Smith, you will recall the discharge of Nevin Pomeroy of the Department of Printing, you will recall the enforced resignation of Mr. Breitinger, then moving picture censor. You will also recall the discharge of Mr. Rambo, connected with the Department of Public Grounds and Buildings. If you pass this resolution to-night it will have to come up again before the next session of the Legislature and be passed by that session, and then be submitted to a vote of the people. That carries it some four or five years hence, so that it is absolutely impossible for this resolution to in any way affect the state administration. It is in line, however, with a good thought, and that is that before any public servant can be discharged, by virtue of some good legislation to be enacted by the authority of the amendment you incorporate into the State Constitution, your State Legislature will operate as a check upon the executive of your State government. In other words, this is an enabling resolution. It does not suggest what character of legislation shall be passed four or five years hence, but enables the Legislature to pass such legislation as in its judgment may be proper to cover questions of this character, if you put in these words, "subject to such restriction as to method of removal as the Legislature may prescribe." I hope from these few words of explanation that you will see the wisdom in adopting this resolution and taking one step forward in protecting State officials from the influence of any Governor, who may have any improper motives in removing them when their services are acceptable in every way. I believe that the amendment will be a popular measure: If not, the people will have a chance to vote it down when the amendment comes before them, according to the method prescribed by the Constitution in passing upon amendments of this character.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. Speaker, I have listened with considerable interest to my friend and his explanation of this bill and I recognize it to be the old, old story, or part of it, merely to rehash the oft-told story and to cast a reflection upon the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth.

However, as he has said that it cannot affect the official action of the present government and inasmuch as two years hence we will be called upon to meet a new condition and a new Governor and that we will treat of that condition when we are brought face to face with it, I want to conclude by making this prophecy, that if my esteemed friend is a memberof the House two years hence, he will be found opposing this resolution.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, in justice to the Civil Service Reform Association of Philadelphia, I desire to call your attention to a circular that I received this evening and which probably lies upon the desk of every member, referring to this very resolution: "This House Bill No. 485 has been fixed for special order for third reading on Monday, April 23rd, at 9.30 o'clock P. M. The Pennsylvania Constitution is unique among State Constitutions in expressly permitting the removal of public officers at pleasure.' We believe that the good of the service requires that the Legislature be permitted to regulate the making of removals from public office so that men, in accepting office, may feel secure and may know that they will not be removed for political reasons or without just cause." Now, in order that my good friends who called into question my motive in standing behind this resolution may know who these men are I propose for a moment to read their names as they appear on this circular: "Albert Smith Faught, Samuel S. Fels, Cyrus D. Foss, Jr., James G. Francis, Vivian Frank Gable, T. Walter Gilkyson, Clarence L. Harper, Arthur E. Hutchinson, W. W. Montgomery, Jr., Henry C. Niles, Charles Richardson, Frank M. Ritter, J. Henry Scattergood, Haseltine Smith, Ira W. Stratton, William J. Trembath, Lewis H. Van Dusen, Fullerton L. Waldo, T. Henry Walnut, A. Leo Weil and R. Francis Wood." Not one of them is connected with what may be called a faction of a dominant party in Philadelphia, but devoted entirely in their efforts to what they believe to be good, sound legislation in the interests of the masses as against the few.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interorgate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if the State of Pennsylvania should succeed in electing a Democratic Governor the next time, could we as a Legislature prevent them from changing the heads of the departments if this resolution went through?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, if the State of Pennsylvania should be unfortunate enough to elect a Democratic Governor, I want to suggest to my good friend this thought, that any legislation enacted by a Republican Legislature must meet the approval of a Democratic executive and if the Democratic executive does not feel that the legislation is in the interests of good government he is privileged, under the Constitution, to veto that legislation.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know whether this amendment is limited to State officers or not?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, absolutely, as I read it.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, I call the attention of the gentleman to the wording of this amendment: "Appointed officers other than judges of the courts of record and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, etc." Are not the words "Appointed officers" broad enough to include officers appointed by the cities, boroughs, counties and townships?

Mr. BEYER. Not at all. The words just quoted, gentlemen, are the words now in the State Constitution. They are not the words in the amendment which you are asked to vote upon at this time. They are as they have been since 1874, and they are not being changed. So far as appointive officers are concerned there can be no other appointment except that which emanates from State authority and any appointment by State authority must, of necessity, be under the jurisdiction of the State.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Under this resolution could not the House of Representatives and the Senate pass an act that would include every member in the State of Pennsylvania holding any appointive office if they so desired to pass such an act?

Mr. BEYER. Yes, I should think so—

Mr. REYNOLDS. Yes, exactly—

Mr. BEYER. Except those particularly exempted.

Mr. REYNOLDS. And the resolution at the present time and the way in which it is worded means nothing unless the Legislature should pass such an act, does it?

Mr. BEYER. I have already stated and I repeat that this is an enabling amendment. It enables a legislative body to do what heretofore has not been written into the State Constitution but has been reserved in the hands of the executive power. It limits the executive powers and vests some discretion in legislative power to this extent, that it authorizes them in their judgment to enact proper legislation, which they cannot enact now, governing the removal of State officers.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Certainly; and suppose the Legislature does not pass any such law, then what becomes of your resolution?

Mr. BEYER. Then if the Legislature does not pass such a law it is the same as if this resolution has never been presented because they do not avail themselves of the right given them by the Constitution.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Certainly; and if the resolution meant anything or was for any real desire and purpose it would recite how, why and when the Governor should remove from office and for what cause, should it not?

Mr. BEYER. Not at all.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Why not?

Mr. BEYER. It would be absolutely impossible, in the scope of an amendment to the State Constitution, to enact what may be regarded as legislation rather than the enabling rights. Our State government is founded upon the proposition of three departments, the executive, the legislative and judicial. The legislative department has all the sovereign powers which any State may have except such which are expressly forbidden by what may be called the Bill of Rights, the reservation of rights in the hands of the people

Mr. REYNOLDS. And that is part of the Constitution—

Mr. BEYER. The executive power has such rights only as are directly delegated in the instrument which gives those powers. Now, according to the contention here, the instrument has given entirely too much power into the hands of one man, the executive of the Commonwealth, and in order to change it you have got to go a step farther and say we now authorize you, if you see fit, to enact legislation which will provide how and when removals may take place.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Well then if this is so, Mr. Speaker, I want the gentleman to know that if this resolution means anything else, that will be in conformity to this resolution as it stands before you to-night, it means nothing, and can mean nothing. But it does mean this: Let this resolution pass and be voted upon by the people of the Commonwealth and become part of the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania; the Legislature of this State sitting here could remove from office any of your county officers and your Governor could not prevent them if he signed the bill, or, if they had power enough, they could pass it over his veto, as we know. You are endeavoring to do a thing that may become very injurious with this nonsense. We have been coming here off and on since the first of January and we have been sitting here listening to this kind of talk and what does it mean? I ask you what do we come here for? We have been dawdling the time away and doing nothing and we are here on this thing and several other things which means absolutely nothing.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make just one answer: Your State Constitution is not a book of pamphlet laws. It simply prescribes the limits and powers which the people see fit to delegate to themselves and this is not the time to write legislation into the Constitution, and all we can do, and this is the answer I make, is to give the enabling power to this body to do what at present it has no constitutional right to do. You may trust the wisdom of the Legislature for what it may do four or five years hence, if this is enacted, to pass a wholesome law under this enabling provision. There is talk about coming here to see a show and whether you are paying a sufficient price for it. You are here to do your duty the same as I am and you are doing that duty as you see fit, and I hope that you will see that this kind of talk is unnecessary and this is no time to engage in this bully-ragging to which we have listened time and again from the other side of the House. This bill has absolutely nothing to do with the local situation in Philadelphia. It is a state-wide proposition and to my mind is along the right road and the way that we should go.

Mr. HECHT. Mr. Speaker, I want to say one word in regard to what was said or brought up by my friend, Mr. Beyer: That is, that we are attempting to do something here now which the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania is very reluctant to do at any time. In the case brought before the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth against Governor Hartranft, he was summoned into court for refusal to obey a mandate of a Grand Jury on the occasion of the Pittsburgh riots of 1877, when he refused to obey that mandate and when he was cited for contempt and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in one of the most elaborate opinions ever written in the State of Pennsylvania, for the Supreme Court, which has been the law ever since and which is a standard textbook almost in its entirety. The Supreme Court said that the Executive of this Commonwealth, the Governor, would be answerable to no one in the performance of his duty and that no case could more forcibly show the extreme reluctance of the courts to interfere in his prerogative. I will read what is the exact wording of the Court in that opinion and it shows what the Constitution is.

"In the case of Commonwealth vs. Hartranft, Governor on Petition for Attachment for refusal to obey an order of the Grand Jury during the Pittsburgh Riots of 1877, Justice Gordon, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, among other things, said:

"We had better at the outstart reorganize the fact that the executive department is a cor-ordinate branch of the government with power to judge what should or should not be done within its own department."

"The general principle is that whenever the law vests any person with a power to do an act at the same time constituting him a judge of the evidence on which the act may be done * * * * such person is clothed with discretionary powers and is to that extent a judge."

* * * * * * * * * * *

"It is scarcely conceivable that a man could be more completely invested with the supreme power of a free people observing the supreme executive power is vested in the Governor and he is charged with the faithful execution of the laws. * * * * * * * * *

Who then shall assume the power of the people and call this Magistrate to account for what he has done in the discharge of his constitutional duties? If he is not the judge of when and how these duties are to be performed, who is? Where does any Court get any power to call this man before it and compel him to answer for the manner he has discharged his functions as Governor?

If the Governor's discretion may not be interfered with in a matter purely ministerial, much more may that discretion not be interfered with in a case which pertains to his office and in the discharge of which the Constitution makes that discretion his peculiar and absolute prerogative, and "Page 455, the Constitution is a written will of the people in its entirety."

"No case could more forcibly exhibit the extreme reluctance of the courts to interfere with the functions of the Supreme Executive for its refusal of the Governor to perform a duty cast upon him by law of the character strictly ministerial."

When the Constitution of 1874 was before the people it was discussed by some of the most eminent men in this Commonwealth and you will find in the records of the discussion preceding the constitutional amendments of 1874, the reasons why they made the Executive absolutely supreme in either the dismissal or employment of certain men and other reasons for it were these: They said that the Executive was in supreme authority in the State in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at all times and should have authority over men who were employed under him, who were responsible to him for the proper discharge of their duty and that he was answerable for them, at all times, and that he should have supreme authority on this account over the men under him. That is the reason that was given in the constitutional discussion in 1874 and why this Constitution was written as it is now and which is now attempted to be amended. I say to you, gentlemen, that it is not a question of politics. It is a question of breaking down at this moment what the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania said and I say should not be broken down. The Governor of this Commonwealth should be supreme, the same as he would be as a business man, or the same as a man who is an executive of any organization or of any great corporation who must be supreme so that he at all times can enforce the law and can say that the men under him shall obey his authority when he enforces the law and if he sees fit to discharge any man that he may have the power to do so and that he also may exercise the same power in appointing him to office. In another section of the Constitution that is pointed out that he has a right to discharge at pleasure and the words "at pleasure" were carefully construed by these eminent gentlemen who formulated the Constitution of 1874. There has been no objection made to this Constitution since 1874 until this moment. It has stood the test and should not be changed because there has been one or two removals for whatever cause I do not know or care. We are asked to break down a fundamental principle of the Constitution of Pennsylvania based upon the removals by the present Governor and if this is put through it cannot effect him but it may prove disastrous to the people of this Commonwealth.

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to get into the discussion of this bill, but I fail to understand why the members of the majority side of the House accuse this body as not having done anything or why the Democrats should be scolded for it. In answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia I wish to say that we on this side of the House have no apology to offer whatsoever for any remarks we have made in regard to this do-nothing Legislature. If you will look through the columns of the State press of Pennsylvania, eighty-five to ninety per cent. of which is Republican, you can there see enough to read for a week about what the Legislature of Pennsylvania has not done during the present session. We have not passed a half dozen important bills during this session of the Legislature.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. MEARKLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. MEARKLE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not speaking on the bill before the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will try to confine himself to the bill.

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, what I do wish to say is that this is a factional bill to my mind. It has been stated here that it is not a factional bill. Now to my mind I can see nothing else to it. I cannot understand, and I never heard it explained, why these attempts of reformation have never been made before, why they all come at this time. I want to say that I have supported a number of them, and I supported them not because of the motives that were back of them, but I supported them because I believed that the bills in themselves were all right, while at the same time I doubt very much the motives that brought them into this House. I cannot understand at this time, I never could understand, why people who have for years been in power and had every chance to enact reform legislation, why they should never have attempted it? Why they should never have attempted it until at this very time, until the shoe is pinching on the wrong foot. I will oppose this bill because I think that we are all getting sick and tired of this foolish monkey business that has been going on here, and we ought to get down to some real legislation. As I said I supported a number of these reform bills because I believed that the bills in themselves were good. I have been accused in the press of being this, of being that, and so forth, and I have no apology to offer for my vote on any of them, but I shall vote against this particular bill because I believe that the motives that are back of it are factional, and that we ought to stop this monkey business and get down to real legislation.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Sarig.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Sarig, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, apart from the motives that the gentleman has spoken of, does he consider this a good bill?

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I would not say that. If the legislature was all right, it might be a good bill, and it might not. It would depend upon the legislature.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman say it is a bad bill?

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I would not say it is exactly a bad bill, but I think it is brought here only to monkey with.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Berks.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman whether he will give me an open answer, not evasive in any manner when replying, about any factional motives in the State or elsewhere, as to whether or not this bill as it stands is or is not the character of a bill which should have been enacted long ago?

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I do not think so.

Mr. BEYER. You do not think so.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILL ON THIRD READING (SPECIAL ORDER.)

The SPEAKER. The next bill on the calendar is Special Order on House Bill No. 187, File Folio 2337.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 187, entitled

An Act to provide for the protection and preservation of game game-quadrupeds and game-birds and song and insectivorous and other wild birds and prescribing penalties for violation of its several provisions.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendments and ask unanimous consent to insert the same.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

The Clerk then read the amendments as follows:

Amend section 12, page 18, line 24, by inserting after the word "raven" the word "and" and by striikng out the words "and the herons."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to insertions of the amendments at this time? Is there any objection? The Chair hears objection.

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of special amendment.

Mr. RAMSEY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER declared the ayes seem to have it.

Whereupon,

A division was called for, and seventy-nine gentlemen having voted in the affirmative and eighty-one in the negative, the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the bill which I just now attempted to amend and the amendments which I asked to have inserted in the bill, have been agreed upon by the sponsor of the bill, by the Chairman of the Game Committee, by the Secretary of the Game Commission, if you please, and by every one with whom I have talked in regard to these amendments. The Game Code, which you are asked to vote upon, was drafted by a committee of sportsmen who gathered in Harrisburg and who were sent here as delegates from the various sportsman organizations throughout Pennsylvania to draft this bill. They prepared an act and had it introduced for your consideration. It has been amended pro and con from the beginning to the end, and if they were to read the act that they submitted to the legislature they would not know whether it was the act they drafted or not. In this bill is incorporated the innocent little words "and the heron", which I asked you a minute ago to strike out. These three words, if you please, nullify the entire plummage act of Pennsylvania and throw this State open again, and the heron is laid open again to be killed and the plummage carted to every millinery establishment in this State. If the men of this Legislature want to pass legislation of that kind, simply to meet the whims and demands of the milliners of Pennsylvania, then it is composed of different men from what I thought. I asked on last Monday night to have this bill called up for the purpose of amendment. The excuse given me was that it would delay the passage of the bill. That was one week ago. The old excuse is offered, "Let it go over to the Senate." I do not believe in letting the work of this House go over to the Senate. If there are amendments to be made let us make them here. Then if it goes over there the Senate will not be asked to do our work. I have asked to amend the bill, and the House refused to allow me to insert the amendments so I will ask the members of this House to vote down this amendment, and if at that time the amendments are acceded to, then we can reconsider the vote by which the bill was defeated and have it amended. In its present form I would ask you to vote against it.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I hope that you will appreciate the position that I am placed in in taking charge of House Bill No. 187. My good friend from Blair has made the statement that even the Chairman of the Committee on Game had promised him these amendments. If I did promise the gentleman from Blair what he has alleged that I have promised, I must have done so in my sleep. What I did promise the gentleman from Blair was this: That I assured him upon my honor that the amendments that he wished would be offered in the Senate,—that is what I promised the gentleman from Blair.

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. POWELL. When I am through. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I am firmly of the belief that the bill now before you for your consideration is without a doubt one of the best game laws that has ever been presented to this body. It was necessary for me to have some notes made because I had not intended to go into the bill in detail, leaving that to the original sponsor; but the original sponsor of this bill left here last week and left word that I should take charge of the bill and I am carrying out that wish.

Relative to this bill in general would say that this bill is the law as it stands to-day relative to the taking of game, and was prepared at the instance of many sportsmen, who asked that an effort be made to condense the many acts relative to this subject into one act. Our present legislation on game and wild birds has been the result of an effort of more than thirty years, and those supporting the work were compelled to secure by "piece meal" the legislation now on our statute books relative to this subject. At the present time, the various acts and their amendments are not easily understood by the layman, and this bill covers about thirteen (13) different acts, as you will note. In the codification of our present law into this bill it took many weeks of careful painstaking work, and, in general, I believe that the bill is the best of its kind ever introduced in the State of Pennsylvania. The Legislative Reference Bureau assisted and counselled us in its compilation, and it is now in such shape that when the sportsmen read the provisions of this act, they will have all the provisions of law relative to the taking of game, and also the protection of wild birds.

The material new features in this bill are as follows:

Section 10, paragraph 2, page 16: This paragraph is considered necessary to safeguard our game birds and animals against unscrupulous dealers whose sole consideration is the profit derived from the handling of same. The Livestock Sanitary Board under their present law has authority to make such inspections, and this is, therefore, not a new feature, but merely an attempt to set same forth clearly in this act.

Section 12, paragraph 2, page 18: The latter portion of this paragraph gives a list of birds which may be killed at any time. The sportsmen at their conference on January 4th added to this list a number of hawks and owls, as well as the herons. At this time there is considerable question about the benefit or harm done by many of these birds, and while taking protection away from these additional hawks and owls will but little increase the number killed annually, still when one of them is killed the person so doing will not be subject to a penalty, as is now the case. Frequently farmers kill some of these hawks which are now protected, because they believe they are doing them harm through the destruction of poultry, and in some instances they are killed while in the act of carrying off a fowl, which they should have a right to do.

Section 14, page 19: The seasons as fixed in this bill were decided upon in joint committee, as you know.

Section 15, page 21: The limits as fixed in this section are as agreed upon by the joint committee.

Paragraph 2, found on page 23, is merely setting forth specifically the interpretation now given to our law relative to this same matter.

Section 16, page 24: Shooting game from an automobile and the use of a silencer have been included in the methods through which game shall not be taken.

Page 25: The taking of rabbits through box traps by children under fourteen years of age was agreed upon by the Game Committee, as you will remember.

Section 20, page 28: The first part of this section is the law to-day, but the latter part gives an officer the right to administer oaths in cases where he has reason to believe the law is being violated. This power should be granted without a question, as it would assist in running down and punishing violators of the law, and be to the benefit of all legitimate sportsmen, this feature having been approved by the Sportsmen's Conference.

Section 21, page 31: This section has been approved by the Sportsmen's Conference in an effort to limit the excessive kills now annually made by camps, who monopolize a certain territory and kill off the bucks, while the surrounding camps are left. There are no camps of true, blue-blooded sportsmen in Pennsylvania who now kill more than three to five deer.

Section 22, page 32: This section has been strongly endorsed by sportsmen in an endeavor to restrict large bodies of men, either camping together or camping in close proximity, from forming a long line of watchers and a line of drivers, and killing every thing within a large radius. You will notice that this section does not in any way limit the number of men that may camp together, but requires large camps to each day divide up into bodies of not more than twelve for that particular hunt, and the next hunt may be re-arranged in any manner deemed advisable so long as not more than twelve hunt together for deer and six for turkeys. This section will not affect hunters who want to be fair and reasonable.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, the order of the House is of such a character that it is impossible to hear the remarks of the gentleman who is speaking and I for one should like to hear them.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has rapped a number of times during the gentleman's address, and hopes the House will be in order while the gentleman is making his address.

Mr. POWELL. Section 26, page 35, paragragh 2: This paragraph insofar as it imposes a penalty for failure to restrain dogs is new, but is urgently needed to correct this condition. The loss of a worthless dog means nothing, and at this time the only thing an officer can do is catch the dog chasing game and kill it, but with this small penalty attached the owner or person in control will see to it that his dog is restrained as it should be.

Section 27, paragraph 5, on page 38: The latter portion of this paragraph relative to Belgian and German hares, or any other animal raised in captivity, but not found in a wild state in this Commonwealth, is fair and reasonable, and should be supported in its entirety. At this time the law requires a license to sell Belgian and German hares, but since these animals are not found in a wild state, there is no reason why breeders of these animals should not be permitted to raise and sell the same just as poultry would be sold, without any restriction.

Section 30, page 40: This section permits the trapping of ring-neck pheasants the same as quail for keeping them over the winter, and also permits this trapping from December 1st instead of January 1st as at present.

Section 32, page 41: This section has been amended so that large game may be shipped by express or freight when properly marked. At this time, large game as well as small game can be shipped only when accompanied by the owner.

Section 32, page 42, paragraph 3: The latter part of this paragraph relative to shipping specimens to taxidermists is the interpretation now placed on the balance of this section by this office, and is only placed here to make this point entirely clear to sportsmen.

Now, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, in behalf of the Committee on Game, I wish to impress upon you the patience required by your committee in drafting this bill. We had no less than two public hearings. We had no less than two joint hearings and at these hearings and meetings the doors were open and anybody was privileged to attend. I am surprised to find upon my desk to-night a bulletin presumed to be printed by the Wild Life League and I desire to make this statement, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, that the very publisher of that article was present before the committee and the committee considered that the law drafted met with the approval of the sportsmen and the Wild Life League.

I understand that there has been an effort also put forth, on account of the absence of the sponsor of the bill, that the bill should not be taken up; but I offer at this time the reasons why the bill should be taken up. The open season for small game, as provided in the new code, commences on the fifteenth of October for woodcock. The balance of the small game commences on the first of November, ending on the fifteenth day of December. A new feature in this law is that the small game, rabbits and pheasants, are brought into the deer season, giving the right to the man who likes to hunt for big game the privilege, if he so desires, to shoot at small game.

In relation to the amendments as proposed by the gentleman from Blair, I have been informed that if these amendments were allowed to be presented in the House that it would delay the bill no less than four days, and I have assured the gentleman, and I still assure the gentlemen of the House, that the amendments pertaining to the plumage question will positively be taken care of in the Senate and I give that pledge on my word of honor.

I trust gentlemen, that you can see your way clear whereby you can support this bill which I belive to be the best bill you have ever had before you on the game question.

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, if I conveyed the impression to the House that the Chairman of the Game Committee had made me any promises I want to correct that statement, but I do say that the Chairman of the Game Committee agreed with me that these amendments that I offered should be incorporated in this bill and that the sponsor of the bill agreed that the amendments that we offered should be incorporated in the bill, and that the Secretary of the Game Commission agreed that they should be incorporated in the bill but the reason for my offering these amendments on third reading was that no one seemed to assume responsibility or cared to assume responsibility for this section of the act which I attempted to strike out. It has been blamed on various people but I cannot find them; it has been shifted to the head of other bureaus of the Commonwealth, but these men when interviewed knew nothing of it and refused to assume rsponsibility for this paragraph.

Mr. CHARLES A. SHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I am for this bill as it is at present for this reason. We are a county that pays about four thousand dollars in licenses. There are two things in this bill that have been changed but they suit my county as well as other counties. I accept from November first to December fifteenth, but would prefer to the thirty-first of December if it could be had. I recall that the gentleman from Chester the other day, Senator Eyre, said that Chester county pays a license of six thousand dollars a year. Woodcock was likewise changed to the fifteenth of October, but these two things in the rural districts are essential and I am for the bill, and I cannot say that it should not be changed, but if it is not this bill should be passed, I think, as it is now before the House.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides on page 19 of the act that the small game season shall be changed from the first day of November to the fifteenth day of December. Two years ago when we started to make up the Game Code we had in mind two things. The first was the protection of human life and the second was the conservation of game. You must take this into consideration—there are three kinds of sportsmen: One is the game hog, commonly so-called, the man who wants to kill everything he sees; the other is the man who kills game and leaves it lie; and the third is the sportsman to which I believe two-thirds of this House belong, namely, the nature-loving sportsman. He is not the man who goes out in the woods with his gun and kills everything he sees. He likes to go out and hunt and take pictures of animals to hand down to his posterity, and you, Mr. Speaker, will be glad when you get to be eighty years old when you can take your grandson out in the woods and say "There goes a deer or a rabbit or a pheasant" and when you want to take him into your parlor and show him a picture of birds and animals you have taken. We are not here as men who want to kill everything they see but we are here to conserve the game of Pennsylvania. We must have co-operation and we must have legislation and we are here to-day, in the latter part, to try to legislate. Now, in 1915 that Act of Assembly provided that dogs shall be kept out of the woods when they went hunting for deer, and all small game came in on the first of November and they could kill it until the first of December. It was followed up by the large hunter and this was the cause of the killing of a great deal of game and these are the influences that we want to get away from. We want to pass some kind of a law and do something to conserve game. The gentleman who has just preceded me and some others are interested in the same thing; they are interested in the game laws that will be for the benefit of real sportsmen. Just think of three hundred thousand sportsmen taking out licenses last year and almost two hundred thousand farmers who did not have to take out license going out in the woods hunting game. Think of the conservation it would take to supply this State of Pennsylvania with an army such at this and with the dogs; and now you want to make it six weeks. Is not one month enough to kill rabbits and other game for the real sportsmen in Pennsylvania. I ask not as a man who goes right out to hunt and kill everything but as a man who goes out for the sport, is not four weeks enough for everyone and is four weeks not much better than six weeks? We have tried this proposition in the larger sections and one man goes out after deer and he takes his shot and finishes up the balance of the hunting on rabbits and birds and he places them on the walls of that camp and who is going to tell whether he violated any law or not. He goes on a drive—we start out six or eight men abreast and we make a noise and howl and shoot off guns and all that sort of thing to drive deer out and this man will shoot everything he sees, and if this law goes into effect it will be a useless slaughter of game and four weeks is enough for small game in the State of Pennsylvania. I do appeal to you as a conservation proposition to-night that four weeks is entirely enough for small game in the State of Pennsylvania which will allow us to hunt our small game and our deer and conserve the game in the forests of Pennsylvania and not slaughter it and throw it away.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Clearfield.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, with pleasure.

Mr. DELL. You were one of the active members of the Game Committee of 1915?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes sir.

Mr. DELL. Is it not a fact that you helped to draft the Game Bill in 1915?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes sir.

Mr. DELL. Is it not a fact that in 1915 the bill that you drafted provided for six weeks actual hunting?

Mr. PHILLIPS. No sir.

Mr. DELL. Did not the law of 1915 provide for hunting of rabbits from 15th of October until the last day of November?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes sir.

Mr. DELL. Is it not a fact that we are only asking for the same season you provided for in the bill of 1915?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes sir. But you have it at the wrong and.

Mr. DELL. I desire to know why the gentleman tried to make a false impression by making a statement not in harmony with the bill he wrote in 1915? I ask the gentleman to answer me that question.

Mr. PHILLIPS. No sir. In answer to that I wish to say to my friend from Huntingdon, Mr. Dell, that a majority of the people in 1915 said that it was too warm to go hunting on the 15th of October and we extended it to the last day of November and threw the first two weeks in for good measure because nobody seems to want to go then and for the full six weeks. Four weeks is enough at any time.

Mr. DELL. I asked the gentleman a question; why in the Act of 1915 was it made six weeks instead of four weeks, as he has said.

Mr. PHILLIPS. If I gave that impression I did not mean to make it and I will apologize to the House for doing so.

Mr. DELL. Now, on the fourth day of January of this year the sportsmen of Pennsylvania met in this building for the purpose of considering a Game law. If I mistake not the gentleman from Clearfield was at that meeting. I know I was. It was generally conceded that four weeks was a sufficient time during which to take the wild game of the State but when we met in this present Legislature and the Game Committee went into session there was a demand from the southern section of the State for a later season. The people from the northern section of the State demanded an earlier season. The committee at first drafted a bill so that the taking of small game the other time should be allowed. The people of the southern section of the State said we are robbing them of the right to hunt and in order that we might be fair to them we agreed finally with a number of those who represented the northern part of the State to permit the taking of woodcock from the fifteenth day of October. They said to us at that time that if we would permit the taking of woodcock from the fifteenth day of October, they would be satisfied. We were about to write the game bill then permitting the taking of all other game just during the month of November, but at our last joint meeting the Senators and the Game Committee, met in joint session and the Senators from the southeastern part of the State came forward and said if you do not allow us to take rabbits during the month of December then the game code amounts to nothing to us. One of the gentlemen said that eighty per cent. of all the hunters' licenses is paid by the people within eighty miles of Philadelphia. So the committee thought it would be wise to compromise with all, and upon that thought the bill was written as it now is, believing that it would meet the requirements of all sections of the State by so doing.

Again Mr. Speaker, and members of this House, we have been importuned by the agricultural interests of this State, men who have said repeatedly, if you permit us to hunt but one month, it debars us from hunting at all, for as every one knows the month of November is the month during which the farmer is busy finishing up his seeding, getting away corn, and taking out the last part of his potatoes, about which we hear so much now. In order that he may have a reasonable time to hunt, he has demanded that we permit him to take rabbits during the month of December. As a matter of fact a delegation of the Grangers of the State came forward and asked us to allow the rabbit season to extend until the 31st day of December. Then we consulted with the Game Commission, and the Secretary of Game said he belived it would be wise to permit the taking of rabbits up until the 15th day of December, and that is why the law was, or the bill was written as it now stands. And then Mr. Speaker, there is another reason why the gentleman who are fighting the bill to-night are opposed to the taking of small game. The gentleman from Clearfield made the statement that he was afraid that if we permitted the taking of small game during the month of December, when the deer hunters were in the woods, somebody would get killed. But, he turned around in the next sentence and said he wants to take deer with the camera. I would like to know how he is going to shoot somebody if he is going to take deer with the camera. Now as a matter of fact, we believe, and I believe the members from the rural sections of the State who are in this House to-night will agree with me, that if the small season, the season for taking small game, is permitted to go over until the month of December, there will not be more than half as many men in the woods hunting for deer as at the present time. At the present time every boy who is able to carry a gun, is in the woods hunting for deer, and the boy shoots promiscuously, but if you permit the hunting of rabbits by the boy, who hunts with a dog, he will take his dog and he will enter the field and there will be no dogs in the woods where the deer is, nor will there be hunting in the woods where the deer are by the boys. I tell you Mr. Speaker that the bill as it is written now will conserve life rather than destroy it, because it will keep a great many men out of the woods who would be in the woods if the boys were not permitted to hunt rabbits at that time. As one representing the rural district of the State, I insist as far as my vote is concerned, that rural members shall have a right to hunt as well as the sportsmen. The rural members cannot take a week off, these farmers cannot take a week to shoot as those that can go when they will do, but they must hunt at a time when it is not fit to do anything else, and if you extend the season on until the 15th day of December, you have not made it one whit longer than it was under the Act of 1915, and you have extended it far enough into the season so that the farmer will have his work done, so that he can go out and enjoy some of the pleasures of hunting some of the game that has fed off his growing crop. I hope the gentlemen of this House will go with us.

Mr. SIGGINS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I too, am from one of the rural counties of this Commonwealth. I am informed by the sportsmen of my county that this Game Code closes the squirrel season. I am informed that there are no squirrels in my county after the first of November. I am so informed by the sportsmen, by the Local Camp, and by the Game Warden, and for that reason I am against the bill. We should have our right to hunt. If you want the people of one section of the State to have the right to hunt, that is immaterial to me, but give our people the same right to go squirrel hunting, give the people of my county and of northwestern Pennsylvania the right to go squirrel hunting. Another feature, is the feature that was mentioned by the gentleman from Clearfield, the hunting of deer. If you are in a county where deer are found, you will realize the fact that people hunt deer with heavy guns. If the bird season, and the small game season, is also in the deer season, a person is very apt to take a hunting coat for a deer, and there will be loss of life. That very thing has happened in my own county. There was a public hearing on this bill. When the bill read from the first of November to the first of December, the representatives of the city from all over the State were called in and objected to the season as fixed by the bill. A very great many of them said at that time there ought to be a compromise of the season, and while we do not want to hunt squirrel all the month of October, they were at least going to give us ten days, commencing on October 20. Subsequently at a meeting which was not called, as I understand it, as a public hearing, this was changed. Therefore, gentlemen, I hope in all fairness that you will vote against and defeat this bill as it stands at the present time.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House. I hope you will indulge me for a few minutes, I realize that there have been lengthy discussions of this bill, by many gentlemen of the House, but I represent large game associations. There is a lot of interest being taken up in my county The woods have been stocked with game and a greater interest has been taken than for years gone by. Upwards of ten to fifteen chartered game associations exist in my county. I want to say as to this bill that I am not familiar with all the provisions of the bill, but one feature of this bill that meets with approval of my section of the State is the open season. Our people are decidedly in favor of having the season open for small game from the first of November till the 15th of December as provided for in this bill. Our associations want that all through Schuylkill County and as far as I know they want it in Northumberland County, and the other neighboring counties. I remember one gentleman from Shamokin who appeared before the hearing here and spoke decidedly in favor of this season between these dates.

Now, gentlemen of the House, we have quite a few working people in my county who cannot go out on a vacation for a week or so to hunt, but they go out probably in the evenings and on Saturday afternoons, and the season is certainty not too long for these people. They only get a few days in a season, and I wish to bring this message to you from my county, that we are thoroughly in accord with this provision of the code, and I ask you gentlemen of the House to sustain the code on this provision.

Mr. HELT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I want to ask your indulgence for just one moment with reference to the remarks of our friend from Clearfield. He did not go far enough when he stated that the big game hunters would plaster their camp with small game if this bill were passed extending the season until the fifteenth of December. Isn't it a fact that the big game hunter is the one who is trying to hold up the bill at the present time? If you have investigated this to any extent, have you found or have you ever heard of the big game hunters keeping their tables with the small game shot when the small game hunters are out of the woods altogether?

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 13, entitled

An Act relative to the carrying use and sale of dangerous weapons

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker and fellow representatives: Before casting your vote upon this most important measure, I desire to call your attention, to the fact, that no bill, I repeat no bill, gentlemen, was ever passed by this honorable body that means more to the welfare of this Commonwealth, than the one upon which you are now to pass judgment.

Gentlemen, I would respectfully ask you to bear in mind, that it is almost impossible for me to find words, to properly express the great benefit that this measure will be to the millions of men, women and children of this Commonwealth.

To-night my dear colleagues throughout this great Keystone State, there are thousands of fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters, possibly your own, who are hoping that this intelligent body of red-blooded men will vote for this bill, and give them the protection they have been seeking for years.

To-night, gentlemen, there are thousands of officials entrusted with the administration of your State affairs, who are also hoping that this Legislature will place upon the statute books of this Commonwealth, this bill which they have stamped as one of the sanest measures ever recommended to this honorable body for adoption.

There are in various parts of this State, a few individuals who are against this measure, because they cannot set aside selfish interests, selfish interests, gentlemen, to make a few paltry dollars, knowing that their measly profit means the slaughter of their own friends, their own neighbors, and their fellow Americans. Their greed for gold is greater than their patriotism. Their patriotism is of a kind that cries out for the spilling of the blood of their mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters, and even of babies, by exposing the lives of their ones, to rampages of reckless individuals, to whom they can sell a dangerous weapon, in order to make a little money even at such a great cost.

Now gentlemen, I will take only a few moments of your valuable time to explain the real purpose of this bill so that you can cast your vote under no misapprehension and I feel sure that when you thoroughly comprehend its contents you will not hesitate to show your patriotism for good laws by loudly registering your vote in its favor.

Briefly speaking this bill does not prohibit the sale of many deadly weapons, as some people may have you believe. It does not deprive merchants of this State from earning a legitimate profit on the sale of such weapons. It does not remove a protection which we all must admit is essential in many instances when the protection of human life is at stake.

Gentlemen I ask you to understand that this bill has for its principal object the keeping of dangerous weapons out of the hands of individuals in whose hands they should not be. This bill is purely a measure to regulate the sale of such weapons by setting forth in what manner they may be sold and to whom they shall be sold. I hope gentlemen that you will bear in mind that this bill simply keeps deadly weapons out of the hands of irresponsible, reckless, maliciously-minded people whose easy access to such weapons under present conditions exposes to danger every member of this Legislature each day of your life as well as the lives of your own families and whose easy access to such weapons under no restrictions is rapidly filling the prisons of this great Commonwealth, thereby requiring the expenditures of their maintenance of millions of dollars that should be available for education, good roads, good health and many other more desirable things to the people of this grand Commonwealth.

Possibly in this House to-night there is some father or brother whose son or brother was deprived of the life he was born to live and happiness to enjoy, by being shot down in cowardly fashion and in cold blood by a deadly weapon in the hands of a reckless, irresponsible person.

Gentlemen there is possibly in this House to-night some father, whose son left home one day happy, to enjoy a few hours play with his little companions and a few hours later was carried into that father's house dead with an ugly looking wound in his head or heart, causing sorrow that will never be forgotten and oh, my friends a sorrow that almost makes that father and mother believe that life after years of care in the raising of that son, is not worth living.

Gentlemen I have no son, but to-night I wish I had one so that I could properly realize the great pang and aching heart that would be within my body if that son, whose very presence in my home would radiate happiness, were carried home cold in death as a result of the careless use of a deadly weapon. Oh gentlemen I am sure that if I had such a realization at this moment it would not be a difficult matter for me then to find words to convincingly convey to you one of the purposes of this bill, under which comprehension you surely would join with me in placing this bill upon the statute books of this great Commonwealth, where it should have been years ago.

A few weeks ago I was called into the office of the editor of the Wilkes-Barre Record, one of the leading newspapers of this State, and there that gentleman displayed to me a book containing the list of murders committed in Luzerne county during the past ten or fifteen years. I was amazed. I knew that the toll of life had been terrible, but gentlemen I was amazed when I saw that list. And gentlemen I was startled when that editor told me that each line of the many pages that the list covered, represented the reckless use of a deadly weapon in the hands of an irresponsible person. Each line, each line, he told me with a feeling of pity in his voice, represents the taking of a life for which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is responsible because it permitted the sale of that weapon to an irresponsible person. And when that editor said that conditions in Luzerne depicted only those in other sections of this State, because Luzerne is not criminally inclined, I felt like crying out that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania would hang its head in "shame, shame, shame" if it could see the long list of murders committed by deadly weapons in the hands of irresponsible persons, to whom it permitted the sale of such weapons.

Gentlemen this bill has been endorsed by all the leading newspapers of this State. It has been endorsed by District Attorney Slattery and the judges of Luzerne county as well as the district attorneys and judges of many other counties. It has also been endorsed by all of the police officials of this State. I have in my possession editorials from all the leading journals of this State, giving their stamp of approval to this measure and urging you gentlemen to support it.

Bear in mind again gentlemen that this bill merely regulates the sale of deadly weapons. Briefly speaking it specifies that any firm, corporation or individual having use for such a weapon shall obtain a permit to use the same from the sheriff of the county. It specifies that such a permit shall be issued if the sheriff is satisfied that the firm, corporation, officer or individual is of good character and good standing in the community. If the privileges contained in that permit are abused the license can be revoked. Can't you see gentlemen that under such regulations, irresponsible persons will not find it so easy to secure such weapons and even if they do, how easy it will be to fix the responsibility, which is impossible under present regulations. Can't you see gentlemen that the only persons to whom merchants will not be permitted to sell these weapons are those who have no business with them. This bill protects the merchant in the sale of such weapons.

Several years ago the Legislature of this Commonwealth in its wisdom saw fit to pass a bill preventing the discriminate sale of deadly poisons, by regulating the sale of such drugs. Who in this House to-night will honestly say that that bill was not a good one.

Why, gentlemen, if this Legislature saw fit to regulate the sale of deadly poisons should it not regulate the sale of deadly weapons?

Mr. MEARKLE. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, if I was selected as a committee of one to prepare a piece of legislation for the interests of the criminal and the thug in the State of Pennsylvania I can conceive of no piece of legislation that would suit my purpose better than the bill that is before us for consideration at this time. I do not take exceptions to what the intent or the purpose of the sponsor of this bill is. There is no question but what the purpose, his object and his intention was good, but I do take exceptions to the effect of the act and for the consideration of the House I will just mention—not to take up your time—some of the objections to the bill.

The first is, that only the person, only one person, the person that gets the permit, to whom the permit is issued, is entitled to use that weapon. If, perchance, a highwayman should attempt to enter your house, only the person to whom the permit has been issued is permitted to use that weapon; otherwise he makes himself liable to be fined and imprisoned.

It requires that the person who wants a permit must go before the judge or the high sheriff for the purpose of getting a permit, stating his reasons and giving his pedigree, and if he has sufficient influence with the sheriff the permit is issued; if he has not, the permit is not issued.

He referred to the law of the State of New York. I am reliably informed by the newspapers, copies of which I have in my possession, some of which are editorials, that there is a special effort being made at this time to repeal the Sullivan Law of New York. A part of an editorial from one of our prominent newspapers in the State of Pennsylvania I will just read for your information. It says:

SOME MORE HINDSIGHT

"After an experience with the Sullivan law passed to end the carrying of concealed weapons in New York, the police department there is hard at work to secure its repeal, and, as might have been expected, on the identical grounds urged by the bill's opponents when its was before the Legislature. Instead of prohibiting "gun toting" the law actually gave gunmen and low-grade criminals a legal privilege to go about armed to the terror of law-abiding citizens who as a rule found it difficult or impossible to get consent of the authorities to take means to defend themselves. A gunman, according to a police commissioner, had little trouble to get a permit to carry a gun, while the decent taxpayer either didn't want a revolver or gave up the idea of owning one because of the difficulties and penalties thrown in his way by judicial hands. Possibly if the police had been more sincere in support of the Sullivan law it might not to-day be in disrepute."

In New York State, according to the statistics of the District Attorney's office since the enactment of the Sullivan law, burglary has increased twenty-two and a half per cent.; and I know, as an absolute fact, that in the State of New York since the enactment of this law that burglary insurance, the premium on burglary insurance, has increased forty per cent. The objection to this bill is the one fact that it does not prohibit any man, any boy, or any child from sending to an out of town mail order house, Sears, Roebuck and Company, for instance, and getting any revolver he might want to have shipped into the State of Pennsylvania. The law which makes it inconvenient or difficult for the law-abiding citizen to have protection and licensing criminals and not increasing the number of crimes, that is exactly what this law does: it makes it very difficult for a man to get a permit to carry a revolver or carry a revolver even for his own protection. The gentleman refers to various district attorneys who have examined this act and approved it. I have taken the matter up with the District Attorney of Allegheny County and have gone over it very carefully with him and I am pleased to read his letter to the House and I therefore ask you to vote against this bill.

"Pittsburgh, Pa., April 9th, 1917.

"Hon. W. W. Mearkle,

"House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pa.

"My dear Mr. Mearkle: Circumstances prevented my meeting you on Saturday, and that I may get to you my views on House Bill No. 13, I write this, mailing it to Harrisburg.

"I have read your comments on the Bill, and in the main I agree with you. The prohibitions of this bill strike the ordinary man as unreasonable, what we need is to restrain the owning and carrying of deadly weapons by aliens. We have an act that prevents aliens from owning guns, that is shot guns and rifles, passed for the protection of game, what we now need is a similar act for the protection of human beings by prohibiting foreigners, that is aliens from owning revolvers, black jacks and knives. The trouble does not lie in the ownership of weapons of defense by citizens, either native born or naturalized, the "Black Hander" and "Thug" is in nearly all cases found to be an alien, and where we do find the citizen carrying a weapon, if he be a naturalized foreigner, the reason he assigns is the fear of attack by the vicious alien, and my experience leads me to believe that he is justified in most cases.

"I think I agree with all that you have said in your notes against this bill, and my opinion, after examination of it is that it would operate against the law abiding citizens and to the advantage of the "Black Hander" and "Thug.". It must be borne in mind that in a county such as Allegheny, the class of men to whom the restriction here provided, ought to apply, are to a great extent "Floaters," and the difficulties that readily suggest themselves to the enforcement of this act, would, I think, make it inoperative.

"I am enclosing your notes.

"Yours with best wishes,

(Signed) R. H. JACKSON,
District Attorney."

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, this bill comes from an origin where special conditions exist and is a laudable effort to correct these conditions. I don't believe that it will correct the man who wants to commit crime under present conditions who will usually get hold of a weapon. The ordinary good law-abiding citizen may have a gun and have a weapon in his house or carry one with him when traveling or otherwise and will not want to take the trouble to secure a license from the Sheriff of his county if he purposes to carry a concealed weapon. It will place him at a distinct disadvantage. Anyone of us who wants to have a revolver in his home, for any purpose whatsoever will have to go before the sheriff to get a certificate of good moral character and go through all the red tape described by this act before he can do so. The trouble with the conditions in Luzerne County, and other counties, whose members advocate the passage of this bill is that the present law in the statute books is not properly enforced. Any person who now carries a deadly weapon must, if arrested and charged with that crime, show to the satisfaction of the jury that he did not carry it with the intent of doing harm to any person. In nine cases out of ten that a man is inclined to break the law and is caught with the weapon upon his person he will be convicted and in putting this law upon the statute books you only add another law which will not be enforced, and we have too many of that sort at the present time. I trust that the House will not abridge the rights of law-abiding citizens for the benefit of those who desire to commit crime and take away the powers of resistance on the part of law-abiding citizens and permit those who want to engage in crime to carry weapons.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have received a letter which I will read regarding this bill No. 13:

REGARDING MR. THOMAS' FIREARMS BILL NO. 13.

Article 1, Section 20 of Constitution states: "The rights of a citizen to bear arms in defense of himself and the State, shall not be questioned."

Bill 13 is retroactive. It would convict of crime for an ownership previous to passage of act. A permit would be necessary to possess a revolver, even if an old relic.

Bill 13 will safeguard the criminal class. Any law which would lessen the risks to the criminal, would encourage crime. The Lawless element know that the citizen class hesitate to break a law and with the knowledge that the average house was unarmed, the criminal pursues his vocation unafraid.

An out of state party motoring through Pennsylvania with a small arm for protective purposes, will be subject to fine of $500.00 and two years imprisonment solitary confinement unless they possess permit to possess a revolver. It would be necessary to procure this permit from a Judge of Court of Record. It would therefore make it impossible in this instance to comply with this provision. During summer months the roads and mountains invite strolling men of criminal records, and for the tourist to go unarmed, is to invite hold-ups. On occasions where necessary to use precautions against the lawless, whether in the citizens' home, his place of business, or motoring, every militant act of the citizen against the lawless criminal class, discourages the criminal to prey on innocent victims, just as the criminal class are encouraged to further acts of violence, when they meet with no armed resistance from the citizen class of law abiding people. On page 4, lines 28 and 29, bill 13, make it practicably impossible for a party from a sister state coming into Pennsylvania, to possess a protective arm.

As an extreme illustration, on page 2, line 10, a citizen would be liable for having on his person a knife or razor (Maybe having it honed), as the possession is presumptive evidence of contemplated crime.

A person may secure a permit to possess providing the High Sheriff is satisfied of the moral character of applicant. If permit is secured for home, it must not be removed therefrom, and if the householder in an endeavor to capture a thief should proceed outside his house in the pursuit, he would technically become a criminal. If bank or express messenger was replaced by another, then it becomes necessary to procure another permit. See page 4, lines 5 to 19.

The High Sheriff in certain cases where, in addition to the moral character of the applicant being established, he has proof before him that proper cause exists, can issue a permit to carry a revolver off the premises. Can any one imagine a criminal applying for a permit to buy or possess a weapon, when there are so many clandestine sources of procuring a revolver? See page 4, lines 20 to 26.

Should visitors at your home, late in departing, consider it wise to have a revolver to safeguard them—possibly over a lonely road or mountain—you could not loan them a weapon without becoming a criminal yourself as well as making them also liable for fine and imprisonment. See page 7, Sec. 5, lines 6 to 10. This bill 13 stipulates that a revolver must not be sold—or otherwise disposed of.

If permit is secured to possess revolver in ones home, only the person to whom permit is issued, could lawfully use the revolver. See page 4, lines 5 to 19.

Bill 13 would make it easy to "plant" a weapon on some innocent person and have him sent to prison, lawfully. This has been, and is now, a practice in New York State under the Sullivan Act. The Sullivan law is similar to bill 13, and the results of this Law bear irrefutable testimony to not only failing to prevent undesirable persons getting revolvers but the law has actually increased the number of criminals in the state, with corresponding spreading of crime. Would it not therefore, be an outrage on the state, with all this evidence at hand, to make bill 13 a law?

Here are some authentic figures: Since the Sullivan law was enacted, crime in New York has increased 22½ per cent. Following shows the increase in killing. Murders: 1913—27. 1914—31. 1915—65. Manslaughters: 1912—34. 1913—38. 1914—49. 1915—65. (These figures are taken from District Attorney's Office Records. Figures for 1916 are not yet available). Since the passage of the Sullivan Law rates on Burglary Insurance have increased 40 per cent. to keep pace with the spread of crime. In N. Y. State holdups and House breaking have become so frequent, that Supreme Justice Goff stated for publication: "That terrible piece of legislation called the Sullivan Law a law which works injury to the honest citizen against the crook, etc." (N. Y. Papers Dec. 9th and 10th, 1913) N. Y. World: "If courts do not wholly invalidate it, next session should repeal it." N. Y. Sun: "Sullivan Law has not only made the state sponsor, but ridiculous." Many of the courts in N. Y. State have either wholly or in part, invalidated this act by refusing to convict.

It is an undeniable fact that any child, or an alien writing in his own tongue, can send out of state to mail order house and have one or 100 revolvers delivered to any address in a few days. This shows the fallacy of the permit to purchase, in any way accomplishing any reform.

Every citizen under stress, will defy laws interfering with his rights, and rather than undergo the uncertainty and the formalities of procuring this permit, with the time and delay, will either defer the purchase of weapon for Home Defense, or else send to out of town mail order house for same. Thus the trade of more than 16,000 legitimate dealers of the state who pay taxes, is interfered with.

Present statute No. 33 Act of March 18th, 1875, if enforced, will punish and tend to prevent crime. Bill 13 will punish the law abiding citizen, and build up the criminal class. Police Department Heads of all cities are empowered at any time, by police order, to stop sale of firearms, in case of riots, etc. Is it wise, with our country at war, to pass any bill taking away citizens' rights to protect themselves against the lawless class?

Mr. NEARY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Davis.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. NEARY. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman who wrote the letter he just read.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the letter came from the Schwank Hardware Company of the city of Johnstown.

Mr. NEARY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, just a moment. It is from the largest wholesale department of its kind in the State of Pennsylvania outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh—responsible and reliable.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, when this bill was first sent to us, as all of us must have received it from Mr. Slattery, a few months ago, I went into it with considerable care. It so happens that I have a large collection of arms, and it also happens that I enjoy at times carrying them with me. There are times when it is probably necessary, and when I read the act it occurred to me that it would interfere with what I might deem my liberty. I found under the terms of this act as I first considered it, I could not go gunning and take my little fellow with me and have him carry the gun, and I thought that therefore the act was a bad one and should not be passed. But after a more mature consideration of this act I came to the conclusion that my first thought was wrong, and after hearing to-night the approval which the act had received from the Chief Dectective of our city, and from District Attorney of our county, as well as one of the law officers of Pittsburgh, it occurred to me that the bill deserved the greatest kind of consideration, favorable comment as well as passage. Now the gentlemen from Cambria, sir, has read in the opening words of his letter the remarks that the Constitution would be infringed by the passage of this act, because he read that section of the Constitution which provides that the citizens of the Commonwealth may carry arms in defense of the State. Mr. Speaker I have not lived long enough to see many wars, but I have never yet seen a soldier carrying a concealed weapon. I noticed to-day as I came to the train that the soldiers in the streets of Philadelphia had on their right thighs automatic pistols in holsters, but they were not concealed, everybody knew what they were. Now this act provides that children under the age of 16 shall not be permitted to have arms, and in that regard it only makes more definite that which the law to-day says is proper. It further provides what I have never seen in the law, it may be stated, but I have not noticed it, and that is, it is unlawful for a person to have bombs. Every one of us who have been reading the newspapers know that the great trench warfare in Europe to-day is carried on with bombs, and those things are far more dangerous, by many, many per cent., than the pistol. That is exactly what the act prohibits, the carrying around of concealed weapons, and it differs from the old law as I recall it by providing that the use of them without the necessary license is no longer a misdemeanor but is a felony. I have been informed by one of the district attorneys of Philadelphia that from September to February, there were 700 cases of aggravated assault and battery, and of those cases 450 approximately, were cases where deadly weapons, guns and pistols, were used. Now, sir, it is a known fact to those who practice at the criminal bar of Philadelphia that you can even become intoxicated and go into an open shop or hardware store in certain sections and buy weapons and have them loaded there. This act would make it such a drastic crime, so strong a crime, that knowing it as a felony, a man would have a strong hesitation to meet a court and jury for selling weapons when he knows that his conviction would mean a conviction for felony. I said sir that it might seem to some extent to interfere with some liberties, but it will not interfere with the liberty of the man who wants to abide by the law, and for that reason though it may interfere with our liberty, we ought to forget that for the general good of the people of our State.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

PRAYER.

Our kind Heavenly Father, we realize that governments rise and fall, and institutions prosper and go into decay according to the kind of men that are connected with them. We ask these blessings in our Saviour's name. Amen.

BILLS ON SECOND READING.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 391 (House Bill No. 260), entitled

An Act regulating the purchase of and contract for supplies in cities of the first class in this Commonwealth.

The first section of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That councils in cities of the first class are hereby empowered to authorize the director of supplies in such cities to purchase or procure without public advertisement for bids and without entering into written contracts materials or commodities to the value of one thousand dollars ($1,000) provided that written bids therefor be first invited from at least three persons firms or corporations regularly engaged in the business of manufacturing dealing in furnishing or supplying the same and provided further That when a patented or proprietary article is to be purchased or procured the director of supplies in said cities of the first class may be permitted to accept one bid from the patentee or the person firm or corporation controlling the patented or proprietary article required which bid shall be accompanied with an affidavit stating that the prices quoted are the lowest at which said articles are sold to anyone in the open market

The second section of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

Section 2 Whenever advertised bids are received for furnishing materials or commodities for a stated period and the amount or amounts appropriated and available are not sufficient to cover the requirements for the period stated in the advertisement said councils in cities of the first class may authorize the director of supplies to continue said contract or contracts when further appropriations are made and become available for that purpose or when further requirements become necessary for the period stated and this authorization shall be set forth in the said contract or contracts and shall be binding upon the parties affixing their signatures thereto

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I move to amend by adding a new section to be known as Section 3, as follows:

"Section 3. Whenever a state of war exists between the United States and any other nation or nations, and prospective or actual hostilities bring about commercial conditions which make it practically impossible, because of continually changing prices, to obtain contracts for the furnishing of materials and commodities necessary for the conduct of the government of the cities of the first class, in this Commonwealth, the councils in each city of the first class are hereby empowered to authorize the Director of Supplies thereof to purchase in the open market at the lowest and most advantageous prices that can be obtained, such materials and commodities for the use of the said city without advertising or entering into contracts for the same until such time as hostilities shall cease and normal market conditions are restored."

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I would like to have an explanation of the amendment.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, as I understand this amendment at this time the Director of Supplies is having considerable trouble in getting the various merchants throughout the city to bid on his contract and it puts him in a position where he cannot get the necessary supplies to run his institution. I have in mind this particular instance: A brother of mine supplies the meat in some of these institutions and the last time bids were given out there was not a provision man in the City of Philadelphia who would bid under any condition and the only way they could get a bid from my brother's firm was under an agreement that the Director, in case it would be impossible for him to furnish the things bid on, would see that he would be taken care of. In other words, the director really had to promise to do something that under the law he was not allowed to do and they did bid on furnishing some certain supplies, and when the time came to furnish these meats it was impossible to furnish them, they could not get them and the director had to agree, under the promise that he had made, to take something else. Now, in the present condition of the market, particularly in reference to food supplies, the time comes when a man in the business cannot buy certain things for money, no matter what he agrees to pay for it, the things are not on the market and they cannot be had and it becomes impossible to fill a contract, and in this particular instance that I can recall, my brother's concern was the only one that did bid, no other provision merchant in the City of Philadelphia would bid, and after the bid was accepted he was not in a position to furnish that which he agreed to furnish. Now this would give the Director the opportunity of substituting in place of that which is called for on the schedule some other article and buy it out on the open market for the best price that he could under those conditions; and not only the provision department, but drugs and other articles that the city needs, it is absolutely impossible to get the merchants to bid on those drugs, and this will give the Director authority where he cannot get a bid to go out and buy the necessary supplies to run the institution.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, does it not also give unlimited authority?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I do not think it gives him that authority. This asks for concessions only under conditions as they now exist. In these times of war where supplies cannot be gotten and many of these articles cannot be bought for money, no matter how much money you have, you cannot buy them because you cannot get the goods. It is physically impossible to fill these contracts and a physical impossibility for the Director to go and get the necessary things for the running of the institutions, and I tell you this one particular institution simply had to go ouside of his power and do somehing which he had no right to do in order that the inmates of the institution could be fed and it would work great hardship on the inmates of the institution. These are unusual conditions and this is an unusual request, but it is a request made for unusual times and I do not see how the Director will be able to run his department unless he is given this privilege.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I do not want to put myself in the light of an objector as to unusual conditions, but this certainly is a most extraordinary amendment and confers extraordinary powers upon a public offiical who will under this amendment have the right to go out into the open market and contract not only for one hundred, or five hundred, or a thousand dollars' worth of material or breadstuff, but he will be entitled and empowered to absolutely contract for an unlimited amount of money and without advertisement or otherwise. Of course these are unusual conditions. Men in business are having unusual troubles at times to obtain and to purchase material, just as the government has, but if those things are not possible to be provided for the inmates there is certain information that the department needs and the department should make its schedule accordingly, but to open the door to any public official to be permitted to indiscriminately contract for any amount up to one hundred, two hundred or five hundred thousand dollars' worth of material, which this amendment will give, I think is opening the door to a condition which we will require many months to pass over our heads before we recover from it. I hope the Senator from Philadelphia will consider this in the sense of objecting not for any personal reasons, but for the care and protection that we all should have in surrounding city officials and the people of Philadelphia with proper protection. If the condition is such that it is impossible to receive the different articles provided for in that schedule, let the department do just as each individual in his home is doing and just as we have been taught in the papers the last week, and will be for the next six months, cut our cloth according to conditions and subscribe ourselves to certain conditions existing throughout the whole country.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, the proposition would be very good if it could be done, but no man can know what is going to happen to-morrow, no man can tell which particular article of food we will be able to get or not get to-morrow. This is a different proposition from that which we have in our homes. In these propositions a schedule calls for a certain article to be supplied for three months in advance. If in your own home you cannot get beef to-day, the housewife orders mutton, or she will order veal, or ham, she will get something to eat; but these schedules call for a certain article for a period of three months. If a man bids to supply mutton on a certain day it means mutton on that day, or beef for a certain day it means beef on that day, and the contractor has no authority under present conditions to change. Now then, if he cannot get those things on that day he either has to let the inmates of that institution go without their victuals or buy something else which the law says he has no right to do. This is regulated by Councils and if the Director of Supplies should happen to do something that was wrong or go beyond his authority the Councils could immediately call him to time and make him go according to what is right. The Mayor of Philadelphia is for this amendment and I know from my own experience and from my knowledge of the institutions as to how they are being run, that it is absolutely necessary to give this authority to the Director at this time or else the inmates in those institutions are going to suffer for the necessities of life, that they will not have the food that is due them when the time comes for them to get it. Of course, I realize that it is stretching the authority of the Director far beyond that which the Director or anybody else would want it to be, but I do not see that there is any other recourse but to take that chance and with the present Director of Supplies, whom we all know in the City of Philadelphia, so far as he is concerned, there cannot be any question as to the fact that the institutions, or the department, will be run with the strictest economy and for the benefit of all the people.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, the glowing account of the conditions as described by the Department of Supplies in the City of Philadelphia is to my mind on the part of the Senator from Philadelphia exaggerated slightly. We have as a part of the public institutions been accumulating for the last five or six years large acreages of ground for the purpose of providing vegetables, poultry, and stuff of that kind, to a large degree, by which the City of Philadelphia would be better prepared to meet an emergency of this kind than any individual or private concern is. The only difference that might exist to-day as the conditions that exist otherwise is as to our meat stuff. Now, we gave the Director an order and I was in consultation with the Director of Supplies last week, he only asked for the privilege of a one thousand dollar fund to go out on the market and purchase as he may see fit. It does not limit him to one thousand dollars, but if necessary he can take the one thousand dollars and use it for emergency purposes as he sees fit up to one hundred thousand, if necessary, provided he has the consent of Councils. We opened the door in a partial way by the original bill and we now ask by this amendment that we open the door the whole way so that if it is one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on one transaction the Director is justified, under this amendment, to go out under the law and provide whatever in his judgment he sees fit. It is only the custom and practice I object to, because he is not in any different position from the material man. We are contracting to do work that is going to take three, four and five years to do. We are anticipating and are giving bond to the City of Philadelphia to provide a safeguard to the people of Philadelphia. So, if prices do go up we are the responsible people and not the people of Philadelphia.

Therefore I think the City of Philadelphia has no more to fear than an individual contractor. I think the insertion of this amendment is a dangerous precedent for this Senate to establish.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Philadelphia Mr. Vare, withdraw his second?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I do.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. EYRE. Mr. President, I voted "no"

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, after canvassing the Senate I found there was some misapprehension and misconception of the purpose of this bill. Now, I desire that the Senate shall reconsider this bill, and if it does, I am perfectly willing to amend the bill to suit the Senators, especially those who object and feel that the Auditor General desires to impose upon himself more authority than he has at present. Before the Appropriations Committee yesterday the Auditor General, Mr. Powell, made a statement that the Economy and Efficiency Commission was an important one, especially with Mr. McDevitt at the head, and he believed there should be some department of the government in which this office should be continued, and, therefore, I ask that the Senate reconsider the bill and to-morrow morning you may amend it if you desire to pass it. I am satisfied that the Governor or anybody else shall appoint this officer, just so it goes through.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, after consulting with several Senators, it would be perfectly agreeable that the bill, if it passes the Senate this morning, shall be amended by the committee in the House, if it sees fit.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 490, entitled

An Act prohibiting the solicitation, payment or receipt in any public building in any city of the first class of any money or valuable thing for political purposes; prohibiting the solicitation or receipt by or from officers or employes of cities of the first class of contributions for political purposes; prohibiting the payment by officers or employes of cities of the first class of contributions for political purposes; prescribing dismissal from public office as a penalty for violation thereof; prescribing methods of enforcing this penalty, and providing that any violation of this act shall be punished as a misdemeanor.

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer amendments to this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments for information.

The Clerk then read the amendments as follows:

Amend section 1, line 5, by striking out the words "of the first class."

Amend section 2, line 9, by striking out the words "of the first class."

Amend section 3, line 13, by striking out the words "of the first class."

Amend section 5, line 26, by striking out the words "of the first class."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the insertion of the amendments at this time?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, my object in introducing this amendment at this time to this particular bill presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, in reference to taking employes out of politics and to prohibit them from making any contributions. If it is a good thing for Philadelphia why is it not also a good thing for the entitre State of Pennsylvania We should not stand by and let Philadelphia have everything that is good. I think we are just as much entitled to it as they are down in Philadelphia and I ask you, gentlemen, therefore, to amend this bill so that we can have it in the entire State and get all of the office holders out of politics.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, do I understand that action on these amendments will require unanimous consent at this time?

The SPEAKER. Yes sir.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, then I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objection.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

MR. RININGER IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. Speaker, when the amendments which were proposed by my friend from Clearfield, Mr. Phillips, which would have made this law applicable to every part of the State, were promptly objected to by the author of it, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, it showed conclusively, to my mind, that the purpose of this bill is simply to affect conditions in Philadelphia and Philadelphia alone. You gentlemen are sufficiently well versed in politics to know that your organization is supported by the followers of it. A proposition of this kind would place in the hands of men of unlimited wealth, men who had the backing of corporate interests, men who could call upon certain interests for contributions to carry on their political campaigns. Why is the interest in this bill solely confined to Philadelphia. My friend, the author of this bill, probably in answer to me will say that this is a bill that had its inception in the minds of men who have been interested in political uplift for years. I am going to say to my friend now, in answer to his statement made last night, relative to the men responsible for this bill, and by way of giving him an opportunity to reply to me, to say whether this bill was not discussed, conceived and finally approved of in the office of the Senior United States Senator in company with Dean Lewis, Mr. John C. Winston and others. The purpose of this bill is not to raise the status of political efficiency; it is not to surround politics with that safeguard that would bring it from the mire, but the entire purpose of this legislation is to hamstring and hamper one particular part of this organization of the State of Pennsylvania—that which is in Philadelphia. Why, if you men from the other parts of this Commonwealth were affected, particularly from Allegheny County, if this bill applied to your county, you would run away from it. Why not be fair? Why try to put it over on us? You men don't want this resolution any more than we do. You men ought not to vote on this resolution; they don't want it away down in your hearts and you don't want it, as they know the value of political organization, and every man on this floor, without exception, has been the beneficiary thereof. Why, you men from the other part of this State should remain silent on legislation of this kind, and let it be settled right in our own delegation from Philadelphia and if you do that you will be doing a great amount of good and save valuable time. This is only done for political effect. Let it be settled right in Philadelphia County, where you will find that it will be settled as we have a majority in that delegate. If you will submit it to the Philadelphia delegation you will find that twenty-four men will vote "no" and seventeen men will vote "aye". Why deprive a man of his rights, if he is attempting to contribute to his party organization? If he does contribute one nickel under this law towards your campaign he will be fined five hundred dollars and sent to jail for one year. If this legislation would be beneficient the amendments proposed by Mr. Phillips would be allowed to be placed in it. Then the sincerity of the vote of the members of this House could be decided. I am sure that all my friends from Allegheny County agree with me when I say that they have no use for this legislation and they do not want to be unfair and they should not attempt to interfere with this proposition which applies to Philadelphia only. I ask the members of this House to vote the bill down.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I cannot help but pay a passing compliment to my genial friend from Philadelphia when he calls into question my objection to the amendments offered to this bill by striking out the words which make it applicable to Philadelphia alone and make it pertain to no other part of the State. I see in the movement to amend this bill a clever piece of political strategy that emanates from the fertile minds of the gentlemen from Philadelphia, and it has no other purpose in view except that which it accomplished. Its purpose was to bring me to the floor with an objection to the amendment. His purpose, on the other hand, was to play a political game in order to appeal to the rest of you from other parts of the State. In both instances, I think, we may fairly conclude that the movement has served its purpose. Whatever there has been of a factional reference to these reform measures has emanated not from this side of the House but from the side represented by my good friend from Philadelphia. I know nothing of any conference held in the office of the Senior Senator of this Commonwealth, nor would it make any difference to me in my support of this bill if any such conference had been held. It is most natural and altogether proper and befitting, that men who take an interest in public affairs should be encouraged from time to time to visit those who take some part in political life in order to discuss with them what it is that they desire in the shape of legislation, and it might be that the appeal might well have been made to the Senior Senator of the State because they probably felt that he would be more likely to support the measure than the eminent gentleman who has just addressed you from Philadelphia. But it is absolutely immaterial what conference may have been held or what motives may lie behind any bill that comes before you in this chamber. Every human act is subject to some motive or other. The world judges by results that are accomplished and what the purpose is in view. If this is a good bill it ought not be voted down because of any advantage that accrues to one side or some disadvantage to the other.

Now this is a bill along the same line as the Shern bill that you have now on the books, which applies to no other part of the State except the City of Philadelphia. So it is not a new thing in that direction. It goes a step further because it provides that men in public office shall not be permitted to use their offices in a public building for the purpose of collecting campaign contributions. It is drawn along the same lines as your Federad Statute is to-day which governs United States employes. They are not allowed to make any political contributions and their superiors are not allowed to send for them or circularize them and ask them to make any contributions. This bill is drawn having a two fold purpose. The first is to prohibit a superior from taxing his subordinate and asking for contribution, and the second is to stop the subordinate from making such contributions in any public building in a city of the first class, such as Philadelphia. The punishment provided in the bill is by no means too drastic. The whole purpose of the bill is to accomplish something in the nature of a civil service reform, badly needed in the City of Philadelphia. I feel that by voting for this bill that you will be taking a step in the direction that we should have gone long ago. You have already gone on record now with the Shern bill which is along the same lines. This is a slight improvement and a further step in the right direction.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Beyer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, the file folio of this bill is 1893, section 5, on page 2 of the bill, line 28, and I would ask the gentleman what is the meaning of the word "separated" in the act as it says that the violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be immediately "separated from the service," meaning, I presume, that the person that violates the act shall be "separated" from the service. I would like to know what is the meaning of the word "separated," and what is the meaning of the word "service" as applied in this act?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I might say that if my good friend and I were walking through Copitol Park arm in arm, and some one came along and put our arms apart, we would be separated, would not be walking together. If a man in a subordinate position violates this law, and he is held to be responsible for the act which he did, his superior is bound to remove from his office. That is a separation, both a political separation and a physical separation.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know then why immediately following line 28, we have in lines 29 and 30 and so forth, which say that the person offending against the provisions of this act shall be discharged or dismissed at once by his superior—if "separated" means what the sponsor of the bill says it means, why has he dismissal in there immediately after?

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that there is a particle of difference in the use of those words. It may be that the gentleman who drafted this bill is not quite as fluent in the use of the English language as my good friend from Philadelphia, but I take it for granted that the word "separated" is equal to and means the same thing as "dismissal."

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman then on page 3 of this act, line 3, at the top of the page, what is the meaning of the word, which says, prior to the word that I am going to quote, any taxpawer may bring action to restrain the payment of compensation to any such appointed officer. I would like to know what is the meaning of the word "compensation" as employed in this act. Does it belong there, or was it inadvertently put in there by the man who constructed this act?

The purpose of the section just referred to is to enable a taxpayer to file a bill in equity praying for an injunction to restrain the payment of the salary or compensation to any appointed officer, clerk or employe who has violated the provisions of this act. I take it for granted, gentlemen, that this is a "look ahead," for this reason: that if it should happen that a superior fails to discharge a subordinate, the remedy is still in the hands of the taxpayer to bring the matter before the court to see that the law is enforced and that compensation is withheld in a case where the court holds the man guilty of the offense.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I would further ask the gentleman what he means in line 15, section 7, when he says "by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court." How is that fine to be imposed? The act does not say that the court shall impose it. It shall be in there "to be imposed by the court," but it is not. I would like to have the gentleman explain the meaning of that provision.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, just what it says, and nothing more. I know of no other tribunal except the court that is in a position to impose such a penalty or fine, and I do not imagine for one moment that the gentleman who drew this bill had in mind that any such a critical criticism would be made of it. I take it for granted that the average man understands enough English to know just what is said. It means "a fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court."

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman, as a member of the bar, certainly knows that all criminal cases are strictly construed, and the gentleman also knows that in every act on our statute books, imposing a fine, a penalty or imprisonment, distinctly says by whom the imprisonment is to be imposed, and the words by whom to be imposed must be in that section of this act, or it must fall, because without it you cannot place any other construction on it but that the taxpayer, who in the former part of this act brings the action, would have the right to impose the penalty.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Reynolds, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. REYNOLDS. Not now, Mr. Speaker. Now, Mr. Speaker, I have briefly called the attention of this House to the provisions of this act, and it appears to my mind to be so defective and so poorly constructed that I doubt whether the gentleman who introduced this act himself would rely upon it if it was his own act and written by him; because I do not believe that Mr. Beyer himself would construct such an act and ask you gentlemen to vote for it. He is a lawyer, and I know he would not. He is far too good for that. I say to you that this entire act could be framed in one section, because it is simuly a repitition of words, meaning absolutely nothing, and the enforcement of it is null and void. I understand from information which I have received that when this bill goes over to the Senate it is there to be amended so that it will provide for every county in this State being brought in under the act. If you read the act carefully, and I maintain that you should read it carefully, you will find that it is such a conglomeration of words that if I, or any other man, would attempt to make a solicitation of any man holding any position under any branch of our service in the City of Philadelphia, for any proposition, we would be liable to prosecution, fine and imprisonment. Now, gentlemen, we all have our methods of employment, we all have our livings to make. One man is in one position, and another in another position. Because a man happens to be employed by a State or city, is it fair and right that you should say to him that if he dare contribute to anything—I care not what it is, whether a church, Sunday school picnic or political assessment—how dare you say to him that we will fine and imprison him for doing such a thing? Let me look over this House and ask you frankly how many men would be here if it were not for the fact that you relied upon some fund to see that your political expenses were paid.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, just one word. I am amused at hearing the same threat made again that was almost made a few moments ago. Every time there is an effort made to defeat a bill, if it happens to be a Philadelphia bill, its defeat is attempted by the same sort of a threat. You were told by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McNichol, that he knew I would get on the floor and object to the amendment. He was ably seconded by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Reynolds, who makes the same proposition to you. He tells you—I do not know upon what authority—that when this bill goes over to the Senate that it is to be amended there so as to apply to the whole State. That is not a fair argument, but is the kind of an argument made in order to scare you. It is the kind of an argument made to weak-minded men who have not the ability to do their own thinking, and is made with the attempt to scare those persons. I do not think that such an argument is fair, or such a threat, but I will tell you this, that if this bill goes into the Senate and is amended in the manner suggested by the gentleman from Philadelphia, I will be the first to move not to concur in the amendments, and I think that answers that point of the question. In regard to the drawing of this section 7, I see nothing ambiguous about it. Section 7 says that "any person who shall violate or conspire to violate any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court." Now, my friend seems to fear that some ward politician is going to levy this fine or impose this imprisonment, that some tribunal outside of the courts of justice is going to pass upon it. It seems to me that the language is just as plain as any English scholar can make it. After the trial, in due course of procedure in a court of justice, if a man is found guilty, the court will impose the sentence of fine or imprisonment, both or either, as the circumstances of the case may require.

Mr. GEORGE W. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I shall welcome the day when the people of Philadelphia are permitted to legislate within and for themselves, a time when they will no longer bring their local differences to the legislature to be settled by the members from the country districts who ordinarily feel no interest in the questions over which the Philadelphia members differ.

It matters not to me who is Mayor of Philadelphia, whether the city councilis composed of one or two bodies or the membership is 16 or 1600. Neither am I interested whether John Doe or John Smith secured the larger percentage of the city contracts.

Repeatedly during this session our time has been taken up with these factional questions coming from the City of Philadelphia that are meaningless to many of us. The country members in this body would be justified in refusing to longer vote on these factional measures that are brought here for their consideration and action.

If this bill possesses any merit then it is 1-67th good in that its provisions apply to but one of the 67 county subdivisions of the State in this instance co-extensive with a county. If it is thought that in its operation it will improve the political conditions in Philadelphia, then Mr. Sponsor, do not be selfish in limiting its usefulness to but one municipality. On the contrary extend it to apply to every city, county and State employe in the Commonwealth. Our good friends from the city where the spirit of brotherly love is to be found everywhere, in the air they breathe and in the water they drink should not be so selfish as to restrict unto themselves all of the legislation they are suggesting along reform lines.

If we are starting out to improve the political conditions of Pennsylvania then let it not be done in spots for that will avail but little. But let these reform measures be general in their application that the people of the State as a whole may be benefitted thereby. I will gladly support any measure that will successfully limit the amount of money contributed by an office holder and the amount an individual as a candidate or that a party organization can use to bring about nominations and elections. At the special and reform session of the Legislature in 1906 a corrupt practices act was passed which it was then thought would correct many of the evils resulting from the use of money in politics, but the law in its operation has proven to be a sham, a farce and a disgrace to the State.

It is a rich man's law many times putting a premium on the candidacy of men of financial strength and discouraging the candidacy of deserving men with limited means in permitting as it does the use of extravagant and unlimited amounts of money to bring about nominations and elections. Think of it, a law enacted in the name of reform, that permits the employment of an unlimited number of men to disseminate information and that permits a candidate to pay voters for transporting themselves to the polls. I might go on enumerating the defects of this law, but that is unnecessary. You are all familiar with its provisions.

Let us have a corrupt practices act covering the matter of contributions as well as the uses for which the same can be expended and strengthened in ways that will be an improvement to our present law.

Such a bill we all should be able to support and in doing so we would be doing something helpful, not alone to those employes in a single public building in Philadelphia, but to all the office holders of the State as well as the people as a whole.

Now, let us be fair to ourselves and with each other and not favor a law so absolutely factional that when the change comes in the controlling force in the city affected by this bill, which in time is certain to come, it will then in all probability be repealed; but stand for laws that will be so fair to all citizens, to all interests, and that will create such a favorable sentiment as will cement them to our statute books as firmly as the granite hills of Vermont are attached to mother earth.

I most sincerely and earnestly appeal to the eight Senators from Philadelphia to unite in passing through the Senate and sending to this House the State Civil Service bill now held in committee, amended if necessary to make it a fair, reasonable and working measure accompanied by a corrupt practices bill with teeth in it. We can then pass them and go back to our constituents pointing with pride to at least two reform measures enacted by this Legislature which will receive their approval.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, before the roll is called I would just like to put myself on record as being in favor with what the gentleman from Tioga, Mr. Williams, has referred to when he speaks of passing a bill that is fair, square and honest and not a bill of this nature. Here is a bill, sir, that absolutely violates that which every man in this House is supposed to give to his fellow man, namely, a square deal. We have often heard it said, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," and I therefore ask the gentlemen from every other county than Philadelphia County to treat us with the same consideration that they want us to treat them. That is a fair proposition and no man should deny it.

This bill, sir, reminds me in its supposed deficiency of what was once said by John Adams, after the Constitution of the United States was adopted, when he turned to his friends and said: "Gentlemen, the best thing that has ever been done in the world has been done now and there will be no corruption in the United States for five hundred years." Even as John Adams in 1789 made a mistake, so any man that thinks that this bill is capable of destroying that which it would attempt to destroy makes a mistake. It is, therefore, merely a sham.

One thought more, gentlemen: Under this bill if any of you men came to Philadelphia—I am going to put this to the Democratic House—if any of you Democrats came to Philadelphia and met any of your Democratic friends in the City Hall or in any of those buildings connected with the City of Philadelphia and you should say to him, "I would like you to let me have ten dollars to help the next Democratic candidate for Governor go through, or the next Presidential candidate, you will be guilty of a misdemeanor under this act because the first section of the act does not say anything about employees. It says, "No person shall solicit, pay, give or receive in any public building belonging to any city of the first class"—no person—"any money or valuable thing for any political purpose whatsoever."

Furthermore, this prevents any Republican, any Washington man, any Democrat, if he happens to be a city employee, from helping through a Presidential fight. I am going to say to you that in my humble opinion I believe that a person who will not support a President or help a President to be elected ought not to be considered an American citizen and that any bill that attempts to deprive one of the right of supporting a Presidential candidate ought to be killed and damned forever.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1241, as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, this is a very interesting little piece of proposed legislation and I think that the members of this House should most carefully consider it before they vote for it. This is an amendment to the Brooks High License Law. It is an amendment that I don't believe this House is going to take very seriously. We have had on our statute books for a good many years what is known as the Brooks High License Law, providing for the licensing and sale of intoxicating liquors. Some people seem to have the mistaken idea that license gives to a man a right to do a certain thing, which is a mistaken idea because a license is only a special privilege granted to do a thing that other men who don't have that license cannot do. The licensing proposition has been recognized for many years that the thing licensed is a dangerous proposition. The sale of intoxicating liquors will be admitted by everybody that is fair as being dangerous. Therefore, we must put around it all the restrictions that are possible in order to make it as safe as can be under the circumstances. The law has given to the Courts of Common Pleas certain powers and certain discretion in the matter of granting licenses. The purpose of this bill is to rob the Court of this power and of that discretion. In the first part of this bill it provides that where a court shall refuse a license he shall give his reasons for that refusal. Gentlemen, why in the name of all that is decent in this Commonwealth do you not require the judge to give his reasons for granting the license, if you please, the same as he gives his reasons for refusing it? That is, licensing for the sale of intoxicating liquor is of just as much interest and of as much more importance to the public as it is to the man licensed. If you are going to take away from the court this discretion, by requiring him to give his reasons then why not make him give his reasons when he grants a license and give the people the same opportunity to appeal the case and have the matter passed upon by a higher court that you give to the applicant when his case is refused. It is dangerous and it robs the people of the power of the court; it takes away from them the only safeguard that the people have. A license is only a special privilege and in the granting of that license the law says that the people shall have the right to remonstrate against the granting of that license and the court in passing upon that proposition shall have due regard for the number and character of the petitioners for and the remonstrants against. It is, in fact, a local option provision that some of the courts have recognized and have given consideration to. This House only a few weeks ago decided by a decisive majority that the courts should continue to grant license under the Brooks High Licence Law. Now, we come into this House with a proposition to change and take away from the court the discretion he has; take away from the court the right that he has to consider the petitioners for the remonstrants against and the character and the number of each. Now, the gentlemen who are friendly to this proposition had better look out a little to the safety of their proposition. If you take away these things from the court you are just driving another nail into the coffin of the business. The next provision of this bill is very interesting; it provides that if a man has had a license and the court refuses that license thereafter the county is going to pay that man a sum of money. I ask you, gentlemen of the House, what is the county going to pay him for? Not for any property; not for any right, because he does not have any property rights in the license. You are going to provide that because we have given a man a special permission to do a thing that you and I and his other neighbors cannot do, giving him a chance to make a lot of easy money, and because we don't continue that special privilege indefinitely then we have got to pay the man for refusing to grant the special privilege. This is a most ridiculous, unfair and preposterous proposition. Suppose a man moves into a shack, as they do in many instances, and gets a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors; and makes wonderfully big profits for that fear he has been fortunate from his standpoint and he has been given the thing that has enabled him to make money, plenty of it, and because you don't continue that indefinitely then the county should pay him for his property, pay him for a thing he never has had, pay him for the right that he never has had. Think of it, gentlemen, and ask yourself the question, what are you going to pay this man for? You have already given him something that you don't give to every man, to only a few in the community—you have given him a special privilege and now what in the name of common sense are you going to pay him for when the court refuses to grant him a further license? What provisions are you going to make when a certain man in the community has become objectionable in that particular business, when the sentiment has changed so that the remonstrance come in against him. Are you going to say that in order to let that man out that you are going to pay him this sum of money and what are you going to pay him for? For everything he has got, including good-will? Think of it, gentlemen, you are going to pay him for his good-will; pay him for good-will in a thing that he never had; pay him for a thing that has left destruction, hardship and poverty in its track ever since it was instituted as a special privilege in this country. Now, it might be possible to amend this bill to make it just, and that in order to amend it to make it just you would have to require him who is in that business to get out of that community and out of the business and to compensate that community for the damage and the injury and the cost and the expense that is incident to the trouble of conducting that business in the community.

Now, gentlemen, do not let us consider this matter lightly. This is the most vicious proposition that has ever come before the Legislature. Think of it, after having a license one year, if he gets out by order of the court because it is no longer necessary, perhaps because the place is unfit, because the man is morally unfit, because of any reason under heaven, if you please, except when he is violating the law, if he gets out because of any of these reasons after one year, we have got to pay him for the property, for the license, for the good-will and for a whole lot of other things that no man could appraise at anything at all. Not only that, but the owner of the property, when the license is refused to the tenant, we have got to compensate the owner of the property. What for? We have got to pay him the difference between the value of that property used for a liquor licensed saloon, and the market value of that property. The property, the saloon business in that particular community would create a high fictitious value, but that property at the same time might have a market value less than one-fourth of the fictitious value created by a saloon business in that community and we would have to pay, under the provisions of this bill, for a fictitious value on the business, a fictitious value not on the basis of a market value. We are paying him for a thing that he has no right in. Gentlemen, this bill should be voted down. This bill should be voted down from every standpoint that you can consider it. If you are a temperance man it is vicious; if you are in favor of local option, or a majority rule in the county, it is un-American to do this; if you are in the liquor business you are the most short-sighted man that ever was seen if you are in favor of this bill, because it will do more to bring down upon your heads the just condemnation of every thinking man in this Commonwealth than anything else. I for one am not in favor of having this unwholesome task in the hands of the courts, but you have decided in this House only a few weeks ago that you will leave it in the hands of the courts, and since you have decided to leave it in the hands of the courts you had better keep your hand off. If he is the man you want to handle this, don't you rob him of one single iota of his power, or of his discretion, because if you do, you have signed your own death warrant. Gentlemen, be fair, be honest, consider not only the man who has had a special interest, and has made plenty of money out of it, but consider the people in the community, consider the welfare of this State, consider the men and the women, if you please, who have right under the Brook's High License Law to sign petitions and present them to the courts, and the courts under that law must give consideration to the number and character of the petitioners for or against. Gentlemen, that is the law and it cannot be contradicted. That being the law, the court has the right to exercise its own discretion in this matter. When it passes on an application, it passes not only on the number and character of the petitioners for and remonstrants against, but it has the right under the law to take into consideration his own knowledge of the situation, and the Supreme Court many times has said that it is for the lower courts to decide on the necessity and his discretion shall stand as the law. Gentlemen, vote this bill down as being unfair, un-American and a preposterous burden on each county that might have to bear the burden of it.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, we have under consideration at this time a measure which brings us face to face with the biggest moral and economic problem of to-day. The State, the nation, in fact the whole world is now, and has been for years, debating this very question. It has received the most serious consideration, and the tendency has always been to restrain, regulate and abolish the liquor business rather than to establish and perpetuate it. The history of liquor legislation in Pennsylvania is replete with information bearing out the statements that I have made. Prior to 1856, licenses to sell were granted when it was shown by the applicant that the hotel or tavern was necessary for the accommodation of strangers and the traveling public. Gentlemen of the House, prior to 1856 no remonstrance could be filed against an application for the granting of liquor licenses. From 1856 to 1867, if the court desired remonstrance could be filed confined to the single question is the hotel, tavern or eating house sought to be licensed necessary. From 1867 to 1887, the court was authorized to hear remonstrants having due regard to the number and character of the petitions, but he was not required to do so. The Brook's Law passed in 1887 differed therein from all laws prior to that time as to the filing and hearing of remonstrance against the granting of liquor license in that it provides that the court shall hear petitions from the residents of the ward, borough or township, in addition to that of the applicant, in favor of a remonstrance against the applications for said license, and in all cases shall refuse the same whenever in the opinion of the court, having due regard for the number and character of the petitioners for and against such application, such license is not necessary. You will notice gentlemen that instead of referring to the hotel or the tavern or the eating house, the Brook's Law which is the law relative to the granting of license, refers to the necessity of the license itself, and stating that the court shall refuse the same whenever in its opinion, having due regard for the number and character of the petitioners, said license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and the entertainment of strangers and travelers. Thus you will see, gentlemen of the House, that the Legislature of this State lodges in the courts of quarter sessions of the State, the discretionary power to say whether or not a license is necessary, and to hear remonstrance as to whether a license in a certain community should be permitted.

Under the present law the court may refuse an application for a license, in its discretion, without giving any reason whatever, or for the violation of the liquor laws, or on the grounds of no necessity existing for the license; and the highest courts of Pennsylvania have said that the decision of the lower courts in so refusing is not reviewable. Under this law, within the discretion of the courts of quarter sessions of the State of Pennsylvania, we have I believe about twelve counties without liquor licenses to-day. Now gentlemen of the House, the Brooks Law was an onward step in liquor legislation in Pennsylvania, and the result of a demand on the part of the people of the State that the citizens of every community have something to say about whether or not licenses should be granted in that community. It gave them the right to go into court and remonstrate against the granting of such license, and say whether or not a license is or is not necessary in that community. House Bill No. 1241 is an act "requiring the courts of quarter sessions to file their reason for revoking or refusing to renew existing liquor licenses, requiring compensation to be paid the holder of the license or the owner of the premises upon the revocation or refusal thereof in certain cases, by the county, and vesting in the court of common pleas jurisdiction in such cases."

The first thing to which my attention is called is the constitutionality of this act. It is a question that is such a clear departure and backward step in regard to legislation in Pennsylvania that it requires and ought to command the most serious consideration of every member of this House, whether he be in favor of liquor licenses or whether he is not. A license has been defined as a "personal privilege or official permit to carry on a business or trade or perform acts forbidden by law, except to persons obtaining such permit." This was decided in the 85 Texas Reports 228. It is a part of our fundamental and elementary law that a license is personal. The very word "license" in itself indicates that it is a personal privilege and not even assignable without consent. In Bloomin-thal's Petition, 125 Pa. 412, and Grimm's Estate, 181 Pa. 233, the court held that a liquor license granted by the State, being a personal privilege, was not even an asset of the estate of the deceased licensee, and does not pass to the personal representative,—is not assignable unless expressly authorized by an act of Assembly. Gentlemen of the House, the Federal Constitution and the State Constitution protect only property and not licenses. A license to sell liquor is a privilege and not property, and the forfeiture of a license does not deprive the licensee of property without due process of law. It cannot be levied upon by the sheriff (6 District Reports, Pennsylvania, 408), nor can it be transferred unless such transfer is approved by the authorities in power to grant licenses. This was decided in 125 Pa. 412. No form of property in our whole land is restrained in this way, thus clearly indicating that our Legislature, from time immemorial, considered liquor licenses as a personal privilege and not as property. Further, the grantee of such a license takes it subject to all possible changes in the law, and is liable to have it revoked at any time. In 128 U. S. 1, and 123 id. 623, it is held that property used for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors may be declared a nuisance and as such abated, and the abatement of such a nuisance is not a taking of property without due process of law. It is also a recognized principle in liquor license law that every renewal is a new grant, and that the applicant must make out his case with the same precision, whether he has come forward for the first or twentieth time (17 Pa. C. C. 50). That a license is purely personal is further shown and strengthened by the decision in Hadtner vs. Williamsport, 15 W. N. C. 138, wherein the court held that a license is not a contract and the busines of selling liquor may be taxed in addition to the license either by the State or a municipal corporation duly authorized. If a license, gentlemen of the House, is not property, and the taking away of the license from a man who holds the license from the court of quarter sessions is not taking his property under the Constitution, then why should we as members of this House agree to a proposition wherein we are to compensate the liquor license dealers in this State for something that does not exist. I say to you that this law is unconstitutional, but whether it is or not, if it becomes a law it would nullify the Brooks Law and prevent the regulating of the granting of licenses to sell liquor in Pennsylvania. That is the real object of this act, and I say to you,—I do not say it in a spirit of antagonism—that the real object of this act is to fasten upon the State of Pennsylvania the licenses now in existence, for no court in the State of Pennsylvania would dare refuse to grant a license under the provision of compensation provided for in this act. The Brooks Law was not intended to protect the liquor business. It was intended to restrain and regulate the business, and its sponsors believed that the high fee license that was attached to the Brooks Law would legislate it out of business. But the Brooks Law created in every county of the State what I wish to call a closed corporation in the liquor business, and created a situation not foreseen by its sponsors. It became a very satisfactory law to the men in the liquor business of the State. Public sentiment, however, grew, and has grown tremendously against the liquor business, and the courts have been compelled to recognize this sentiment with the result that many counties are without licenses to sell liquor. So it has come to pass that the Brooks Law is no longer satisfactory. There is a deep-rooted fear that the interpretation placed on the Brooks Law by many courts is correct, and that many other counties in the State of Pennsylvania will be without liquor licenses in a short time.

Unless something is done with many counties of this State other counties in this State will have no license under the Brooks Law unless something is done to restrain the courts in its interpretation and force them to give their reasons when refusing to grant the renewal of a liquor license in force. Gentlemen of the House, it will fasten upon the State practically every license now in force for no court would dare to refuse applications for renewals of licenses on account of the compensation provided for in this bill. While there is strong opposition to the liquor business, there is violent opposition in the State of Pennsylvania and every other State of the Union against compensation for the liquor business where licenses are refused.

The liquor business, gentlemen of the House, is an evil, and no amount of regulation or restriction placed upon the business by law or rules regulating the traffic can transform this evil into an influence for good. It contaminates everything that it comes into contact with.

The liquor business is one of the biggest single economic problems of to-day. It affects the high cost of living, the social order, civic relations, labor conditions, the courts, politics, taxations, crime, and undoubtedly lowers the moral status of our people in general. Gentlemen of the House, the liquor business has caused more suffering than "war, pestilence and famine combined;" and then they come into this House and ask us to compensate the men in business when the licesses are refused them.

I do not believe that there is a man in this House that honestly believes in this piece of legislation, and I do not believe there is a man in this House who feels in his conscience that he should vote for it. I ask you to vote it down and to say to the people of Pennsylvania that while you are never willing to go on record in taking a backward step in Pennsylvania, that you are willing to take a forward step in legislation on the liquor problem.

Mr. URICH. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, you have heard a great deal on this bill from some of the legal lights in this House and I am sorry to say, gentlemen, that they have been guilty of referring you to laws that have been repealed by our Superior Court and our Supreme Court and tried to close your eyes. I am astonished that they would get up in this House and ask you to listen to anything like that.

In the first place, gentlemen of the House, I wish to call your attention to this fact on which they dwelt considerably and that is this: Before any man can secure a license in this State he will have to prove the necessity of it. Before any court can grant any license in this State the necessity of it has to be proven.

Gentlemen, the reason that I presented this bill for your consideration is this: That I have seen that the men who were standing up for local option, the men who were standing up for temperance and prohibition have resorted to such low, mean measures to accomplish their ends that it is really obnoxious to the human mind to think that men standing upon the pulpit would resort to such efforts to accomplish certain ends. We have had some of the most vicious actions down in our county propagated and promulgated and carried out by the members of the No-License League, at the head of which was one of the principal ministers of the gospel. I want to say to you that the reason I thought of bringing this bill before you was this: That that minister, who is at the head of the No-License League in Lebanon County, associated and conspired with men, some of whom are sitting in the Eastern Penitentiary to-day, in order to catch the hotel men in our county. They went out one night, gentlemen, as the minister upon the stand stated himself, for a joy ride. They drew up at a hotel in Fredericksburg at a quarter of twelve o'clock on a Saturday night. Several of the party went into that hotel and they asked the bar tender for a pint of whiskey and other drinks and by the time the matter was put on the bar it was five minutes of twelve. The minister testified that then they asked whether there was a restaurant near. They knew there was one next door, but, gentlemen, it was not twelve o'clock yet and he could not catch the man. They went into the next door and got a sandwich; they came back; the minister walked back into the dining room and the other man walked into the bar-room and asked for another pint of material and the minister called in from the dining room and asked that they should get a pint for him. It was five minutes after twelve. They came back. They arrested this man for selling liquor on Sunday and he lost his license; and a member of this House is the owner of that hotel but not the proprietor. It is not right. He lost the license; he suffered through it, through the mean actions of this minister of the gospel.

Some of the men who have preceded me have stated that this bill should be amended. I am willing and glad to refer this bill back to the Committee for amendment and a public hearing.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. RAMSEY. Mr. Speaker, in order to recommit this bill I move that the vote by which it passed third reading be reconsidered.

Mr. URICH. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER declared the "ayes" appeared to have it.

Whereupon, a division was called for and ninety gentlemen voting in the affirmative and forty-seven in the negative, the motion was agreed to.

BILLS RECOMMITTED.

Mr. RAMSEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Law and Order for the purpose of amendment.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1181, entitled

An Act making the fraudulent conversion of property or the proceeds of property a misdemeanor prescribing the penalties therefor and regulating the procedure therein.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. JEFFERSON W. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McNichol,, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. JEFFERSON W. SMITH. I would like to ask you to explain the purpose of this bill.

Mr. McNICHOL. The object of this bill is to make punishable a crime that is not now recognized either under the common law or statutory law. This law is intended to apply, for instance, to a crime committed by the treasurer of a savings fund organized for the purpose of raising what is ordinarily known as a Christmas fund of which the treasurer of the fund absconds or uses the money for his own personal benefit. In such case the courts have decided frequently that there is no statutory act or common law act that would permit punishment and that it is merely a breach of confidence and that there was no felonious intent; it was not embezzlement and the result has been that these men who have run away with a Christmas fund have walked out of the court Scot free. This bill was presented by me at the request of the District Attorney of Philadelphia County. That is what the act is intended to apply to, to make it punishable and to make a crime out of that which is not recognized now by our laws as one.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, this act if passed would apply to every wrongful conversion of property, no matter under what contract the property was received by the bailee. The object which the gentleman from Philadelphia states to be lack of this bill is a very worthy one, yet in its terms it is so broad that many men might commit crimes that were not intended and be subjected to the penal provisions of this act. It is so broad, indeed, that it is hard to tell what would be or would not be a crime under these provisions and for that reason it ought not to become a law. Every wrongful use of property of any sort or kind would be a crime. Now, Sir, it seems to me that there are enough of punishable crimes under the law of Pennsylvania and this would add another that would cause a great many men to get into trouble unknowingly and unwittingly. The evil of which the sponsor of the bill complains is a sad one but in correcting that condition it would be probably worse, if corrected, than the present state of affairs. Therefore, I think the bill ought not to become a law.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. Speaker, my friend in his imagination goes a great way when he says, "A man might innocently commit a wrong or a crime." This law is submitted specifically to apply to a man who appropriates money or goods belonging to another. Now, to give you an idea of the laxity of the law as it now stands I will cite a few cases which will show you gentlemen the necessity of the protection to the people for their goods and money.

In larceny there must be a felonious taking as well as a conversion. Some cases in which the possession of the property stolen was lawfully acquired are covered by the statute relating to Larceny by Bailee. Under this statute however the courts have so construed the relationship of the bailor and bailee as to limit it to instances in which the property bailed is to be returned in kind. So it has been held in Commonwealth vs. Hart, 2 Pittsburg 495 that one who receives horses to be sold to another and to deliver the purchase price less the expenses to the other but sells the horses and keeps the money is not guilty of larceny by bailee on the ground that the fraudulent conversion by the bail must be of the property or thing delivered "which was to be returned in specie." In Commonwealth vs. Longenecker "A" gave "B" $1750 to buy horses to be sold again. B went west and returned with a carload of horses which he delivered to "C", and made no accounting to "A" for the money. On trial of "B" for larceny by bailee the court charged that as the money was not to be returned in kind "at least not so expressed that the prosecutor was to receive the identical money" there could be no conviction. 1 Lanc. Bar, No. 2.

In Krause against the Commonwealth, 93 Pa. 418 "A" sold two horses to be paid for when delivered at "B's" stable. "A" delivered them, but "B" being unable to pay for them in full, "A" accepted $25.00 of the amount and left the horses with "B". Subsequently "A" called for the horses but "B" refused to pay the balance due or return the horses. Judgment reversed on the ground that "B" was not a bailee under the act.

To be guilty of embezzlement, the defendant must be a public officer, an agent, employe, a banker, broker, consignee or factor. Thus it was held that if "A" gave "B", a neighbor, a note to collect for him, authorizing "B" to retain one-half of the proceeds as compensation, and "B" collected a small part of the amount which he retained, and was indicted for embezzlement as "a clerk, servant or other person in the employment of another" he was not guilty of embezzlement.—Comm. vs. Lynch, 3 C. P. Rep. 173.

In Commonwealth v. Biggam, 1 D. R. 438 "A" leased to "B" a machine shop in which were certain machines, which "A" gave "B" authority to sell at a certain price. "B" sold two of the machines at the fixed price, but appropriated the proceeds to his own use. He was indicted for embezzlement and convicted. On a motion for a new trial it was held that "B" was not such an agent as was contemplated by the act, nor was the property left with him for safe custody.

In Comm. vs. Kauffman, 11 Lanc. L. R. 247 it was held that one was not guilty of embezzlement when he retained the entire proceeds of the sale of a carriage belonging to another, he not being an agent, factor or consignee.

By decisions of this character many acts which are moral thefts and probably intended to be included in the acts relating to Larceny by Clerk, Servant and Employe by Bailee and embezzlement are excluded from the operation of those statutes, and are not crimes in this State. The intention of the present purposed act is to clear up this situation on as to make such acts crimes

This law is for the purpose of covering cases of this kind and there cannot be any objection to its passage because no man can be convicted of the commission of a crime without the intent is there and no man who would innocently do that which might make him ameable to a crime need fear the application of the law, because the law always considers the intent. I ask you, gentlemen, to vote "aye" on this bill.

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it without amendment.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would ask the members to vote when their names are called. There was just a bare quorum voting on the last bill, while apparently there are many more than that present. Should a quorum not vote it will be necessary for the Chair to order the doors closed and take a poll of the House, which would take considerable time.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1102 (Senate Bill No. 365), entitled

An Act to repeal section one of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the price of supporting the prisoners in the county jail in Allegheny" approved the eighth day of May Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1107 (Senate Bill No. 373), entitled

An Act to repeal sections two and three of an act, entitled "An Act to confer on Alexander Thomas and Budd Jones and Emma Downing, of Allegheny County, the rights and privileges and advantages of children born in lawful wedlock, in relation to a tax on dogs in the said County of Allegheny, incorporating the West Newton and Braddock's Field Plank Road Company, relative to fishing with nets in the Monongahela River, authorizing constables to serve civil process in Germantown, relative to miners in Schuylkill County, legitimatizing James C. Collins, relative to the premium on fox scalps in the County of York," approved the fourteenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, which said sections relate to the taxation of dogs in Allegheny County

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like someone to explain this bill. There is such a mixup in the title you cannot tell what it is.

Mr. WICKMAN. It seems, Mr. Speaker, in the olden days when the Legislature had a lot of bills they drafted them under one title. Now, the only thing that we are connected with to-night is the subject of taxation of dogs, and that is covered by the general act of May 25, 1893, P. L. 136, which provides for a complete system, and as the special act of Allegheny County was not repealed by this general act it is desired that the special act be repealed in order that this situation be clarified and that we might work wholly under the general act.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—1.

Brumbaugh,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1100 (Senate Bill No. 356), entitled

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section eight of article sixteen of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MILNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know if there is someone in the House who can explain the purpose of this resolution?

Mr. DITHRICH. Mr. Speaker, I think I can explain the bill, but any lawyer in the House does not need any explanation at all. This bill proposes an amendment to the Constitution which enables an individual under power of eminent domain to take private property for the purpose of erecting thereon a home, and I am opposed to the bill.

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I feel that before we take any action on this resolution we should consider it very seriously. To my mind there has been nothing in this House in this session that seemed more unreasonable than this proposition now before us, and I ask that you consider this proposition very carefully and I feel confident, if you do that, this resolution will never pass this House.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, this joint resolution is similar to a bill that appeared in the Judiciary General Committee. That bill was for the purpose of taking private property by right of eminent domain. The bill was referred to a sub-committee and in looking the matter up we found that under a decision of our Superior and Supreme Court, the latest in 1914, it is simply an impossibility for any corporation to take private property by right of eminent domain; that it is exclusively within the jurisdiction of a public corporation and especially so of a municipal corporation. Mr. Speaker, there is only one way of disposing of this joint resolution because it is so clearly unconstitutional that the Attorney General must so declare it. There is only one way to dispose of it and that is to defeat it.

BILL STRICKEN FROM CALENDAR.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be stricken from the calendar.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 335 (Senate Bill No. 50), entitled

An Act to facilitate the labors of the judges learned in the law of the courts of common pleas and orphans courts of the several counties of the State by providing suitable clerical assistance.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, this bill was referred to the Judiciary General Committee and after consideration by its sub-committee was indefinitely postponed. Afterwards it seems to have been reconsidered and is now before you. The bill authorizes every judge of the common pleas courts and of the orphans' courts in Pennsylvania to employ clerical help or stenographic help at a rate of fifteen hundred dollars per annum and charge that to the State of Pennsylvania. In other words it is going to increase the expenses of this State about $182,500 per year, there being one hundred and fifteen judges, providing all the judges use that amount of help which they are authorized to do under the bill. Under the present law if a judge wants stenographic help or clerical help that help is paid by the county, and a great many of the judges do not need any help at all; some of them do. In the County of Allegheny, where I reside there is a certain number of official stenographers and their substitutes. These are paid by the county for doing the stenographic work of the court and they also do the private work of the judges. In addition to what the County of Allegheny pays already, under this bill the judges would have a right to pay $22,500 more and charge that to the State of Pennsylvania. I do not believe that that is wise. I believe that the matter of expenses for private stenographic help, if there is any, should be paid by the counties and not charged to the State.

BILL STRICKEN FROM CALENDAR.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be stricken from the calendar.

Mr. RUDISILL. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The SPEAKER. The ayes appear to have it.

Whereupon, a division was called for, eighty members having voted in the affirmative and fifty-two in the negative,

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 956 (Senate Bill No. 117), entitled

An Act to amend an act entitled "An Act authorizing the courts of common pleas of this Commonwealth to decree the dissolution of certain corporations in certain cases and to order the sale of their real estate and make distribution of the proceeds thereof approved the twenty-seventh day of March, one thousand nine hundred and three (Pamphlet Laws, page seventy-nine) by providing that the petition praying for dissolution may be by any owner or owners of capital stock and providing for publication of notice in the proper legal periodical.

An Act requiring all persons hunting for game to wear red coats or red caps or hats and providing penalties for violations

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That it shall be unlawful for any person to hunt game within the Commonwealth unless such persn shall wear a red coat or a red hat or red cap or either one or both

Section 2 Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars ($25.00)

Section 3 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. SHATTUCK. Mr. Speaker, I move that Bill No. 1248 be stricken from the calendar.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, they finally smoked me out. I think Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, that the bill now before you requires serious consideration. While the bill might be looked upon from the funny side, I might say that there is a serious side to the question, and explain why the bill has been presented. The bill was given to me at the request of a number of huntsmen in Luzerne County. There is one instance that I would like to call to your attention that I think might have you look at this bill in a different way. It was only during the last hunting season that two friends of mine, one a white man and the other a colored man, went on a little hunting trip a short distance outside of the City of Wilkes-Barre. While less than ten yards apart the man with the white color turned around and shot and almost killed the colored fellow. When he answered why he shot at the colored man he said that he had taken him for a squirrel. Now Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, there is no hardship connected with the bill in any way, shape or form. If you have a red coat it does not compel you to go to any additional expense; if you have a red cap, it does not compel you to buy a red cap, and so with the hat. Now I understand that some of the gentlemen within the hall seem to be of the opinion that this is going to work a hardship upon the farmer boy, because the farmer boy is likely to pick up his gun and go out without being prepared with the red cap or a red hat or a red coat. Now gentlemen this bill really is a matter that I can guarantee will be a protection to life and limb, and I will leave the bill with you for your consideration.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Ordered, that the Clerk present the same to the Senate

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1249, as follows:

An Act prohibiting state agents and employes from acting as guides to hunters and fishermen and from boarding or lodging hunter and fishermen during certain periods of time and providing penalties for violations

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That hereafter it shall be unlawful for any agent or employe of the Game Commission or of the Fish Commission or of the Department of Forestry or of any other Department of the State Government to act as a guide to any hunter or fisherman in the Commonwealth or to lodge or board any hunter or fisherman on State property either for a money consideration or for any other reason during the open season for game or fish

Section 2 Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for the first offense and to a discharge from State service for the second offense

Section 3 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ALBEE. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I am against this bill for the reason that it seems that after an investigation of the game, forestry and fishery departments that there is no particular reason for this legislation. We have in our northern counties in Pennsylvania some forest rangers and game wardens who are some of the most loyal people to the sportsmen in the State of Pennsylvania. This bill seems to be aimed at one or two particular persons in the State of Pennsylvania, whom they claim have violated the game laws of the State. I wish to say that in the northern counties there are no hotels or places for the transient sportsmen, fishermen or hunters to go, except to some of the camps and houses occupied by our foresters and forest rangers, and I wish to say to you that we have no more loyal men to look after our camps, our streams and our woods than these men are. I object to this bill for the reason that while it might be aimed at one or two people in the State of Pennsylvania, that is no reason why we should put the rest of these men on the same plane and enact legislation here that prevents them from doing what is legitimate and what is right.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that my good friend from Potter County cannot see his way clear to support this bill. The bill is very short, and the whole thing about it is this, gentlemen: "It shall be unlawful for any agent or employe of the Game Commission or of the Fish Commission or of the Department of Forestry or of any other department of the State government to act as a guide to any hunter or fisherman in the Commonwealth, or to lodge or board any hunter or fisherman "upon State property." There is the whole thing, "upon State property." In Pike County there is a bit of water known as the "Promised Land Pond," and upon that pond up until two years ago there was a State forester. That State forester assumed the right to place a boat upon that water, and later on placed boats, until the time that he resigned, I have been informed, he owned no less than seventy-five boats for which he charged a dollar a day to anybody who came along to fish. He would not rent by the hour, he would only rent by the day. The water was State water; the fish within the water were placed there by the Fish Commissioner for the benefit of the public, but the man who derived the great benefit was the man who was in charge of the grounds and the water, and he happened to be a State forester. I have been informed that this man resigned and then turned around and built within a safe distance from this pond of water a large building, and to-day assumes the right to still rent the boats upon that water. I have also been reliably informed that there are foresters within this Commonwealth who have been making it a practice of having certain people come to them and stay. You can realize the position that the forester is in. He is the man who makes it his business to travel over the various lands of the Commonwealth, and thereby becomes acquainted with the game, where the game is to be found, and it is only natural that he takes his friends to the place where the game is to be found. The purpose of the bill is to prevent any person in the employ of any one of the three departments from acting as a guide and receiving compensation and housing them upon State premises. Therefore, I ask you gentlemen seriously to vote for this bill.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Powell.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Powell, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. POWELL. Certainly, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BEYER. Can you tell me what salary these game wardens get?

Mr. POWELL. I cannot. I have been informed by some one to my rear that they get nine hundred dollars a year; nine hundred dollars and expenses.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, if these irregularities prevail, of which the gentleman from Luzerne complains, they ought to be corrected by complaints to the heads of these departments. If the foresters are misbehaving or the game wardens or fish wardens are misbehaving and doing things detrimental to the public interests, those departments ought to have sense enough to correct those abuses; and there is no occasion for making a hard and fast rule so that a forester might not invite a friend to the cabin for the hunting season. These are matters of administration and not of legislative enactment, and therefore I think the bill ought to fall.

Mr. STOFFLET. Mr. Speaker, in answer to Mr. Walter's argument, let me say this: I am well acquainted with this "Promised Land" situation. Complaint has been lodged with the Department of Fisheries more than two years ago and Mr. Fuller told me no less than two weeks ago, when I told him that this game warden or forester in question had violated every game and fish law on the statute books, he agreed that I was right and told me, "We have been after him for two years but he is too foxy for us; we have not been able to catch him."

Now, this same game warden commits another offense. He told me himself that he had caught 4,200 bait fish out of that lake in one week. He sends these bait fish out of the State and often sells them at a cent apiece. He charges every fisherman that comes there a dollar a day for a boat and a cent apiece for bait, and he purposely treats this bait in such a manner that by the time you row from his boat landing to the fishing ground at least seventy-five per cent. of the bait fish are dead and in an hour's time you have to come back and it means another dollar to him. Several years ago a friend of mine and I fished in that lake and we discovered a gill net. We came down and notified this forester of the presence of this gill net in this water and he said, "I will give it my attention;" and he did. He gave it mighty good attention. He went down and got it out and put it on the fence back of his house to dry and after it was dried he rolled it up and put away for further use.

I know that he has entertained as high as twenty men in one night at his house when he acted as forester. He has seventy-two boats on this lake and I have been there more than once when not a single boat was left.

Now the result of catching these bait fish out of the lake in such numbers as he has caught them and sold them has destroyed the food fish for the big fish in the lake and the result is that the big pickerel has taken to eating up the small pickerel and where ten years ago you could go there fishing and come away with a good catch of fish, but you go there now and come away with mighty few.

These are abuses which this bill is intended to remedy and I sincerely ask and hope every man in this House will vote for it.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, when this bill first appeared before the Game Committee it was a question with the members of the Committee whether or not it was advisable, but after we considered it carefully we came to this conclusion: The forest rangers, the fish wardens and the game protectors are hired by the State. The game protectors are paid out of your license fees, you pay them. But they, during their summer's work, find where the game is most plentiful and, though they are your servants, they gather a few of their friends and they take them to the point where the game is plentiful and the game is slaughtered.

You have paid your dollar license; you have taken your time; you spend your money to go to the point to hunt game, and the forest ranger or the game warden, especially the game warden, who has been paid out of your own money, has succeeded in exterminating the game and you get none. Therefore we believed and I believe now that this bill should be passed to correct an abuse by the man who is paid out of your own pocket and I sincerely trust because of that that this bill will pass and correct an evil that is going on in this State against the general hunter.

Mr. ALBEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentlemen of this House if the gentlemen who spoke in favor of this bill have not borne out my argment entirely? They have quoted one single place in the State of Pennsylvania where somebody they claim has violated the game and fish laws. Now, if that is the case, we have laws in the State of Pennsylvania that they have recourse to and by which they can get after these men. And they admit to it that he resigned from the position he held.

Now, gentlemen, I submit to you if it is fair to put all the rest of the game wardens, the fish wardens and the forest rangers, of whom we have no knowledge whatever that they have ever violated the law of the State of Pennsylvania or ever had any complaints in regard to the fishing or hunting in the State of Pennsylvania, I submit to you, gentlemen, if it is fair to put those gentlemen under the ban on account of one or two men who they say violated the law in Pennsylvania, which I do not know whether they have or not.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STOFFLET. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Do you think that one dollar per day for a boat to fish and one cent apiece for bait is too much for a man to charge?

Mr. STOFFLET. No, sir, I do not, not if the bait is properly taken care of; but what I fail to see is this: why one man should monopolize a water that belongs to the State and why one man should catch bait out of State waters and sell it and make $420.00 a week out of it; and at the same time I am informed that the State is actually propagating food fish and putting them into these waters to feed the big fish and then permitting dishonest foresters or game wardens to catch the food fish that are in the waters and sell them.

As to the argument of the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Albee, let me say this: He says it is not fair that one game warden should be punished for the sins of the other. I have read within the last week that in China they have not had a bank failure for eight hundred years, and the law there is this: That when a bank in China closes its doors and goes broke they execute every man that works in that bank. Now, if it is necessary to punish every game warden in the State because some dishonest fellows have come into the service, let us do it.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STOFFLET. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know of the gentleman what opportunity there would be of getting a boat if the fish warden was not there, prepared to hire out these boats that you speak of?

Mr. STOFFLET. In places where persons not fish wardens have attempted to place boats on State waters these same wardens have made it so unpleasant for persons who hired boats from the other fellow, by watching them so closely and measuring every fish that comes in and in many instances unjustly harrasing and arresting these fellows, that they refused to hire boats from other persons excepting the wardens.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. STOFFLET. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BEYER. Does the State of Pennsylvania provide any boats on any public waters of any kind on these game preserves?

Mr. STOFFLET. There is too much noise; I cannot understand you.

Mr. BEYER. Does the State of Pennsylvania provide any boats on the waters in these game preserves?

Mr. STOFFLET. It does not.

Mr. BEYER. Then you have got to hire the boats from some individual?

Mr. STOFFLET. Yes sir.

Mr. BEYER. Now, with regard to the matters that you have spoken about, are these boats to be hired elsewhere than from the game wardens?

Mr. STOFFLET. In some places, on some State waters, they are. There are other persons besides the game wardens on some State waters, for instance, on the Mud Lake Reservation. On the Mud Lake Reservation the game warden has two boats; all the other boats on that water are owned by other persons.

Mr. ALBEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Northampton.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Northampton, Mr. Stofflet, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STOFFLET. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1147, entitled

An Act validating certain satisfaction of mortgages heretofore entered in good faith at the instance of the mortgagee.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I would like the sponsor of this bill to explain it to the House.

Mr. DITHRICH. Mr. Speaker, for a great many years the practice of most of the counties of the State has been to satisfy the mortgagees by filing a separate satisfaction piece. The Attorney General recently rendered an opinion which said such mortgages were not valid unless satisfaction was entered upon the margin of the record which has validated such mortgages made in good faith at the instance of the mortgagee.

Mr. COX. How is satisfaction made perfect?

Mr. DITHRICH. The mortgagee has furnished power of attorney.

Mr. COX. Why do you want to validate it then?

Mr. DITHRICH. Because the Attorney General has held in his opinion that even if power of attorney is furnished, it was not sufficient and that the only way it could be satisfied is by entering it on the margin of the record.

Mr. COX. Has the Attorney General rendered an opinion that we can refer to?

Mr. DITHRICH. I cannot give you a reply to that. It was quoted in the Legal Intelligencer and the Legal Journal but I cannot refer you to anything more definite.

Mr. COX. I would suggest that you postpone this bill for the present.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. DITHRICH. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. STADTLANDER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE GOVERNOR TO MAKE APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. C. A. SNYDER offered the following resolution, which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, April 25, 1917.

Whereas, The public service is hampered and the efficiency of the several departments of the State Government is greatly lessened by reason of the fact that certain departments are at this time without heads, while the heads of other departments have not been confirmed by the Senate, therefore

Resolved, That the Senate request the Governor to appoint a Secretary of Internal Affairs, a Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings, and a Public Service Commissioner, and that names of such appointees together with the names of all other appointments by the Governor made since the session of the last Senate whose confirmation by the Senate of Pennsylvania is required by the Constitution, be submitted to the Senate so that the same may be acted upon in a regular and orderly manner as required by the Constitution of the Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, let me understand, does that mean a request or a direction?

The PRESIDENT. This is a request.

Mr. C. A. SNYDER. Mr. President, in support of that resolution I desire to trespass on the time of the members this morning a little while. Before I do that, I wish to say that the performance of my duty this morning comes with considerable agitation and more feeling that I can express. I submit this is about the last act that I shall perform as a State Senator and therefore in the performation of that duty I wish every Senator to feel that it is absolutely without any personal feeling of reproach of any officer or to discredit any function of the Government. As a state senator and even as a member of the house I may have exaggerated the importance of the respective positions.

Coming into the House at perhaps a more mature age than most men—at thirty-five—I brought from the district which I represent some experience with public affairs and having been more or less connected with matters of convention, I entered the House with some knowledge of men I dare say, and with that knowledge brought with me a feeling of responsibility that younger men do not often feel. However, on entering into the Senate of Pennsylvania I felt an added responsibility and I may have exaggerated that to a great extent in my own mind. I wish, however, to bear witness this morning that in my opinion there is no more responsible, no higher honor to occupy or responsibility to respond to than the position of a State Senator. I feel that the man who enters into the State Senate should bring into that position every talent that he has been endowed with and with that talent should have had some knowledge of men and affairs, and that no man should be a Senator unless he feels that responsibility, because I believe that in no position in the State government of this Commonwealth can a man render as much service to the people as he can in the office of Senator. If at times in the vissitudes of politics, if I may use that word in a qualified sense, my conduct may have had a tinge of partisanship, perhaps factionialism, I assure you it was simply an incident and not a principle that I believe should be imposed or carried out in the performance of a man's duty. The Senate of any state or any country since the earliest time of the formation of any government has been the highest place in which the people could exercise their rights and bear to the people that are to be represented in that capacity that message, and bring about that condition which a free people should have, and therefore, in my limited way I tried to bring to the Senate and to the House that kind of service. I brought with it no particular ambition. I wish to say I brought with it no insistent purpose that the Senate should lead to anywhere else, and I wish to say this morning that if I were a man of means and had no other dependents except that which ought to respond to one's own self, I should not have left the Senate of Pennsylvania by choice, and therefore I speak under considerable difficulty because I feel, beside all the personal relations, that I leave the forum in which I may in a humble way have rendered better service than I could in any other way. I will confess I had but one ambition in the legislature and I will also confess that somehow that has been modified and not been achieved. To my mind the public school system is absolutely the greatest factor for the upbuilding of the Commonwealth. I do not say it in reproach, but I say the Public School system of Pennsylvania has not advanced in the last two decades in the degree it should. I have committed to that branch of service of the State every effort that I could bring to it. I find it was of little avail and I feel that with the knowledge, with the experience of a Senator of Pennsylvania, and knowing the needs of the public school system as I believe I do, that if I could have arranged to remain in the Senate of Pennsylvania I might have, in the next few years, helped to bring about an improved condition. I must confess that in all the legislation that has passed through both houses of the legislature I fail to see in any way where the so called common man has been benefited, because from my point of view the legislation has rather confined and crimped the aspirations of the young men of the State. No poor man's son can under the present system of education, without a struggle such as he can hardly overcome, become an attorney, a lawyer, or even become a dentist or a veterinary surgeon if the legislation proposed is enacted. The professions, and I say this without fear of substantial denial, the professions of the State of Pennsylvania are closed to the sons of poor men by the legislation that has been put upon the statute books. I am not going to criticise this in detail, because it would take too long, but I sincerely feel that is the trend of the legislation, and in my way I should have liked to help to stop that kind of procedure because I believe the people of this State will realize it sooner or later. The high schools can only be made good through the legislature of the State by helping them with appropriations and by regulating them not according to the idealist but according to the practical man, with the idealist's co-operation and you men know as well as I that there are few high schools in the State of Pennsylvania which permit the young man to enter a profession from its doors. It is impossible and if you continue to enact the kind of legislation that you have you will shut the door absolutely to a poor man's son becoming a professional man in the State of Pennsylvania That is the only legislation that I feel strongly about and that I have tried consistently and persistently to lend my efforts to improve. As to the other parts of the legislation of this State I have nothing to say, but I do feel strongly about this one proposition, the common school system, and I regret to say, and I do not say it in reproach, that the men in this Commonwealth who could and should and who I know would have the co-operation of the people in this State in their efforts to improve this condition, have so far failed to do it. They are more concerned with the architecture of school houses, with the sanitary conditions, light, etc., the school grounds, with the jurisdiction and responsibility of school directors, and the pay of county superintendents than they are with the real needs of the people. The common school teacher is to-day the lowest paid servant of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. You refused in this legislature, in the Committee of the Senate on Education, you refused to even increase the salary of the common school teacher to-day, although every day you are voting thousands of dollars to other purposes that I do not believe mean for the welfare of the State what good servants could bring about and could do if they were properly treated and properly supported. You ask in the next decade that the poorest paid people that are in the service of State government shall give to the State government the highest class of service. You refuse to do that for some reason or other because forsooth in some districts of the Commonwealth the farmer and the man who pays the taxes say it is too much of a hardship upon them, and yet you vote for resolutions, you vote for bills, why you impose upon presidents and governors autocratic powers to send your sons abroad to die in the trenches of Europe so that democracy might live, and in the State of Pennsylvania you refuse to give to your boys and your girls, who will be the men and women of this Commonwealth, a proper education and the proper discipline so that they may perform that high ideal of democracy as we preach it and as we are called to sacrifice everything we have, lives, property, future. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania refuses to put the men who will drill the coming generations in a position where they can properly, where they can as they ought, perform the duties of citizenship, and for that reason I regret more than I can say to you this morning my inability to be active as a state senator concerned with that kind of legislation. There will be a forum in which I will pay tribute to the personal relations of the members of the Senate with me and I shall endeavor to do so. This morning I am content to say simply that the relationship and intercourse with the members of the State Senate are such that no man who has ever enjoyed it will be able to forget it. It will be a memory such as will sustain him in old age and in more mature manhood, and I need not say that I cannot express my deep regret and my sorrow that that relationship must be severed, but it can not be continued, when a man once leaves the Senate Chamber. It matters not what position he occupies. And I wish to express to the Senators of Pennsylvania, my high appreciation of the courtesy, kindness and consideration that have been extended to me in all these years. I have been perhaps a positive, I may have been an emphatic, I may have been an aggressive, proponent of the things that I desired. I assure you at no time was that tinged with any feelings of ill will and what I may have done, may have been done, because nature will assert itself and the frailties of the human system will be exhibited no matter how much you like or desire not to exhibit them, and for that reason this morning I desire to say not farewell, but that we will see you in some other place where we will be glad to serve you if we can. If we must refuse we may perhaps do it with not the emphasis that a Senator sitting on Judiciary Special might do it, but we will do it in such a way that the intercourse of the Senate will not be forgotten and we will assure you that you will have a welcome. We trust you will come upon business that will be approved by the officer in charge.

And now gentlemen for the purpose of the resolution, I believe that the Senate of Pennsylvania is the part of the government of this Commonwealth which should be consulted by the Executive whenever the Constitution requires it. In the matter of appointments by the Governor of Pennsylvania, I think and sincerely believe that his Excellency should forward not at his pleasure, but when the Senate is in session, as it has been for the last four months, nominations for such position as are vacant. I do not believe he can exercise the powers of government autocratically. His duties are defined by legislative enactment, and are not discretionary. The Constitution requires certain conditions that must be fulfilled. One of the conditions is that all appointments made by the Governor that are prescribed shall be made by the advice and consent of the Senate, and I do not believe that advice and consent can be expressed by the Governor sending in a name to-night, and if the Senate refuses to confirm or reject, that he can to-morrow morning set aside that refusal or objection and reappoint an officer because the Senate has refused to act.

I believe His Excellency should confine himself and submit himself to the law just the same as any other citizen of the Commonwealth or any other officer should do, and in support of that proposition, I do not wish to impose upon the Senate of Pennsylvania a long address. I have prepared a brief at length after considerable work and consultation and the co-operation of skilled men upon this proposition, and I shall ask, without taking up any further time of the Senate, that the argument why the Governor of Pennsylvania should send into the Senate for confirmation the appointments that are now due or should be filled, and which should be in position so that the State government can be properly proceeded with, that these remarks and this argument shall be placed upon the record as my argument in favor of the proposition that the Governor of Pennsylvania should now send in for rejection or confirmation all appointments that he has to make, and for that reason I ask that this brief shall be made part of my remarks and that it may be distributed upon the desks of the Senators for their consideration in the future when this question may come up or when confirmation of these men may be requested, but for the present I believe the Governor of Pennsylvania should in this crisis, and I believe this is a crisis, send over to the Senate of Pennsylvania the nominations of men whose co-operation is necessary that the government of Pennsylvania may be efficient and proficient to perform the great service that is required of every citizen. Now, you know the Utilities Commission is a very important office, that that Commission has important functions. For some time the position of Utility Commissioner on the Public Service Board has been vacant. I believe and submit to the Senate of Pennsylvania so that the grave matters may be disposed of in case of a quick call from the United States government for the service of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that that office should be filled and filled at once; that the office of the Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings, that the Commissioner of Banking should either be rejected or should be confirmed, and that several other high officers that have been appointed, I believe, the Commissioner of Agriculture, that he should either be approved or he should be rejected, and for that reason I ask that this resolution be passed and that it be sent to the Governor and in support of that I also wish that this brief will be considered when it comes up. I hope the Senate will pass this resolution because I sincerely believe it is the duty of the Governor of Pennsylvania to forthwith proceed to appoint, the duty of the Senate of Pennsylvania to forthwith proceed to reject or confirm these appointments so we can do what the Senate of Pennsylvania is expected to do in this great crisis of the world's history.

The PRESIDENT. Is there any objection to the printing of the brief of the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. Snyder, as part of his remarks in the Legislative Journal? The Chair hears none and the remarks will be inserted as requested.

The brief referred to follows:

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS AND CONFIRMATIONS BY THE SENATE.

In discussing the question of executive appointments and confirmations by the Senate, it will be interesting to follow the Constitutional history of executive appointments in Pennsylvania from the Royal Charter granted to William Penn in 16—down to the present day.

Section 5 of the Royal Charter to Penn provides:

"And we do likewise give and grant unto the said William Penn and his heirs, and to his and their deputies and lieutenants, such power and authority to appoint and establish any judges and justices, magistrates and officers whatsoever, for what causes soever, for the probate of wills and for the granting of administrations within the precincts aforesaid, and with what power soever, and in such form as to the said William Penn shall seem most convenient."

See also Charter 1682, Sec. 5, 17, 18; Charter 1701, Sec. 3.

The Constitution of 1776, Chapter 2, Section 20, provides:

"The President (of the Executive Council) and in his absence the Vice-President), with the Council, five of whom shall be a quorum, shall have power to appoint and commissionate judges, naval officers, Judge of the Admirality, Attorney General, and all other officers, cival and military, except such as are chosen by the General Assembly or the people agreeable to this frame of government and the laws that made be made hereafter; and shall supply every vacancy, in any office, occasioned by death, resignation, removal, or disqualification, until the office can be filled in the time and manner directed by law or this Constitution."

The Constitution of 1790, Article 2, Section 8, provides:

"He (the Governor) shall appoint all officers, whose offices are established by law, and whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for * * * "

The Constitution of 1790 further provides, Article 5, Section 4:

"Section 4. Until it shall be otherwise directed by law, the several courts of common pleas shall be established in the following manner: The Governor shall appoint, in each county, not fewer than three nor more than four judges, who, during their continuance in office, shall reside in such county. The State shall be divided by law into circuits, none of which shall include more than six nor fewer than three counties. A president shall be appointed of the courts in each circuit, who, during his continuance in office, shall reside therein. The president and judges, any two of whom shall be a quorum, shall compose the respective courts of common pleas."

The amendment of 1838 (Article 2, Section 8) says:

"He (the Governor) shall appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth during pleasure, and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint all judicial officers of the courts of record, unless otherwise provided for in this Constitution. He shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen in such judicial offices, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next sessions: Provided, That in acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays."

By the judiciary amendment of 1850, which Article 5, Section 2, which made judgeships in courts of record elective offices, it was provided: That

"any vacancies happening by death, resignation, or otherwise, in any of the said courts shall be filled by appointment by the Governor to continue until the first Monday of December, succeeding the next General Election."

The Constitution of 1874, Article 4, Section 8, provides:

"He shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney-General during pleasure, a Superintendent of Public Instruction for four years, and such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint. He shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen in office to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session. He shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen during the recess of the Senate in the office of Auditor-General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs, or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate before their final adjournment a proper person to fill said vacancy, but in any such case of vacancy in an elective office a person shall be chosen to said office at the next general election unless the vacancy shall happen within three calendar months immediately preceding such election, in which case the election for said office shall be held at the second succeeding general election. In acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal."

Article 5, Section 25, provides:

"Any vacancy happening by death, resignation, or otherwise, in any court of record, shall be filled by appointment by the Governor, to continue till the first Monday of January next succeeding the first general election, which shall occur three or more months after the happening of such vacancy."

Section 4, Article 8, has been amended by the amendments of 1909, Amendment No. 1, adopted by the vote of the people, November 2, 1909, so as to read:

"But in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office according to the provisions of this Constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day, in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office."

Article 4, Section 8, and Article 5, Section 25, above quoted, are in direct conflict with each other, and no judicial decision ever seems to have been rendered on the sections concerning the office of the judiciary.

Smull's Legislative Handbook, 1916, says:

"there is a conflict between these sections as to filling vacancies in courts of record, which will require judicial determination."

In order to arrive at an intelligent understanding of the powers of the Executive to make appointments and the limitations on that power, it is well to first consider the present provision of the Constitution of Pennsylvania granting these powers and at the same time defining the limits within which they may be exercised, and beyond which they cannot operate. The Constitutional provision with regard to appointments, confirmations and the filling of vacancies is found in Section eight of Article four of the Constitution, which in so far as we are concerned, reads as follows:

"He (the Governor) shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint * * * such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; * * * if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy. * * * In acting on Executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and, in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal."

It will be of advantage at the outset to note the similarity of the analagous provisions of the Federal Constitution, as I shall rely in this discussion very largely on arguments made in reference to the Federal Constitution and on official and judicial constructions placed on it. The provision of the Federal Constitution referred to is section 2, article 2, which, so far as it is necessary to quote it reads as follows:

" * * * * and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the Supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law; * * *

"The President shall have Power to fill up all Vacancies that may happen during the Recess of the Senate, by granting Commissions which shall expire at the end of their next Session."

The two constitutions are almost verbatim, and, for purposes of construction, differ in no material respect.

The Pennsylvania Constitution of 1838 contained similar provisions, but only with regard to judicial officers. The section in that Constitution is section 8 of Article 2, which is set forth at length above.

The earlier constitutions contained no provisions for action by the Senate on any appointments. Whatever appointments were made by the Governor were made at his pleasure entirely. In the very earliest constitution, however, the propriety of legislative control over the filling of public offices was recognized. By section 9 of the Constitution of 1776 the House of Representatives was given power "to choose the treasurer of the state," and by section 5, article 6 of the Constitution of 1790, it was provided that "The State Treasurer shall be appointed, annually, by the joint vote of the members of both houses."

The matter of making appointments to public offices is not in itself essentially either an executive nor a legislative function. It is not a power that is inherent in either branch of the government. It exists only in the people themselves and may by them, through the mouthpiece of the constitution, be delegated to either branch of the government or given to both conjointly. The latter method was adopted by the present constitution in the case of the offices involved in the present argument, and is also the method adopted by the section of the Federal Constitution, which I have just referred to. An explanation of the seat of this power and the consequences of this construction is furnished in the following extract from a published report of the Committee on the Judiciary of the United States Senate (Feb. 18, 1886):

"There are certain powers of our Government that are purely legislative, others purely executive, and others purely judicial; and there are certain other powers that belong to neither of those classes, and because they are to be exercised by one of the departments, or a branch thereof, does not make them legislative, executive, or judicial. The House of Representatives may impeach officers of the Government; and, when the electors fail to elect the President, is to choose that officer, and yet neither of these acts is of a legislative character. The President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is clothed with the full appointing power. The function of the Senate to approve or reject the President's nominations is not legislative; nor is it executive in our system, because, to be so, it must appertain to the President. Neither is the act of nominating to office an executive power, or indeed, of itself, any power; it is merely a constituent, an element of a power, to be furnished by the agency of the President, as the other constituent is to be produced by the action of the Senate. If the President's nomination be rejected, nothing has been effected by it; both must concur and combine to constitute a power, a faculty in the business of the Government."

"From these plain principles it is apparent that theoretical constructions of the provisions and powers of our Constitution, by analogies drawn from other Governments, are very liable, as they have led to great errors; and, as a general rule, it is much safer to construe our Constitution of itself; and by itself, especially as it is a Government, not of original and plenary, but of delegated and limited, powers. Though the power of appointment, in our peculiar system, is given conjointly to the President and the Senate, yet their action is separate and independent, and each equally necessary to effect the result. The 'advice and consent' of the Senate is as indispensable as the nomination of the president to fill an office."

At the constitutional convention which drew up our present constitution, section 8 of article 4 (or section 9 as it was first submitted) was made the subject of much discussion and some fine argument, the principal question under consideration being as to whether the appointment of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the Attorney General ought properly to be subject to ratification by the Senate.

What was there said in favor of ratification applies with much stronger force to the cases of appointive offices in general—that is, offices other than the Secretary of the Commonwealth and Attorney General, for whose acts the Governor is more or less directly personally responsible. For the acts of the average head of a department the Governor is in no wise responsible. This was the view taken by ex-Governor Bigler, a member of the convention, who said in part (5 Deb. Const. Conv. Pa. 211):

"I can remember very well a condition of things when the proposition of the distinguished gentleman from the city (Mr. Woodward) would have been entirely proper, when the duties of the Attorney General and those of the Secretary of the Commonwealth were connected almost exclusively with those of the Executive Department. But it is otherwise now, and I think in view of the important duties devolving upon these officers by the law alone and not by the executive, it would be very proper to consult the Senate, and I cannot see any great objection to requiring the two-thirds vote. Occasions may arise when that would be an important and valuable restriction.

"I had made up my mind, in view of what little I know of this subject, in the way of experience, that it would be better to put this restriction in. Indeed I can see that it is the spirit of the Convention in reference to all the departments of the government. We propose to give them large powers, it is true, but at the same time we are endeavoring to throw around the legislative department as well as the executive, unusual restraint. We are endeavoring to avoid the errors of the past, and considered in that spirit I cannot see any objection to this restriction upon the executive department."

It is interesting to note that among the members of this Constitutional Convention were two ex-Governors, Bigler and Curtin, Pennsylvania's war Governor. It is especially interesting to note that both these ex-Governors not only voted in favor of the restriction on executive appointments, but both made strong arguments in favor of it. The chief argument advanced by Governor Curtin was to the effect that the power of making appointments is inherent in the people, and that the right of the people to exercise this power should be protected as far as possible by saving to their agents, the Senate, the right and power to reject or confirm all appointments made. Governor Curtin's speech, omitting only such part as applies only to the offices of Secretary of the Commonwealth and Attorney General, is as follows (5 Deb. Const. Conv. Pa. pages 209-210):

"I trust the Convention will give this amendment full consideration before they agree to it. I should be very sorry indeed to take away any of the dignity of the office of Governor of the Commonwealth, or to change its responsibility either to the people or to God, in the language of the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Harry White); but I would put around the Governor of this State precisely the same restraints that you put around other officials; and while he is enjoying the full dignity of his office, I think it is proper that the people should understand that they have something to do with the appointment of high official functionaries. * * * In the exercise of these powers the people of the State have more interest than the Governor; but he is given in this section, as reported by the committee, the full power to appoint at his pleasure a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney General; but as in other States the people elect the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the Attorney General, or officers having similar powers, in this State we continue to give the Governor the power to appoint, but we say to your Governor when he appoints his Attorney General and his Secretary of the Commonwealth at his pleasure and removes them at his will, that as they exercise very important official functions over which the Governor has no control and for which he is not responsible, the people shall have some interest in the appointment; and we therefore interpose the Senate representing the body of the people, confirming the appointment, precisely as all officers are appointed under the Constitution of the United States.

"We do not go back to elect these officers by the people. We give the Governor the appointment of these two men who are to a large extent his confidential advisers, but at the same time we provide in this article of the Constitution that he shall submit the names of these officers to the Senate of the State, representing the body of the people and if he appoints unfit men, the representatives of the people shall have the power to reject his nominations and compel him, while he seeks confidential advisers and appoints his friends to appoint men fit for the place; and we provide that the people shall have some voice in declaring who are fit and who are not fit.

"It is true, as has been said, that it is not likely that the people of Pennsylvania—and there is great consolation in the fact—are to elevate to this high position men who will not be careful that they discharge the duties faithfully. That may be true in the past; we take it for granted it is so; but I suppose I am in a position to say here that the people of Pennsylvania do not always choose the wisest or the best man for Governor. Sometimes it is possible they may make a mistake. Nor may they always choose a man who will hold the heavy responsibility so eloquently described by the gentleman from Indiana as feeling his allegiance to his God and his responsibility to his constituents; and if ever it should turn out that such a man by a mistake of the people should get into this most important office in the State, and select for his constitutional advisers an Attorney General and a Secretary of State of the Commonwealth of his own kind who might be connected with him, it would be proper, as the committee thought, that the people should have some voice; and we therefore referred to the Senate the confirmation or rejection of such appointments."

From another aspect the use of appointments as political assets and the safeguard against this abuse by the Executive a very strong and logical argument was presented by Mr. Armstrong in these words (5 Deb. Const. Conv. Pa. page 208):

"Now if we are to have a government in this State which is to exercise its functions for the best interests of all its people it should be lifted so far as it can be out of the mere influence of politicians. If the Senate is composed of a mere majority of either party and the Executive is of the same party he could scarcely make a nomination which would not be confirmed by a majority of the Senate. The purpose of this provision is that men shall be selected for these positions upon their merit and not as a reward merely of political services. The Senate of our State is at present composed of thirty-three members. A majority would be seventeen. It would require twenty-two members in a Senate of thirty-three to concur in approving a nominee suggested by the Governor. Is it too much to suppose that five members of an opposing party would give their assent to a nomination which was eminently fitting and proper to be made? And if it be said that they might refuse their assent to a person who is merely to be rewarded for political services, I say it is right, and it is the very thing and purpose which this section is intended to advance. I think there is no danger in it. It would compel the Governor to recommend for office persons of admitted ability and fitness, and if such persons are recommended I cannot conceive that there would not be found five members of the opposition party willing to concede such an appointment to the majority of the Senate and to the executive of the State. But it would be conservative and would prevent these offices from being made the mere reward of political service; not but what (that) persons of political influence and political service ought to be in many instances appointed, but they ought to be persons whose fitness would commend them in some degree to the approbation of the opposition party, whichever side it might chance to be.

"I believe that this section is right as it stands, that it can work no injury to the Commonwealth, but will greatly improve the quality and the fitness of the officers by whom these functions are to be exercised."

With the further extract from the remarks of Mr. Biddle, we leave the consideration of the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention of Pennsylvania, to see what aid in the construction of this section of the Constitution can be obtained from the remarks of the members of the greater convention which prepared the Constitution of the United States. Before leaving the Pennsylvania Convention, however, it will be very instructive to call attention to the vote taken on the proposed amendment, the effect of which would have been to take away the power of the Senate to act on the appointments of Secretary of the Commonwealth and Attorney General. This vote was yeas 16, nays 72—an overwhelming vote in favor of giving the Senate the final word on these appointments. Mr. Biddle said (5 Deb. Const. Conv. Pa. page 211):

"The amendment is to strike out the concurrence of the Senate or of any body at all and to allow the Governor to appoint the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the Attorney General without any restriction upon his selection. I, for one, am opposed to lodging any such power in the hands of the Executive. This subject has been treated as little as if the Governor's responsibilities were altogether to look to the future and indeed to look to the next world. Now, responsibility to the Governor's God may be an excellent thing for him; but it is of very little value to the people of this Commonwealth; and responsibility to constituents where you have just decided that he shall be ineligible to a second term, does not amount to a great deal. I think that in regard to officers so vastly important as these two functionaries, and who in many of the States of this Union are elected directly by the people, the stamp of approval of the representatives of the people should be upon them. I hope, therefore, that the amendment will not prevail.

In order to obtain an idea of the construction placed on the analagous provision of the Federal Constitution at the time of its adoption, the following extracts from the "Federalist" are of much interest:

'It ought to be vested in a single man, or in a select assembly of a moderate number; or in a single man, with the concurrence of such an assembly.

"One man of discernment is better fitted to analyze and estimate the peculiar qualities adapted to particular offices, than a body of men of equal, or perhaps even of superior discernment. The sole and undivided responsibility of one man, will naturally beget a livelier sense of duty, and a more exact regard to reputation. He will have fewer personal attachments to gratify than a body of men who may be supposed to have an equal number.

'If this power was in an assembly alone, it would beget bargains.

'The advantages to be expected from the appointment in one man would, in substance, be derived from the power of nomination. In the act of nominating his judgment alone is exercised, and as it is his sole duty to point out a man, who with the approbation of the Senate, shall fill the office, his responsibility is as complete as though he had made the final appointment.

'No difference between nominating and appointing. As no man can be appointed but upon his previous nomination, any man who might be appointed would be, in fact, his choice. The person ultimately appointed, must be the object of his preference, though not in the first degree.

'The concurrence of the Senate will have a powerful, though in general a silent operation. It will be a check upon a spirit of favoritism by the President and will tend greatly to prevent the appointment of unfit characters.

(Number 76, Federalist, pp. 197-8-9.)

'Senate has no choice in appointments—can only ratify or reject. The Senate might entertain a preference to some other person, at the very moment they were assenting to the one proposed, but if they withheld their consent they could not be sure that the subsequent nomination would fall upon their own favorite.

(Number 66, Federalist, p. 132.)

'President proposes, but possibility of rejection and consequent loss of his reputation would be a strong motive to prevent his presenting a candidate without merit. The Senate will not be complaisant because the supposition of universal venality in human nature is little less an error in political reasoning than that of universal rectitude.'

Before entering upon a minute consideration of the specific points of law involved in this controversy, it may be well to examine a few general authorities on the construction of this section of the Constitution. I will first call your attention to Buckalew on the Constitution of Pennsylvania, page 110, which makes the following construction of these rights:

"Rightly understood, this section confers no part of the appointing power upon the Senate, nor does it constitute any ground for implication in favor of senatorial participation in making removals from office. The appointing power, in its nature, executive, and is properly vested in the Governor, whose duty it is to see that the laws are faithfully executed. To the proper performance of this duty, charged upon the Governor by the Constitution, it is necessary that he shall hold an appointing power as to non-elective offices, except local or subordinate ones, and that he shall fill vacancies in all such, and in important elective offices, until they can be regularly filled by election or appointment.

"The check upon the appointing power placed in the hands of Senators does not render the Senate primarily responsible for appointments; that responsibility rests upon the Governor, for the power to select an appointee is exclusively his, and the ultimate appointment, made and evidenced by the issuing of a commission, is, also, his act alone. The Senate cannot propose any one for selection to an office by the Governor, nor even constrain the Governor to appoint a person he may have named to them for their advice and consent, and to whose proposed appointment they have consented, in short, they have power to prevent appointments which they may consider objectionable, but have not power to cause any appointment whatever to be made."

Let us now see what White on the Constitution of Pennsylvania has to say (page 283):

"As has already been suggested, the Governor's power to fill vacancies is applicable to two classes of offices: those which are elective and those which are appointive. He could fill appointive offices in the absence of any clause giving him authority to fill vacancies, were it not for the fact that his power to appoint is by and with the consent of the Senate. As during some portion of his term the Senate is not in session, it was necessary for the Governor to be given the power to make appointments during the recess of the Senate. The terms for which these appointments can be made are limited to such times as the Senate can conveniently confirm or reject them. It is, therefore, provided that the appointees shall hold their commissions only until the end of the next session of the Senate. If the vacancy occurs, however, during the session of the Senate and an appointment is made and confirmed, the appointee is then entitled to hold until the end of the term, for which his predecessor was originally appointed. This is also the case where an appointment made during the recess is subsequently confirmed.".

Probably the clearest and most logical treatment of the question of the double system of appointment to public offices is given in Story on the Constitution, which shows the advantages to be gained from this system and the safeguard it is intended to afford. It clearly indicates the spirit of the Constitution, which is the only firm and safe basis for all constitutional constructions. I hope I may therefore be pardoned for quoting from this work at some length. The following extract is taken from the second volume of Story on the Constitution, 5th Edition, pages 353 to 357 inclusive:

"1530. But though these general considerations might easily reconcile us to the choice of vesting the power of appointment exclusively in the President, in preference to the Senate or House of Representatives alone, the patronage of the government and the appointments to office are too important to the public welfare not to induce great hesitation in vesting them exclusively in the President. The power may be abused; and assuredly it will be abused, except in the hands of an executive of great firmness, independence, integrity and public spirit. It should never be forgotten, that in a republican government offices are established and are to be filled, not to gratify private interests and private attachments; not as a means of corrupt influence or individual profit; not for cringing favorites or court sycophants; but for purposes of the highest public good, to give dignity, strength, purity, and energy to the administration of the laws. It would not, therefore, be a wise course to omit any precaution, which, at the same time that it should give to the President a power over the appointments of those who are in conjunction with himself to execute the laws, should also interpose a salutary check upon its abuse, acting by way of preventive as well as of remedy.

"1531. Happily this difficult task has been achieved by the Constitution. The President is to nominate, and thereby has the sole power to select for office; but his nomination cannot confer office, unless approved by a majority of the Senate. His responsibility and theirs is thus complete and distinct. He can never be compelled to yield to their appointment of a man unfit for office; and, on the other hand, they may withhold their advice and consent from any candidate who, in their judgment, does not possess due qualifications for office. Thus, no serious abuse of the power can take place without the co-operation of two co-ordinate branches of the government acting in distinct spheres; and if there should be any improper concession on either side, it is obvious that, from the structure and changes incident to each department, the evil cannot long endure, and will be remedied, as it should be, by the elective franchise. The consciousness of this check will make the President more circumspect and deliberate in his nominations for office. He will feel that, in case of a disagreement of opinion with the Senate, his principal vindication must depend upon the unexceptionable character of his nomination. And in case of a rejection, the most that can be said is, that he had not his first choice. He will still have a wide range of selection; and his responsibility to present another candidate, entirely qualified for the office, will be complete and unquestionable.

"1532. Nor is it to be expected that the Senate will ordinarily fail of ratifying the appointment of a suitable person for the office. Independent of the desire which such a body may naturally be presumed, to feel, of having offices suitably filled (when they cannot make the appointment themselves), there will be a responsibility to public opinion for a rejection, which will overcome all common private wishes. Cases, indeed, may be imagined, in which the Senate, from party motives, from a spirit of opposition, and even from motives of a more private nature, may reject a nomination absolutely unexceptionable. But such occurrences will be rare. The more common error (if there shall be any) will be too great a facility to yield to the executive wishes, as a means of personal or popular favor. A President will rarely want means, if he shall choose to use them, to induce some members of such a body to aid his nominations; since a correspondent influence may be fairly presumed to exist to gratify such persons in other recommendations for office, and thus to make them indirectly the dispensers of local patronage. It will be principally with regard to high officers, such as ambassadors, judges, heads of departments,' and other appointments of great public importance, that the Senate will interpose to prevent an unsuitable choice. Their own dignity and sense of character, their duty to their country, and their very title to office, will be materially dependent upon a firm discharge of their duty on such occasions.

"1533. Perhaps the duties of the President, in the discharge of this most delicate and important duty of his office, were never better summed up than in the following language of a distinguished commentator. 'A proper selection and appointment of subordinate officers is one of the strongest marks of a powerful mind. It is the duty of the President to acquire, as far as possible, an intimate knowledge of the capacities and characters of his fellow-citizens; to disregard the importunities of friends, the hints or menaces of enemies, the bias of party, and the hope of popularity. The latter is sometimes the refuge of feeble-minded men; but its gleam is transient, if it is obtained by a dereliction of honest duty and sound discretion. Popular favor is best secured by carefully ascertaining and strictly pursuing the true interests of the people. The President himself is elected on the supposition that he is the most capable citizen to understand and promote those interests; and in every appointment he ought to consider himself as executing a public trust of the same nature. Neither should the fear of giving offence to the public, or pain to the individual, deter him from the immediate exercise of his power of removal on proof of incapacity or infidelity in the subordinate officer. The public, uninformed of the necessity, may be surprised, and at first dissatisfied; but public approbation ultimately accompanies the fearless and upright discharge of duty.'

"1534. It was objected by some persons, at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, that this union of the executive with the Senate in appointments would give the President an undue influence over the Senate. This argument is manifestly untenable, since it supposes than an undue influence over the Senate is to be acquired by the power of the latter to restrain him. Even if the argument were well founded, the influence of the President over the Senate would be still more increased, by giving him the exclusive power of appointment; for then he would be wholly beyond restraint. The opposite ground was assumed by other persons, who thought the influence of the Senate over the President would by this means become dangerous, if not irresistible. There is more plausibility in this suggestion, but it proceeds upon unsatisfactory reasoning. It is certain, that the Senate cannot, by their refusal to confirm the nominations of the President, prevent him from the proper discharge of his duty. The most that can be suggested is, that they may induce him to yield to their favorites, instead of his own, by resisting his nominations. But if this should happen in a few rare instances, it is obvious that his means of influence would ordinarily form a countercheck. The power which can originate the disposal of honors and emoluments is more likely to attract than to be attracted by the power which can merely obstruct their course. But in truth, in every system of government there are possible dangers and real difficulties; and to provide for the suppression of all influence of one department in regard to another, would be as visionary as to provide that human passions and feelings should never influence public measures. The most that be done is to provide checks, and public responsibility. The plan of the Constitution seems as nearly perfect for this purpose as any one can be; and indeed it has been less censured than any other important delegation of power in that instrument."

We are now ready to consider the points of law involved, and in considering them, a few unalterable principles of construction must always be borne in mind. These principles, from which there is no dissention, may well be stated in the language of White on the Constitution of Pennsylvania (page 12):

"The rule of construction which is most fundamental is that 'Conventions to regulate the conduct of nations are not to be interpreted like articles of agreement at the common law; and that where multitudes are to be affected by the construction of an instrument, great regard should be paid to the spirit and intention. And the reason for it is an obvious one. A constitution is made, not particularly for the inspection of lawyers, but for the inspection of the million, that they may read and discern in it their rights and their duties; and it is consequently expressed in the terms that are most familiar to them. Words, therefore, which do not of themselves denote that they are used in a technical sense, are to have their plain, popular, obvious and natural meaning.' 'A constitution is not to receive a technical construction like a common law instrument or a statute. It is to be interpreted so as to carry out the great principles of government, not to defeat them.' 'In construing a constitution it must be borne in mind that its provisions are necessarily general, and couched in the language of the people by whom it was ordained. Its words should, therefore, be taken in their popular, natural and ordinary meaning, rather than in any technical or restricted sense. The object of construction, as applied to such an instrument, is to give full effect to the intent of its framers, and the people in adopting it. That intent, of course, is to be sought for in the instrument itself.' 'Every word employed in the constitution is to be expounded in its plain, obvious and common sense meaning.' If, however, the usual meaning of the words will operate as a restriction of a power, and another interpretation is possible which will sustain a grant of it, the latter meaning must be adopted, and the exercise of the power upheld. No attention will be paid to the captions of the article or sections. They are inserted only for convenience."

The further rule laid down in Page v. Allen, 58 Pa. 338 and in Etter v. McAfee, 229 Pa. 315, 318, should also be remembered:

"The expression of one thing in the constitution necessarily excludes things not expressed."

In the present discussion there are four main points to be considered:

First. Whether after an appointment has been made by the Executive and submitted to the Senate, and such appointment has been rejected by the Senate, the Executive may, notwithstanding, after the adjournment of the Senate, appoint the same person to the same office for the same period of time, or to fill the vacancy in the same office until the end of the next session of the Senate.

Second. Whether where a vacancy in an appointive office exists prior to or during the session of the Senate and remains vacant during the session, or filled by temporary appointment, the Executive may withhold the submission of any candidate for such office during the entire session of the Senate, and after its adjournment make an appointment to fill the vacancy or to permanently fill the office.

Third. Whether if the vacancy exists at any time during the session of the Senate, the Executive may, while the Senate is still in session, appoint a person to fill such vacancy or the entire term, without submitting such name to the Senate.

Fourth. Whether a temporary appointee can hold over after the session of the Senate, when no permanent appointment has been made during such session.

In taking up the first question of the discussion, that is, as to the appointment of a person rejected by the Senate, it will be sufficient to call attention to the express language of the Constitution, "He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint * * * ." This language permits of no strained construction; its obvious meaning is that the Governor may nominate a person to fill an office, but may not without the advice and consent of the Senate appoint any one to such office. The idea sought to be brought out is that the Executive in the first instance is given the power of nomination only, and is given no power to appoint without the concurrence of the Senate. If, therefore, the Executive were permitted after the adjournment of the Senate to appoint to the office a person who has been rejected by the Senate, not only is the constitutional provision not followed, but it is deliberately violated. An appointment is made not only without the advice and consent of the Senate, but contrary to its advice and consent. The point here in discussion has been definitely ruled upon by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the case of Lane v. Commonwealth, 103 Pa., 481, where the court on page 485 says:

"As already shown, the Constitution declares in section 8 cited, the governor shall nominate and he shall appoint. Before he completes the appointment the senate shall consent to his appointing the person whom he has named. It may prevent an appointment by the governor, but it cannot appoint. It may either consent or dissent. That is the extent of its power. There its action ends. It cannot suggest the name of another. If it dissent the governor cannot appoint the person named. If it consent he may or may not, at his option, make the appointment. If for any reason his views as to the propriety of the proposed appointment change, he may decline to make it. That option is not subject to the will of the Senate. Until the governor executes the commission, the appointment is not made. Prior to that time at his mere will, he may supersede all action had in the case: Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch 137; Story's Con. Sec. 1540."

This language was quoted with approval in the late case of Seltzer v. Fertig, 237 Pa. 514, in which case the court, after calling attention to the similarity in the constitutional provisions relating to the appointment of assistant clerks of the orphans' court and executive appointments in general, reach the following conclusion:

"Our conclusion is, therefore, that, while the register may appoint an assistant clerk only with the consent and approval of the court, yet the power of removal is in the register alone."

The question as to filling of vacancies by the Executive without the advice and consent of the Senate will be taken up in the discussion of the second question herein involved. It is sufficient to say in the present connection that such appointments may be made for a temporary period only, that is until the end of the session of the Senate following the time when the appointment was made. Therefore if a temporary appointee has been submitted to the Senate as a candidate for a permanent appointment, if such candidate is rejected by the Senate, the term of his original appointment expires with the termination of the session of the Senate, and as will be shown later, neither he nor any other person can be appointed to such office either permanently or on the pretext of a vacancy. To appoint the same person even to fill a vacancy until the termination of the next session of the Senate is clearly a violation of the spirit, if not of the letter of the Constitution. This contention is well sustained in the opinion of the lower court in the case of Comm. v. Waller, 145 Pa. 235. A full discussion of the merits of this opinion will appear in a later part of this brief. The court on page 246 says:

"It is therefore manifest that this case is not an authority for the position which it is cited to sustain, and we have not been referred to any case which decides that the governor has power to appoint one who has been rejected by the Senate, to the same office and for the same period for which he was nominated and rejected, or any part of such period; and in the absence of authority we think the spirit and intent of the Constitution forbids this to be done."

The second point involved in this discussion, that is as to whether the Executive may withhold appointments to fill offices wherein there exists a vacancy, or offices that are filled by temporary appointments, during a session of the Senate, and appoint any person to fill the vacancies occurring after the adjournment of the Senate, is directly covered by the provision of the Constitution which declares * * * if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy." The word "happen" as used in the Constitution has been frequently and uniformly construed to mean not necessarily originating, but include a vacancy which exists during such period, whether the vacancy originated before the session of the Senate, or during it.

Opinion of Atty.-Gen. Taney, 2 Opin. 525.
State v. Kuhl, 51 N. J. L. 191.
In re Farrow, 3 Fed. R. 112.
Opinions of Justices, 45 N. H. 590.
Richardson v. Young, 122 Tenn. 471.

With this construction, can it be argued that the Executive has any right to withhold appointments to offices where vacancies should be properly filled during a session of the Senate? To permit of such a construction would be to entirely do away with the beneficial provision of the Constitution in providing for the double system of appointments. If the Executive were so permitted to withhold appointments, there is no guarantee that an Executive might not withhold his appointments from each succeeding session of the Senate, and immediately upon its adjournment appoint a person, who would not have received the consent of the Senate, to the office, nominally, to fill a vacancy until the end of the next session of the Senate. That this would actually amount to a permanent two years' appointment cannot be gain-said. At the the following session of the Senate the Executive might again withhold the appointment, and again at the adjournment of such session appoint the same person, again nominally to fill a vacancy, but again actually appointing him for a permanent two years' term. Thus the Executive is given the absolute right to appoint for a full four years' term without control or restriction of any kind. This as has already been shown would absolutely frustrate the beneficial system of appointments which has been devised and incorporated into both our Constitution and the Constitution of the United States.

It may be argued that the safeguards of the Constitution are really not violated, insomuch as the Executive can make appointments to fill vacancies only for a limited period. So Attorney General Taney in an opinion which will be referred to more at length later, makes the following statement:

"But the control of the Senate over appointments to such vacancies is effectually preserved by the limited term for which the President is authorized to make them."

This argument, however, applies with less force in Pennsylvania than it does in the case of a national appointment, as the Senate of the United States sits every year, and a temporary appointment can therefore not be made for a longer period than one year, while the Senate of Pennsylvania sits only once in every two years, and the so-called temporary appointment must therefore be made for a period of two whole years.

It has been said, and it may be truly so with reference to the Federal Constitution, that it abhors a vacancy in office as nature abhors a vacuum. This argument is properly applicable only to cases where the Executive has submitted names to the Senate, and the Senate has failed to act on such names either favorably or otherwise. In such cases the safeguard of the Constitution has been afforded, and the failure of a complete appointment is not placed on the Executive. Cases may also well be imagined where through unforeseen circumstances or through inadvertence a vacancy continues after a session of the Senate, such for instance as the failure of the appointee to qualify. In cases like these, the Executive may well and in perfect good faith fill the vacancy which ensues after the adjournment of the Senate. Such cases are readily distinguishable from the deliberate attempt on the part of the Executive to defeat the purposes of the Constitution by designedly withholding nominations from the Senate.

It is interesting to note that this distinction was clearly drawn in one of the earliest opinions on this question. Attorney General Taney, later Chief Justice of the Superme Court of the United States, in ruling that the President of the United States may fill vacancies continuing after the adjournment of the Senate due to the failure of the Senate to act on nominations submitted, lays down the common sense rule that the Constitution is not subject to strained technical constructions, but must be construed according to its spirit and evident purpose, which, as has already been shown, is perfectly clear. The line of demarkation as laid down in the opinion referred to is not so much the strict one of vacancies originating during a recess, and those originating during a session, as it is the character of the vacancies themselves—that is, a vacancy that can be filled in the regular course by nomination and confirmation, and one that for valid reasons cannot be so filled. The Constitution is just as specific in either case. In the former the provision is mandatory that nominations shall be submitted to the Senate, and no other method is provided or permitted.

The following extract from the opinion (2 Opin. 525), brings out these arguments and clearly sets forth the vital distinction between the case covered by the opinion and the present case:

"It is manifest, however, that the Constitution could not have intended to place such cases on a different footing from vacancies which occur after the adjournment. There is no reason for a distinction between them. And the words used in the Constitution do not, I think, by any fair construction, require a distinction to be taken. It was intended to provide for those vacancies which might arise from accident and the contingencies to which human affairs must always be liable; and if it falls out that, from death, inadvertence, or mistake, an office required by law to be filled is, in the recess, found to be vacant, then a vacancy has happened during the recess, and the President may fill it. This appears to be the common sense and natural import of the words used. They mean the same thing as if the Constitution had said 'if there happen to be any vacancies during the recess.' The framers of the Constitution had provided for filling the offices with the concurrence of the Senate, but foreseeing that, from the various casualties to which human concerns are exposed, vacancies would be found during the recess, they gave power to fill them until an opportunity can be afforded of bringing the appointments before the Senate; and they use words which denote the character of the vacancies which they foresee may occur, and for which they are providing. He may fill up vacancies which 'happen' during the recess, but vacancies are not designedly to be kept open by the President until the recess for the purpose of avoiding the control of the Senate; and the word 'happen' is used to describe the class and kind of vacancies and not the particular time at which they took place."

"It has been said that this power, if possessed by the President, may be so used as to defeat the intention of the Constitution and exclude the Senate from all share in appointments. The answer to such an objection appears to be a plain one. If the President wilfully abuses a power given to him, the Constitution has provided a remedy. In this case the Senate have had a full opportunity of acting, but have not acted, and have held the nomination under advisement and left it to fall vacant as soon as they adjourned. They must be supposed to have had sufficient reasons for keeping the nomination in their power and suspending their action upon it. The President could not nominate another person for the same office until this was disposed of and was either withdrawn by him or finally acted on by the Senate. And as the Senate have had an opportunity of acting, but have determined to suspend their decision, I can not see how an appointment now made by the President can be supposed to interfere with the rights of the Senate. There is nothing in the case that can be construed into a desire to avoid their constitutional control."

"If, however, the restricted interpretation contended for were admitted, still, in the case before me, the President would have the right to appoint. The vacancy did take place in the recess. The former appointment continued during the session, and there was no vacancy until after they adjourned. The vacancy followed the adjournment; and whether it took place immediately afterwards, or at distant interval, can make no difference. If it took place after the adjournment, it happened during the recess, according to the narrowest interpretation proposed to be given to the article; and, consequently, even in that view of the subject the President has a right to fill it."

"I do not desire to place my opinion on this ground, but upon what I believe to be the true construction of the Constitution, as before stated."

It may be said that if the power of appointment were abused by the Executive in the manner which has been indicated above, the Constitution itself gives the remedy by way of impeachment. That this remedy is not adequate, however, goes without saying. The mischief of an appointment by the Executive alone for a period of two years is still present, and an impeachment could be had, if at all, only at the session following, which would again premit two years to elapse. This point is very well taken in the case of Lane v. Commonwealth, already referred to on page 486 of that case. It is therefore seen that the only means of enforcing the safeguard is by prohibiitng an officer serving under a temporary appointment by the Executive, made after the adjournment of a session of the Senate, and where the vacancy filled existed during such session, from performing any of the functions, or from receiving the compensation provided for such office, that is by declaring an absolute vacancy which can only be filled by calling an extra session of the Legislature and permitting the Executive to submit names to the Senate at such extra session.

The case of Commonwealth v. Waller, 145 Pa. 235, may be well taken up at this point. This was a case where a vacancy occurred in the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. The vacancy was filled by the Governor until the end of the following session of the Senate, at which session the name of the temporary appointee was submitted to and approved by the Senate for permanent appointment. Before the issuance of a commission by the Governor, however, the Governor's term expired, and a new Governor was inaugurated. The new Governor completely disregarded the appointment and confirmation already made and sent another name to the Senate to fill the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. This nomination was rejected by the Senate. After the adjournment of the Senate the Governor appointed the person who had been rejected to fill the vacancy. The person holding under the old appointment and confirmation by the Senate refused to give up his office. The court of common pleas of Dauphin County held that the appointment was not complete, even though the nomination had been made and confirmed by the Senate, until the commission had actually been issued, and that the temporary appointment of the defendant expired with the adjournment of the Senate; that he could therefore not hold over after the Senate had adjourned. The Supreme Court, however, on appeal, held that the actual issuance of the commission was not necessary, and that the defendant having been nominated and confirmed by the Senate, was entitled to the office for the full term. The Supreme Court inter alia says on page 257:

"This clause of the Constitution is by no means clear. It will be noticed, however, that there are two classes of vacancies to be filled by appointment by the Governor, viz, those that relate to elective offices, and those that are non-elective. In the former, the Governor can only fill a vacancy until such time as the people can fill it by an election as provided by law. Hence the commission of the Governor can run no further. In the other case, non-elective offices, no time is designated during which his appointee can hold, except the single provision that, if a vacancy shall occur during the recess of the Senate, he shall be commissioned until the expiration of the next session. This simply means that his appointee to this class of offices shall be confirmed by the Senate; otherwise his incumbency expires with its adjournment. * * * "

The lower court, although mistaking the law on this one point, rendered a very good and logical opinion, and discussed the whole question of Executive appointments and confirmations by the Senate at much length, and we think on good authority. The lower court says in discussing the provision of the Constitution already referred to:

"We do not consider the proper construction of these clauses (Article IV, Section eight, of the Constitution), free from doubt, but assuming the spirit of the Constitution to be that appointments should not be made by the Governor alone when there is opportunity to consult the Senate, we are not prepared to hold that the second clause weakens the force of the first."

The court in another connection laid down the law in the following form:

"It has been argued, on behalf of the respondent, that the governor has no power, within the meaning and spirit of the constitution, to make a second temporary appointment during a second recess of the senate, after a vacancy has occurred which was temporarily filled by an appointment made when the vacancy occurred during the first recess.

"It cannot be doubted that it is understood and implied in the provisions of the constitution on this subject, contained in article IV, sec. 8, that when a vacancy occurs during a recess of the senate, which is temporarily filled by appointment to expire at the end of the next session, a permanent appointment shall be made during such session by and with the advice and consent of the senate; but whether, when this has not been done, another temporary appointment can be made without the advice and consent of the senate, to continue until the end of the next recess—in this case for two years—is a question which, as we understand, is not now squarely before us, and which we, therefore, do not decide."

The third main point of this discussion, that appointments can not be made during a session of the Senate without its advice and consent, either for a limited space to fill a vacancy or as a permanent appointment, is so obvious from the letter of the Constitution itself that it scarcely requires argument. The Constitution as already indicated definitely and specifically provides * * * "if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy." As has already been shown, "happen during the session of the Senate" means "exist during the session of the Senate." This provision therefore absolutely and conclusively of itself prohibits an appointment of any kind by the Executive during the session of the Senate without submitting such appointment to the Senate for its action. It will be impossible for any one to argue but that an attempt so to do is absolutely of no effect whatsoever, and entitled the person attempted to be appointed to no compensation, and makes all his acts in such office absolutely void and null. This point has been decided by the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in the case of the District Attorney, 7 Am. L. Reg. N. S., 786, where the court in construing the Federal tenure of office act says:

"The act of the second of March, 1867, known as the Tenure of Office Act applied to civil offices whose tenure is not constitutionally defined, and to which appointments can not be made when the Senate is in session without the advice and consent of the Senate."

This argument is also very forcibly made in a published report of the Committee on the Judiciary of the United States Senate, March 2, 1905. The report in part is as follows:

"The Constitution clearly confers upon the President the power to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. Congress in the same clause is empowered by law to 'vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of Departments.' "

"Human intention can not be made plainer by human language" than it is made clear by the Constitution that except as to the "inferior officers" referred to no Federal officer can be appointed save by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

"But it was obvious that without some provision for temporary appointments to fill up vacancies which might happen while the Senate was not in session to participate in making appointments grave inconvenience and harm to the public interest would ensue. To meet this difficulty it was by common consent provided that—'the President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.' "

"This is essentially a proviso to the provision relative to appointments by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. It was carefully devised so as to accomplish the purpose in view, without in the slightest degree changing the policy of the Constitution, that such appointments are only to be made with the participation of the Senate. Its sole purpose was to render it certain that at all times there should be, whether the Senate was in session or not, an officer for every office, entitled to discharge the duties thereof."

"It can not by any possibility be deemed within the intent of the Constitution that when the Senate is in position to receive a nomination by the President, and, therefore, to exercise its function of advice and consent, the President can issue. Without such advice and consent, commissions which will be lawful warrant for the assumption of the duties of a Federal office."

"The framers of the Constitution were providing against a real danger to the public interest, not an imaginary one. They had in mind a period of time during which it would be harmful if an office were not filled; not a constructive, inferred, or imputed recess, as opposed to an actual one."

"They gave power to issue these commissions only where a vacancy (1) happened, (2) during a recess of the Senate, and they specifically provided that the commission shall expire at the end of the next session of the Senate."

The fourth point involves a rule of law on which there seems to be little or no doubt, that where an officer is appointed by a commission which by its term expires at a given time and no successor is appointed, when the time of such commission expires, the original incumbent can not hold over until an appointment is so made. Applying this rule to the present case, where an appointment has been made to fill a vacancy until the termination of the session of the present Senate, and no appointment to fill such vacancy from that time on is made, the officers holding under such temporary appointment can not exercise the powers and rights of the office, or receive the compensation attached to the office after the adjournment of the present session of the Senate. Their commission having expired, they are automatically ousted. A discussion of this point citing cases decided in the Supreme Court of the United States is given in the opinion of the lower court in the case of Commonwealth v. Waller, already referred to. On page 250 of the Supreme Court Report where the court says:

"In Badger v. United States, 93 U. S. 599, Justice Hunt, delivering the opinion of the court, said: 'By the common law, as well as by the statutes of the United States and the laws of most of the states, when the term of office to which one is elected or appointed expires, his power to perform its duties ceases. This is the general rule. The term of office of a district attorney of the United States is fixed by statute at four years. When these four years come around, his right or power to perform the duties of the office is at an end and as completely as if he had never held the office. Rev. Stat., Sec. 769. A judge of the court of appeals of the State of New York, or a justice of the supreme court, is elected for a term of fourteen years, and takes his seat on the first day of January following his election. When the first day of the fourteenth January is reached, he ceases to be a judicial officer, and can perform no one duty pertaining to the office. Whether a successor has been elected or whether is qualified, does not enter into the question.' "

"Section 769 of the Revised Statutes, cited in the above extract, is as follows: 'District attorneys shall be appointed for a term of four years and their commissions shall cease and expire at the expiration of four years from their respective dates.' This, it will be observed, is practically the same language as is used in section 8, article IV, providing that the governor may fill vacancies 'by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of the next session.' "

The distinction to be borne in mind here is between an office where the incumbent, as is the case with county offices, under the law creating the office, holds "until a successor be duly qualified," on the one hand, and on the other an office the term of which is definitely fixed and no provision is made for holding over until a successor is qualified. This rule is definitely laid down in the case of Commonwealth v. Shetz, 228 Pa. 301, and permits no adverse argument. The court in that case, on page 308, says:

"The respondent relies on Com. v. Hanley, 9 Pa. 513; Com. v. Wise, 216 Pa. 152, and cognate cases to sustain his position that the death of the treasurer-elect before he qualified did not create a vacancy in the office on the first Monday of May, 1910, and that, therefore, he, the respondent, holds over and is entitled to perform the duties of the office. This discloses a misapprehension of the doctrine of these cases, as well as a failure to recognize the distinction between the constitutional provisions relating to the terms of office of state and county officers. Since the adoption of our first Constitution this distinction has been consistently maintained in our organic law. The Constitutions of 1790, 1838 and 1874, each provided that elective county officers should hold their offices for a specified time 'and until a successor be duly qualified'. On the other hand, the terms of state officers were definitely fixed with no provision for holding over until their successors were qualified. While, therefore, for more than a century by express constitutional provision the tenure of state officers has been fixed at a definite period, the tenure of county officers has been for the designated term 'or until his successor was duly qualified'. For reasons appealing to the framers of the several Constitutions and the people who adopted them, this distinction between the two classes of officers has been uniformly recognized in the organic law, and it has become the settled policy of the State to limit the term of service of a state officer strictly to the tenure prescribed by the Constitution."

A temporary appointment to fill any vacancy under section 8, article IV of the Constitution is a "constitutional tenure," that is, until "the end of their (the Senate's) next session." The temporary appointee cannot hold ever beyond that time.

It is therefore contended on all these points that unless regular nominations are made by the Executive to the Senate and approved by the Senate that all offices which became vacant prior to the present session of the Senate, will become vacant at the adjournment of the present Senate, and that there will be no person entitled to exercise any of the powers and duties or to receive the compensation provided for in all such offices. It is further submitted that all offices which became vacant prior to the present session of the Senate, and to which no temporary appointments to fill such vacancies were made by the Executive prior to the session, are now vacant, and that there is no person entitled to exercise the powers or to receive the compensation of any of such offices, regardless of the fact that an attempt may have been made to fill any such office by appointment during the session without the action of the Senate.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I have no objection to the passage of this resolution, because it is a request and a request only.

Further remarks were then made by the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Vare, and the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. C. A. Snyder.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair desires to state for the information of the Senator from Allegheny that the concurrent resolution, which has been agreed to by both houses, provides for adjournment until next Tuesday at 11.45 A. On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILL ON THIRD READING (SPECIAL ORDER).

The SPEAKER. The hour of 11:30 A. M. having arrived, the House will proceed to the consideration of House Bill No. 1573, File Folio 3613, the special order set for this hour.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1573, entitled

An Act to carry into effect the amendment to section eight of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania adopted by the people at an election held on the second day of November one thousand nine hundred and fifteen to provide the manner of holding elections for the increase of the indebtedness of the City of Philadelphia to the extent of three per centum upon the assessed valuation of taxable property in said city for the specific purposes authorized by said amendment regulating the manner of making such increase of indebtedness and providing for the redemption of the same validating elections held in said city since the adoption of said amendment in the manner provided by this act or by the Act of the General Assembly approved the twentieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four entitled "An Act to regulate the manner of increasing the indebtedness of municipalities to provide for the redemption of the same and to impose penalties for the illegal increase thereof" and the supplements and amendments thereto and to validate all bonds or other obligations of said city heretofore issued or which may be hereafter issued pursuant to authority conferred by the electors at any such election.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HECHT and gentlemen of the House, this is a very meritorious piece of legislation, and should be passed by this House. I just want to say a word of explanation in reference to the bill. Two sessions of the Legislature passed a constitutional amendment allowing the City of Philadelphia to increase its bonding capacity from seven to ten per cent. for transit and port facilities. An election was held by the Commonwealth at which that constitutional amendment was ratified. The City of Philadelphia then had a special election at which a loan of sixty-seven million of dollars was ratified by the people of Philadelphia. Under that bonds were issued by the city. There has been some objection raised that the Legislature did not pass an act carrying into effect the constitutional provisions, and the effect of that question has been that it has cast a cloud upon the bonds issued by the city. This bill simply corrects that. It is a meritorious measure for the City of Philadelphia and only relates to the City of Philadelphia, and should receive the approval of the House.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally ?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

The SPEAKER. If there are no objections, the House will proceed with the consideration of bills on final passage page 14 of to-day's calendar. The Chair hears no objections.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 879, as follows

An Act authorizing courts of quarter sessions to commit the care of certain burial grounds to townships, supervisors of townships and requiring townships to pay the expenses in connection therewith.

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That whenever any burial ground is being neglected so as to become a nuisance even though said burial ground may occasionally be used for burial purposes the court of quarter sessions of the county in which such burial ground is situated may direct that such burial ground be placed in care of the township supervisor of the township under the direction and supervision of said court

Section 2 That upon the petition of twenty-five or more citizens residing within a radius of five miles of any such burial ground to the court of quarter sessions the said court may order and direct the township supervisors of the township to cut down in the month of August of each year all brush grass briars and weeds growing in such burial ground and to remove the same and place such grounds in good order and condition

The cost thereof shall be paid out of the township treasury but in no case shall supervisors of any township expend more than fifteen dollars on any one cemetery in any one year for such purposes

Section 3 Such burial grounds shall remain open to the public according to such regulations as may be made by the said court

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. CANON. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House, this is not the most important bill that you will be called upon to consider during this session but, after all, it seems to me that it does propose to do a most commendable thing. Gentlemen, this is a grave question and should be discussed in a somewhat subdued and modest tone.

In all parts of this State, every county probably, we have some of these neglected burial grounds and they are, indeed; a sad sight and they are demoralizing as well. It is demoralizing in any community to have anything there that will create a sort of contempt or disregard for those who have departed. The reasons, probably, that these places are neglected in the country districts—there are many of them—some of them are connected with churches; the churches have fallen into decay and disuse and the organizations have disbanded but the bodies still remain there. There is no corporation of any kind to take care of these. The old friends have moved away and died and the younger generations are too busy making money and making a living and so they have neglected these.

This bill proposes to do, we think, a commendable thing in providing a way in which these neglected places may be taken care of. It is permissive entirely in its provisions. It does not say any persons must do anything, but it simply authorizes or provides a way in which this may be done. It proposes that on petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions by twenty-five citizens living within five miles of these burial places, asking that the care of these burial grounds be placed in the care of the township supervisor, so far as removing the grass and bushes and briers from these burial places is concerned. This is to be done once a year in the month of August and the cost, according to the terms of the bill, is limited to $15.00 a year for each cemetery, probably will not cost more than half that. These are small places of from half an acre to two acres of ground and it will probably be about two days' work for one man or one day's work for two men, but the limit is prescribed.

Now then, many of you gentlemen here that will decide the fate of this bill probably are not much interested in this little piece of legislation. Of course, you will find your resting place, all of you, in some fine large cemetery with great columns of granite and marble to mark the places, and the lot will be trimmed every Saturday for the admiring gaze of the Sunday visitors; but, remember, gentlemen that fortune is fickle and that republics are ungrateful, and that a few of us may probably have to fall back on the township supervisor to take care of our last resting-place.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the Merchants Association of Pennsylvania, who are vitally interested in this bill, have asked for a hearing on this bill.

I therefore move you that it be recommitted to the Committee on Ways and Means for the purpose of a hearing.

Mr. ALLAN D. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, this bill is a revenue raising measure and has been approved and endorsed by the Revenue Committee which was appointed under the resolution offered on this floor by the Speaker. Under these conditions I think the bill should pass this House at this time and I ask a favorable vote of the House upon it at this time.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmatve, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1288, as follows:

An Act to reimburse certain counties for rewards and bounties hereinbefore paid by such counties in good faith for the destruction of noxious animals and birds and directing the Auditor General to draw his warrant for the payment of the same

Whereas The county treasurers of various counties of this Commonwealth have heretofore paid considerable sums of money to persons as bounties or rewards for the destruction of noxious animals and birds under the provisions of the act approved the twenty-fifth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirteen entitled "An Act creating a reward or bounty for the destruction of certain noxious animals and birds killed within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania providing a method for the payment of the same by the several counties of the Commonwealth which in turn are to be reimbursed by the Commonwealth and providing penalties for violation of its several provisions" on orders issued in good faith by the county commissioners of such counties and

Whereas The Auditor General of the Commonwealth has in certain cases declined to draw his warrant on the State Treasurer to reimburse such counties for such payments because of omissions defects errors or irregularities in the proofs of such claims or in the certificates of the officers before whom such proofs were made and

Whereas There is an obligation on the part of the Commonwealth and it is deemed just that such counties should be reimbursed to the extent of the amounts which were paid in good faith by their officers notwithstanding such omissions defects errors or irregularities in the proofs of such claims or the certificates thereto therefore

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That the claims of the several counties for bounties or rewards heretofore paid by such counties for which reimbursements was refused by the Auditor General on account of omissions defects errors or irregularities in the proofs of such claims or the certificates thereto are hereby validated and the Auditor General of this Commonwealth is hereby directed to issue his warrants to the State Treasurer for the payment to the various counties of this Commonwealth from the funds provided by law for such purposes of the amounts paid by the treasurers of such counties as rewards to bounties for the destruction of noxious animals and birds under the provisions of said act of the twenty-fifth day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirteen entitled "An Act creating a reward or bounty for the destruction of certain noxious animals and birds killed within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania providing a method for the payment of the same by the several counties of the Commonwealth which in turn are to be reimbursed by the Commonwealth and providing for violation of its several provisions" on orders issued in good faith by the county commissioners of such counties notwithstanding the omissions defects errors or irregularities in the proofs of the claims or the certificates thereto

This act shall not authorize the payment of any claims which on investigation have been found to be fraudulent

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, this is an act to validate certain claims of several counties of the State for bounties paid under the Act of 1913 for the killing of noxious animals and birds.

The Act of 1913 requires the person killing noxious animals or birds, if he desires to secure the reward or bounty named in section one of the act to appear before any person authorized to administer oaths in the county in which such animal or bird was killed to appear and make affidavit that he or some member of his family killed the same and the time and place of the killing. It is then the duty of such official in the presence of at least one elector of the county and the party making the affidavit, to cut off the ears from such animal or feet or the head of such bird, and burn the same, and split the skin of the face of the animal from between the eyes through the end of the nose.

It is then the duty of such official to give the person making the affidavit a certificate to the county commissioners within his jurisdiction stating these facts. The county commissioners then give the party an order on the county treasurer for the amount of the bounty and same is paid.

The County Commissioners are required to keep an accurate account of the bounties so paid and on the first day of January and June of each year forward to the Auditor General an itemized statement of the amounts paid for bounties between said dates making affidavit thereto and accompanying same with sworn statement of the County Treasurer. If the statement is in proper form the Auditor General draws a warrant on the State Treasurer in favor of such county, and same is paid out of the funds accumulated in the hands of the State Treasurer from the fifty per centum paid for hunters' licenses under the Act of April 17, 1913.

The Act of 1913 relating to the payment of bounties repealed all former acts. Many of the persons authorized to administer oaths under the act in the several counties at the time it was passed were in possession of blank affidavits used by them under former acts and used these blank affidavits in proving bounties under the Act of 1913. Other officials secured new blanks purporting to comply with the Act of 1913, and while the officials taking the affidavit complied with the Act of 1913, cutting the head off the bird, the ears from such animal or felt, burning the same, and splitting the face from between the eyes through to the end of the nose, the blanks used did not state all these facts.

Owing to certain frauds and defective blank affidavits used the claims of many of the counties of the State for bounties are held up and unpaid. Among these counties are Armstrong, Beaver, Berks, Butler, Cambria, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Green, Huntingdon, Jefferson, Lebanon, Lycoming, McKean, Mercer, Monroe, Perry, Potter, Somerset, Susquehanna, Union, Venango, Warren and others.

The acts under consideration simply validates all claims for bounties of the several counties for which reimbursement was refused by the Auditor General on account of omissions, defects, errors or irregularities in the proofs of such claims, and authorizes the proper officers of the Commonwealth to pay the same; but does not validate or authorize the payment of any such claims, which on investigation have been found to be fraudulent.

The several counties have paid these claims and it is only fair that they be reimbursed by the State where no fraud appears. This ast has the approval of Dr. Kalbfus, the Auditor General and Attorney General. I ask the members of this House to vote for this bill.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I don't see how any member can justify a vote against this bill. The law requires this money to be paid by the counties and they have no option in the matter; they must pay it out and it further provides that they shall be reimbursed by the State, but because of some technicality of the law the State has withheld payment. In my county there is about three thousand or thirty-six hundred dollars owing our county by the State from this fund and I understand that if this bill passes it will only enable the Game Commission to pay money which is actually due. I believe the bill should pass.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I see nothing objectionable in this bill; it is carrying out the letter of the law. There are a great many members in this House who represent counties in this State who are in favor of hunting and there will be no game as long as we allow wild cats and foxes to run at large. There is a provision for killing them and my own county has paid over three thousand dollars which is outstanding to-day. This is a measure simply to do justice in conformity with the law which is already on the statutes, and there is no reason why we should have these noxious animals running at large and destroying lambs which produce the wool and all kinds of food which we need so much, with what we know of high prices. We all know that these men when they are destroying these noxious animals are preserving the game that we want and are doing that which is valuable in saving lambs and turkeys and pheasants and all kinds of game which we are talking about. I think every man should vote for this bill.

Mr. WOBENSMITH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Jefferson.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Mitchell, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. WOBENSMITH. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say that this bill has the approval of the Auditor General?

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. WOBENSMITH. Mr. Speaker, then I am for the bill.

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, at the request of Mr. Patton, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, I ask unanimous consent to call up at this time out of order on page 27 of to-day's calendar, bills on third reading, House Bill No. 986, entitled

An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Agriculture.

It is a deficiency appropriation for work that should be done by that Department at this time and for which they do not have the funds.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to call up the bill at this time? Is there any objection? The Chair hears objection.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. BRADY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Bill No. 40, File Folio 2263, on page 15 of to-day's calendar, bills on final passage postponed.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 40, entitled

An Act amending an act approved the twelfth day of July Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and thirteen entitled "An Act establishing a court for the County of Philadelphia prescribing its jurisdiction and powers providing for the service of its writs process or warrants by the proper officers of the County or City of Philadelphia regulating the procedure therein and appeals therefrom and providing for the expenses thereof" by increasing the amount of salary to be paid to the judges of the municipal court of Philadelphia.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. BRADY. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. GRANSBACK. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up at this time Senate Bill No. 58 (House Bill No. 333), File Folio 1409, bills on final passage postponed, page 15 of to-day's calendar.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 333 (Senate Bill No. 58), entitled

At Act to amend the first section of an act, entitled "An Act to amend the second section of an act, entitled 'An Act relative to the sale and conveyance of real estate' approved the eighteenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, extending the provisions thereof to real estate upon which are limited vested remainders which are liable to open and let in after born children and validating sales of real estate heretofore made by proceedings under said act of lands and tenements subject to such remainders" approved the fourteenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven (Pamphlet Laws page 144), extending the provisions thereof to real estate held by one or more persons for life and validating sales of real estate heretofore made by proceedings under said act of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three and its amendment of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven of lands and tenements held by one or more persons for life.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, this bill is an amendment to the Price Act so as to permit the sale of real estate under the same circumstances under which it is now sold with only the addition in jurisdiction, so as to extend it in cases of life estate. The logic or the reason for this ought to be clearly apparent. Assuming for instance the case of a man who makes provision for his widow, giving her a piece of real estate for life, with remainder therein to some one else. The tax on that real estate becoming burdensome, the widow as life tenant of course is responsible for the payment of those taxes. She does not have the income to maintain the real estate, and what is the consequence? Unless she and the remainder can agree to a sale of this real estate, it cannot be sold, and the provision made by the testator for her benefit is swept away and dissipated. This amendment would change the law in the respect that in a case, in a proper and fair case, if the court is satisfied, it could grant an order for the sale of this real estate. When this matter was up a few weeks ago the gentleman from Butler, Mr. Campbell, raised objection to the bill on the ground of constitutionality. I have gone into the question of constitutionality and, of course, I am frank to say that it is merely a case of one lawyers' opinion against that of another. I am candid enough, and I trust that you will believe me candid enough, when I tell you that I am satisfied there is no question of constitutionality involved in this bill. At the present time under the law as it now exists in cases of partition, the same principle is applied to real estate held by two or more persons as tenants in common. Any one of them can force a sale. There is no question of constitutionality involved at the present time in case of sale and separate use of trust by married women. Simply because of the intervention of a proceeding under the Price Act as it now stands a sale is permissible. There is no question of constitutionality there. The only change that this act makes is this: Where there is no trustee, there the remainderman, or life tenant, after satisfying the courts, can compel a sale. I think that this is a piece of good legislation, is remedial in its nature, and should be passed by this House.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr Miller.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Miller, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Lehigh whether or not this bill is included in the proposed revision of the laws pertaining to decedents' estates?

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, it is not, and for that reason it is necessary to pass this act, because it is not covered by the decedent's estate code that is before the House this session.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I would further like to ask the gentleman from Lehigh whether or not the knows if this particular bill was brought to the attention of the Commission?

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, it was not.

Mr. JAMES C. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, when this bill came up in its regulate order a few weeks ago, I felt that it was a bill that should not receive the support of this House. At that time, I had given the matter considerable consideration, and presented two reasons against its adoption. The first was based upon a constitutional question, which I then stated that I did not care to enter into with the idea that the House would accept my personal opinion upon the matter, and for that reason I quoted a decision of Judge Scarswood some years ago bearing upon the same general question, and cited the adoption of that opinion in two Philadelphia County cases some few years ago. It is correct as the gentleman from Schuylkill states that under these circumstances, the parties in interest may partition, or may move to partition the interest that they hold as life tenants and as remaindermen, but the constitutional objection to this bill which does not apply to the proceeding in partition is based upon the fact that partition proceedings are proceedings that were extent prior to the adoption of the Constitution, and therefore came under that general clause "of due process of law." There is no argument I think upon that matter. Our Constitution provides that property shall not be taken except by due process of law, and those methods of taking property which were in vogue prior to the adoption of the Constitution, belong to that due process of law. Now this method of selling the interest of the remainderman and the life tenant who are sui juris was not in vogue prior to the adoption of the Constitution and therefore does not come under the clause "of due process of law" under the Constitution.

My objection was that it was improper to compel property to be sold away during the life time of a remainderman, unless he agrees to such sale. All I have to add to the discussion that was made at that time as to read a portion of letter which I have received. The statement was made at the time this bill was up, that it was included —that the same provisions are included in the new decedents' law code. That code was placed upon our desks the same evening this bill was voted on a few weeks ago, and I very hurriedly at that time examined the code to ascertain whether the provisions proposed in this bill were in that code. I have a letter here from Judge John Marshall Gest, the chairman of the Decedents' Laws Code Commission, in which he refers to the remarks made on page 956 of the Legislative Journal, concerning the bill—those remarks that were made the other time this bill was up before the house. He says, "I certainly agree with your view and hope that the bill will receive very careful consideration before final action is taken. It would be an unfortunate amendment to the Price act and I am at a loss to perceive any benefit to be gained by it." I think, Mr. Speaker, that disposes of the question as to whether this same provision is included in the new act. I believe that the bill should be voted down.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler.

The SPEAKER. Will the Gentleman from Butler, Mr. James O. Campbell, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. The letter you have just read does not raise the question of constitutionality, does it?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. The letter states, "I certainly agree with your view." I do not know whether it agreed with both reasons or not.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. You stated you have authorities as to the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of this measure. Are you prepared to submit the authorities?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the last question I would state that I cited Palairet's Appeal, 67 Pa. 479, from the opinion of Judge Sharswood. I also cited the case of the Van Dusen Estate, 1 D. R. 156, and the Kearner's Estate, 13 D. R. 311. I also cited Foulk's Treatise on the Price Act, section 12, page 16.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Butler.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Butler, Mr. James O. Campbell, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Relative to the authorities cited by you is it not a fact that the Palairet's Appeal was a case of ground rent?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. And is it not a fact that the Van Dusen Estate case cited was a case in which the court held that under the Price Act the court had no jurisdiction to sell?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Correct.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Is it not a fact that this bill changes the Price Act in that particular?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Correct.

Mr. GEORGE J. A MILLER. Is it not a fact that in cases for partition by petition of one of several tenants the court cannot compel a sale.

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Is it not a fact that where real estate is devised to a married woman for her sole and separate use that in those cases a sale is permitted under the law?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. I am not familiar with the rules in regard to that sale.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Under the law as it now exists without this amendment to the Price Act without the benefit to a married woman who is a life tenant of the real estate, with no income to maintain the real estate and keep it in repair and pay taxes, when it appears in court how is it possible at the present time to order a sale of that property?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Partition proceedings.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Under the present law is it possible for the court on petition to order a sale of such real estate to prevent a dissipation of the wife's devise?

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. I could not answer that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GEORGE J. A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, this is not the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and I am not going to argue in the way I would before it. The gentleman cited two instances, one of the Palairet's Appeal. The Supreme Court there construed that the act related to ground rent, an altogether different proposition entirely from this one. In that case the ground rent was the estate belonging to an individual, and there is no question as to the unconstitutionality of such an act. I would be the last man to stand here and defend it, but that is not in point. The case of the Van Dusen Estate, the other one cited by the gentleman from Butler, was a case under the Price Act, and I do not think he could have cited a case which more clearly showed the need of this legislation. Under the Act of 1853 the court had no jurisdiction to sell real estate on petition of a life tenant, and that is exactly the condition which we are trying to remedy.

The court has no jurisdiction to sell a life estate on the petition of the life tenant. That is the law. There is no question as to the law, and I am glad the gentleman from Butler agrees with me; and that is the very situation that we are endeavoring to correct by this bill.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, it seems to me that all the members of the House who are members of the bar and practicing in the orphans' courts ought to appreciate the passage of this bill. In my practice I have had occasion at least once to appreciate the merits of a bill of this kind. The way the law is now, and Mr. Miller has just stated it, the life tenant cannot go into court and petition for the sale of real estate. It may often arise in this way, that the life tenant would like to dispose of the property and the life tenant cannot do it because he cannot get an order from the court.

Now, if the life tenant is burdered by taxes and other brudensome matters that arise out of that real estate, there is no way to dispose of it and if any one else that is interested in the estate, as remainderman, wants to have the property made productive, the only way is the old cumbersome method of procedure by a writ of estrepement. If this bill passes it will enable the life tenant to come into court and get an order of sale, and under the Price Act, the primary purpose of it being to make the sale of real estate flexible, the life tenant can get an order of court to sell. Now, in a petition for the sale of real estate under the Price Act all the safeguards that are necessary are thrown around. There is the description of the real estate, all the parties are named in the petition, and there is an appraisement held by disinterested persons so that the bond can be properly fixed; and in that way the real estate comes before the court and is sold and the money is put on interest during the lifetime of the life tenant and when the life tenancy is over that money goes to the remainderman.

Now, I am sure that the members of this House have met this difficulty in their practice. I have, and I am heartily in favor of passing this bill.

Mr. JAMES O. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I do not wish to further delay this matter. Any man who has any experience in legal matters knows that when one side cites authorities the other side usually comes back and shows the differenciation in the citations. It is true that Judge Sharswood's opinion was upon a ground rent. I cited it for the general statement as to the constitutionality of divesting the interest of the parties sui juris without their consent and I read that "this power to authorize conversions has never been recognized by this court except in the case of the property of persons under disability or where there were contingent interest whose owners have not come into existence," and then he goes on to state that these cases are collected in the Price Act. The citation of the Philadelphia cases was for the purpose of showing that the two eminent orphans' court judges had approved of the statements made by Judge Sharswood some years ago. They held that there was no authority under the Price Act to do this thing; but they also went farther and stated that if such an authority is to be found they would agree with Judge Sharswood in that it would be unconstitutional.

Now the whole purpose here is to compel a life tenant to lose the protection that her guardian, husband, father, or whoever it may be, has given her in a piece of property. Any man charged with the protection of his wife, his daughter or some other person dependent upon him desiring to look after them by giving that individual a life estate in his real estate may have that intention, that desire defeated by the remainderman coming into court and petitioning for a sale. I am not suspicious of the courts. If a matter is not mandatory it is possible the courts will not compel such a sale, but I believe this is a very unwise provision to place within the power of the court.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, for a number of years the members of the bar of the State of Pennsylvania have practiced in the orphans' court under what is termed the Price Act. That act has been construed by our orphans' court and by our supreme court and invariably, sir, the decision handed down that the safeguards of that act have been protective to the wife and to the children. Now, Mr. Speaker, when we have a gentleman like our friend from Butler, who has made a careful study of the question involved in this particular act, when we have the affirmance of the chairman of the commission which was especially appointed, Judge Gest, who is especially appointed by the Governor to frame a Decedents' Code which is now upon your desk, and when we have men of the calibre of Judge Gest say to you in a letter to Mr. Campbell, the gentleman from Butler, that he fully agrees with him that it would be a very dangerous proposition to place on the statute books an act amending the Price Act at this time or at any other time in view of the decisions of the Supreme Court relative to this very matter, we must carefully consider this proposition. I can readily understand the position of the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Miller, or some other counsel whose client may suffer a hardship, but, Mr. Speaker, these hardships are few and far between. The number that are safeguarded and the interests are so enormous that I think, gentlemen, you should hesitate and ponder carefully before you vote on a measure that may interfere with the rights of the decedent's estate under the Price Act, under which we are now practicing.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. GEORGE A. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this is a very important question, requiring careful consideration and one that should receive the attention of a full House, I move you that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that I have arranged with Mr. Flynn to allow this bill to go on the postponed calendar at this time, and, therefore, move that further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. HIBSHMAN. Mr. President. I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 94, entitled

An Act to amend section two of an act approved the sixth day of February one thousand eight hundred four entitled "An Act to provide for the creation of a house for the employment and support of the poor in the County of York," (Pamphlet Laws sixty-five) by regulating the term and election of directors of the poor.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this act before you attempt to amend a certain section of an act passed in 1904, providing for the establishment of a Board of Poor Directors in the County of York. At the present time there are three members of the board elected for a term of four years each. The provision of this particular section of this act says that a member shall be elected, one member each year, for a term of three years. Now, the point which I desire to call your attention to this morning is as to whether this whole piece of legislation is constitutional or unconstitutional. We elected in the County of York a member of the Poor Board each year until 1909. At that time an amendment was adopted, a constitutional amendment, and under this amendment the bill is unconstitutional because in the first place it is specifically prohibited by the Constitution and that section declares that there shall be no special or local legislation pertaining to county affairs and I maintain that the office of Poor Director is clearly an administrative office and therefore pertains to the public affairs of the county. The contention is at that time under the provisions of the Act of 1804 the term of three years expired at the expiration of that period of time. The following spring the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania declared that the gentleman who had been elected in 1910 had become a candidate unnecessarily and under the provisions of the Act of 1909, this particular section had been repealed from practical operation and that York County now came under the provision of the General Act, the Act of 1910, and the result was that in 1911 the same gentleman again became a candidate and was elected for a term of four years. I hold that the amendment which this gentleman here seeks to obtain is to amend a section which has already been practically repealed and out of operation by the constitutional amendment of 1909. In 1909 the constitutional amendment which was adopted was held by our court to have no bearing upon this act and in accordance with this decree the regular election of 1910, the election of a Director of the Poor, was held in the County of York. The following spring, I repeat, the Supreme Court had declared that York County was clearly under the general act or new process made and established by the constitutional amendment of 1909 and that the gentleman who was serving only a three year term as provided for in the Act of 1904 which this act now seeks to amend was really operating under the new process and that his term of office had been continued. It describes that where this legislation as intended for county affairs or public affairs, that it shall be specifically prohibited, and if the office of Poor Director is not an administrative office and is not a public affair then I don't know what a special act of a special Legislature means. I don't question the constitutionality of that, and to that I have no objection, but I hold that this bill is purely unconstitutional. From the point of view that now we operate under a general act, a new process act, described in the amendment of 1909 and also as being unconstitutional from the point of view that there would be no special legislation. This biil seeks to extend the term of one man whose term of office expires at a certain time by extending his term two years longer. I ask you how you can pick out one man out of sixty-seven counties, one particular poor director, as in York County, and give him two years over his allotted time. The Constitution says a county officer shall be elected for four years. I take it that four years means four years and no more and no less. I place this matter squarely before you and I ask you to look at it from the constitutional point of view. What it seeks to create is a minority member of the Poor Board and I say it is unconstitutional from the point of view of the amendment of 1909. Now, as to the minority membership. That is a question that cannot come up at this time because this act cannot go into that. My colleague will probably tell you of the awful conditions of York County, but I want it distinctly understood that my objection is clearly on the constitutional point of view.

I don't ask for any special privilege, but I don't understand why the Legislature should give us something that will just act only for York County. If it is a good thing let us make it general, let it be a general act in all counties. I will not be patriotic or honest to the citizens of York County if I do not raise my voice and protest against this amendment, for the reason that as the result of 1911 this same gentleman who had been elected in 1910, in accordance with the provisions of the 1804 Act, again became a candidate. These facts are well known to my colleague. The question is as to whether you really believe it is constitutional to extend the term of one man for two years and take out one particular county to do that and ask this House to verify that in 1909 the Supreme Court of the State decided that York County's special act had been automatically repealed in 1909.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. SPANGLER. Mr. Speaker, In view of the slender attendance of the House at the present time, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. MILNER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. Speaker, I regret exceedingly that I am compelled to object to that motion. Last week we went to the gentleman from York and asked him to make this bill a special order and he replied—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will confine himself to the bill.

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. Speaker, I am speaking on the motion.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman used personalities.

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from York informed me that the bill would come up in its regular order and now I ask that it shall be acted upon in its regular order.

Mr. SPANGLER. Mr. Speaker, if this bill were not a meritorious bill I would not be sponsor for it. It is a bill of much vital importance to York County, which I will explain when there is a full membership of the House present. Surely this House will not withhold the courtesy from me to postpone this bill at the present time, and if I cannot, before a full House, convince it that it is a meritorious bill then I am satisfied that it should be defeated. But it is a bill of much vital importance which I will explain in full before a larger House. It has been my intention to be recognized first, when this bill was called up to-day, so that it could be postponed without discussion at this time.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

An Act granting compensation as provided for in the Workmen's Compensation Act of one thousand nine hundred fifteen to the family of the late Joseph McHugh of Weatherly employed as a game warden and killed while in the performance of his duties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. WALTER. My point of order, Mr. Speaker, is that the bill is unconsitutional in that it attempts to confer upon the family of Joseph McHugh the right of compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act for an injury suffered prior to the time when the Workmen's Compensation Act went into effect and that it is therefore special legislation and unconstitutional.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that I did not read this bill until I happened to see the name—

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a decision of the Chair on my point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair decides that the point of order is not well taken.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker, I had not read this bill until I happened to notice it this morning upon the calendar, and it reminds me of the instance pertaining to the death of this man McHugh. He was a game warden in the employ of the Game Department, and I think in the lower end of Luzerne or the upper end of Carbon County, on a Sunday met a party, and without a word of warning being given, was shot in cold blood. His body lay there for some time. I do not know what provisions have been made in the bill, but I believe if there is an attempt here to pay the family it should be done.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 892, entitled

An Act to amend an act approved the twentieth day of May, one thousand nine hundred fifteen, entitled "An Act requiring cities of the first class to establish a pension fund for employes of said cities, and all county or other public employes, if any, paid by appropriation of the city councils thereof, and out of the treasury of said cities; and regulating the administration and the payment of such pensions;" including also city and other public employes paid out of the funds of any public commission or private funds.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in my place in behalf of this bill to say a few words in tribute to the late John G. Johnson who was really the author of this bill. John G. Johnson, who died in Philadelphia about ten days ago, was the foremost lawyer of this nation. The Philadelphia Bar was proud to have him among its members and the Bar of Pennsylvania as well as the Bar of the United States lost, by far, its leading light. This bill, Mr. Speaker, gives the public a new light on the life of Mr. John G. Johnson, because it was drawn up and conceived by him. It takes care of three old ladies who have been in the employ of the City of Philadelphia for over thirty years in the Wilstach Art Galleries in Fairmount Park of that city. Mr. Johnson amidst a busy life had time to think of people who were deserving and who needed attention. He, therefore, called my attention to the laxity of the law and asked that an amendment be made so that these ladies would be included in its provisions. Mr. Speaker, this is the only opportunity that I have had to say a few words about our late John G. Johnson and I trust that the House will join with me in passing this bill unanimously as a tribute to his memory.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stern, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia in regard to his amendment nunder this act which says, "including also city and public employes paid out of the funds of any public commission or private funds"—I would ask the gentleman whether or not the provisions made in this act to contribute from that private fund and general fund, what happens in case a deficiency occurred in the general fund?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, there is no such provision and no such contingency will arise.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I have the highest regard for the gentleman in regard to whom my friend from Philadelphia, Mr. Stern, has spoken so pleasantly in regard to his drawing up this particular act to cover three special employes in the Wilstach Art Gallery in the City of Philadelphia. Yet, as sponsor of this act two years ago with three months labor we finally put on the statute books a law for the benefit of municipal and county employes of Philadelphia to be paid out of the treasury of the City with money appropriated through the City Council. In addition to that we added that each year City Councils shall appropriate a sufficient amount of money to meet any deficiency that might occur in this noble, generous pension act. This act, which my good friend from Philadelphia has presented to you to-day, does not only apply to the three persons who are employed in the Wilstach Art Gallery of Philadelphia but it takes in a more general provision, covering almost any employe in the City of Philadelphia who is paid out of private funds or the funds of a commission. It opens the doors so extensively that we know not where it is going to stop. If it was only for these three people whom he mentions I would not object to the act, but in this fund paid out of commissions and private funds, we are going to open the door to take in almost anybody in the City of Philadelphia who is a public employe. I think we have been generous enough. Later on we find that these old employes both in the county and in the municipality of our city go on this generous pension we will find that City Councils must appropriate a certain amount of money each year, and with more that go on City Councils must appropriate an additional amount of money. But it is unfair for us to admit everybody who is paid out of a commission fund or out of a private fund to be admitted into this pension fund, under the same conditions in which the employes of the City and County of Philadelphia have been admitted, and who for the years before the act became operative have paid into the fund over two hundred and forty thousand dollars, and others can come in to-morrow, if this act becomes a law, and apply for a pension. If their service has been twenty years or they reach the age of sixty, which is the intention, the others could come in in two weeks from now on this pension and not hardly pay a month of the two per cent. salary. It is unfair to place on the people of Philadelphia this act which opens up the door to everybody to come in. It is a municipal act and not for people to be admitted who are paid out of commission funds or private funds. It is general and protective and we must have the act as it stands to-day to protect the interests of those employes who have already paid into that fund over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. If this was only for those three people referred to by the gentleman, it might be different, but it is so broad that it is going to admit everybody and we know not who or what may come in under the provisions of this act. I hope the act will not pass.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dunn, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. STERN. What lawyer gave you that advice?

Mr. DUNN. What advice?

Mr. STERN. The information you have just mentioned.

Mr. DUNN. I know it from a practical knowledge of the law acquired after two years' study. No lawyer gave me this advice but my information is from studying the law and preparing the bill.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I call attention to section 4, line 11, on page 3 of the bill, "that the persons so employed shall be after twenty years of service." In the first place the first section itself is an answer and I desire to say this, that I will take Mr. John G. Johnson's law in preference to Mr. Dunn's law in the present act.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, as it stands the present law says a person must be of twenty years service or at the age of sixty years and that time is computed from the first time they enter the service. Some people who went on the pension fund in the first year owes twenty years of service or until he is sixty years of age; others paid into that fund only forty-eight dollars and they are drawing to-day from that pension one hundred dollars a month, the minimum of that amount of pension, and the same way in the three cases Mr. Stern mentioned, if they have served twenty years. If we include another department and this act passes and they are sixty years old they can make an application at once and be admitted under the law, and I think it is unfair.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Dunn.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dunn, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if he can inform the House how many employes of the city are paid out of the funds of any public commission or out of private funds?

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, how many?

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I know that it is unlimited, because it is very broad, it takes in private funds down in the City of Philadelphia paying those who might be called public servants but they are people working under a commission, like Fairmount Park, there are quite a lot of commissions which would all be taken in under this act.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman how many there are.

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, well I can't exactly tell because I have not figured on it.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, are they not comparatively few employes in the City of Philadelphia who are paid out of private funds?

Mr. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I do not know because if they are paid out of private funds, they come in under this act, and the old act is only for city and county employes and those county and city employes are not paid out of private funds.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, as I understand the bill, they must be holding positions in the city or in the county and be paid out of funds of the commission or out of private funds that employ them. It occurs to me that there certainly could not be a very great number of those institutions or a great number of employes in them who would become a charge to the city if this bill should pass, and I rather excepted that the sponsor of the bill introduced and passed two years ago would be able to tell and give the House full information on the subject.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. GEORGE W. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would request the sponsor of the bill explain its purpose.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, the only change that this bill makes in the existing law is that the twenty year period need not be a continuous period. If a judge serves for fifteen years and is out of office for one year, and is returned and serves five years longer, he is within the provisions of the law.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the author of this bill explain it.

Mr. URICH. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this is a bill providing for the payment of the eudcation of orphanage children. We have quite a number of orphanages in Pennsylvania where the children of those institutions are educated in the public schools of the townships or cities or boroughs in which those buildings are located, and the cost of educating those children has devolved, and has come back upon those townships to be paid. Now under this rule, those townships, in trying under the school code to collect the money which they are entitled to for the cost of edueating those children, have not been able to get the money from some of the districts of the State of Pennsylvania; some of the school boards have refused to pay the money, and in order to get it the townships, in which those orphanages are situated are obliged and compelled to resort to legal measures to collect the amount due them for the education of those children, and it always costs them more money to collect it than they receive. This, gentlemen, is a bill to prevent such occurrences and throws the responsibility for the education of those children upon the school code and upon the State Board of Education to reimburse those townships without their being compelled to collect it at law.

An said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 682, entitled

An Act concerning townships and revising amending and consolidating the law relating thereto.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like very much to have the author of the bill explain its purposes.

Mr. SIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I am not the author of the bill. The bill was drawn by the Legislative Reference Bureau. They compiled all laws regarding townships of the first and second class, and from those laws as compiled they prepared a code. I have gone over this matter carefully. In that code there was no new matter added. The Legislative Reference Bureau made certain recommendations as to the repeal of obsolete laws, conflicting laws, and so forth. I have compared them to the best of my ability, and I believe that the code, as it now stands, is in good shape. There have been, since this session opened, many requests made to have the code amended. I have suggested to, those person desiring to amend the code that I did not think it was advisable, as I did not want to come in here to the Legislature and ask you gentlemen to vote for a long bill when I did not know all that it contained. Consequently all the amendments, the desired amendments to the code, are prepared in separate bills, and will take their places in order as separate bills on the floor. Two years hence, if the code becomes a law at this session, the Legislative Reference Bureau will take all the laws passed at this session, and incorporated them in the code.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken, and were as follows, viz:

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, this bill was contracted about 14 years ago, and was for four hundred dollars, and to-day it is nine hundred and fifty-two bills. It looks to me as though there is a great deal more interest charged than should be charged, and I think the bill should be postponed until we have time to investigate it. I therefore move you, Mr. Speaker, that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. McKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER VOTE.

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question.

Will the House agree to the motion?

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that this bill was not defeated by a number of votes, but was stricken from the calendar, therefore the motion is not in order.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE ON SENATE BILL NO. 50.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I am not particularly interested in the passage of this bill. I am making this motion on behalf of the sponsor of the bill. His thought was that we would reconsider the vote at this time, and then move to postpone the bill, and try to arrive at a satisfactory agreement with the opponents, to see if it could not be passed finally. I therefore move, Mr. Speaker, that the vote by which this bill was dropped from the calendar be reconsidered.

Mr. RININGER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. GEORGE W. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, by what vote was the bill defeated yesterday?

The SPEAKER. By a viva voce vote.

Mr. GEORGE W. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, can a bill that was dropped from the calendar be revived by a motion to reconsider?

The SPEAKER. Any motion can be reconsidered within five days.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?
